TUNES by jim willis

Who would have ever thought that Simon and Garfunkel separately would be as good as Simon and Garfunkel together. Well, they (singular) are as good, or better, as they (plural) ever were.

Art Garfunkel released his "Breakaway" album last year and it's still going strong. Garfunkel is forever the troubled troubadour with the effortless semi-soprano voice. Songs like "I Believe When I Fall In Love It Will Be Forever," "Rag Doll," "Break Away," "Disney Girls," "Waters of March," "My Little Town," "I Only Have Eyes For You," "Lookin' For the Right One," "99 Miles From L.A.," "The Same Old Tears," and "On a New Background" bring tears to the eye. Garfunkel uses symphonic arrangements, meaningful lyrics and a lilting voice that all add up to mellow.

Paul Simon is not to be out done. He always was the bouncier of the two and his "Paul Simon — Greatest Hits, Etc." has a bit more swing than his partner's compositions. The album includes some old and new favorites like "Slip Slidin' Away," "Stranded In A Limousine," "Still Crazy After All These Years," "Have a Good Time," "Duncan," "Me and Julio Down By the Schoolyard," "Something So Right," "Kodachrome," "I Do It For Your Love," "American Tune," "Mother And Child Reunion," "Loves Me Like A Rock," and "Take Me To The Mardi Gras."

Playing both albums back to back could put you in audiophilic heaven. Let's hope we never hear the "sounds of silence" from these two.

Small Business Week Proclaimed

Following President Carter's designation of April 30 to May 6 as National Small Business Week, the Garrett County Commissioners met with several members of the Institute for Small Business on Monday to proclaim this week as Garrett County Small Business Week.

Small Business Week recognizes a segment of our economy which provides a livelihood for more than 100 million Americans, accounts for 43 percent of the Gross National Product, 48 percent of the Gross Business Product (excluding farms and government) and 55 percent of all private, non-farm employment.

Today the small business owner faces major obstacles such as inflation and competition from larger firms. Steps have been taken locally to provide valuable counseling for the small business owner.

Free and confidential management assistance is now available for the Garrett County small business community. The service is being provided by the Institute for Small Business of Frostburg State College in the Oakland Community Center, 104 East Center Street.

Professional management consultants will be at the Community Center every Thursday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. The consultants are skilled in all aspects of small business management and the service is directed at those who are already in small business as well as those who are thinking of starting a small business. No appointment is necessary to meet with the consultants.

Although the Institute for Small Business does not make business loans, the consultants can help in the preparation of financing proposals to be presented to local lending institutions. The Institute works closely with the U. S. Small Business Administration, bringing the many programs of that agency to the area.

Don L. Zink, Senior Management Assistance Specialist, has been responsible for working with local officials to establish this service. David H. Berry, Management Assistance Specialist, will be working with Mr. Zink in providing this assistance.

The Institute for Small Business was organized five years ago as a community service of Frostburg State College's Center for Management Development. Since that time, over 2,000 existing or prospective small businesses have benefitted from the management assistance and training provided by the Institute. In addition, almost $4,000,000 in financing has been secured for Institute clients.

The Institute serves the four western counties of Maryland as well as adjacent areas of Pennsylvania and West Virginia. Walk-in counseling is also available in Frostburg from 9 a.m., until 1 p.m., every weekday and walk-in centers have been established in Hagerstown and Frederick.

Persons desiring more information about the Institute for Small Business should call (301) 689-4417 or write to the Institute c/o Frostburg State College.

GCC Lakers Sweep Eight In A Row, Defeating Fairmont, Beaver, New Kensington and ACC-South

GCC Laker, Bob Varner connects with a single in the second inning, one of two hits in the Laker's first game of a double-header against ACC-South of Pittsburgh yesterday. Varner was also batted home from second by Mike Filosemi whose pitching expertise netted the Lakers wins of 1-0 and 18-1. GCC stands at 26-7 for the season and goes into its final game Saturday with eight straight victories.

Ron Kaufman pitched a one-hitter and Mark Martini hit a grand slam homer in the nightcap to send Garrett Community College to a 10-0, 10-4 sweep over visiting Fairmont State last Wednesday.

The first six batters Garrett sent to the plate in the opening inning of the first game, singled as the Lakers scored five times.

Tim Hornick hit a double driving in a trio of Lakers. Martini and McGarvey added runs scoring singles and Filosemi added a double.

Fairmont took a 1-0 lead on a home run by Mike Wilburn in the second inning of the nightcap. GCC retaliated with a pair on a bases loaded single by Jim Whelan that put Filosemi on base as Bob Varner singled.

Martini grand slammed with two down in the eight run Garrett third.

The Lakers took to the diamond again on Saturday at McHenry as they trounced Penn State Beaver Campus 21-6 and 3-2 Saturday. Rex Walbolt drove in seven runs with a homer and three doubles in the opener and Mike Filosemi threw a three-hitter in the nitecap.

The Lakers quickly scored 15 hits in the opener that went five innings because of the 10-run rule. They took eight runs in the first two innings for an 8-3 lead and then added 13 runs in the third when Walbolt scored a two-run homer.

Terry Barkey drove in three runs with a double and two singles, Bill McGarvey doubled and singled and Mark Martini had two singles for the Lakers. Brett Hillegas claimed his fourth win in four decisions, allowing 10 hits.

Filosemi struck out eight and walked only one in balancing his record 3-3 in the nightcap.

Beaver took an ill-fated 1-0 lead in the second inning without a hit, scoring on a walk and an error.

Terry Barkey put the Lakers back on the scoreboard 2-1 in the bottom of the second with a two-run homer following Bob Varner's singles.

Beaver used two errors and a stolen base to their advantage to tie the game in the fourth. The strategy started a pitchers' battle between Filosemi and Bud Mengil that went into extra innings and Garrett took the winning run on a two-out single by McGarvey in the eighth.

Greg McGory walked and Ron Kaufman reached on a bunt. Walbolt moved the runner up with a sacrifice bunt to set-up McGarvey.

Garrett Community College increased its winning streak to six in a row with a double-header clean-up over visiting New Kensington, Penn State, 8-6 and 15-5 Sunday at McHenry.

The Lakers were trailing 5-0 as a result of five hits and two errors in the fourth inning of the opening game when they rallied to take the contest in the home half.

Tim Hornick caught fire with a base on balls and moved to third on a two-bagger by Bill McGarvey. After Bob Varner walked to load the bases, Terry Barkey drew a pass to force in a run, Mike Filosemi followed with a single plating a pair after a walk to Craig McGory. Mark Martini gave away the fourth run-in and then Rex Walbolt closed the rally with a run scoring single.

In the fifth inning, Filosemi doubled in Carner who had walked and scored on a Jim Hasinger single to allow the Lakers to lead.

GCC closed out the scoring in the sixth frame on singles by Walbolt and McGarvey plus a fielder's choice.

In the evening game all of Garrett's batters got a hit as the Lakers took an easy win in the shortened five inning game.

During the opening inning McGory opened with a double, Mark Martini followed with an RBI single, Walbolt singled, Hornick singled in a run and Varner doubled in a pair as Garrett took the lead 4-0.

The Lakers totaled four more in the third on a homer by Bill McGarvey and a key single by Varner and a triple by Filosemi. They moved into the fourth with four runs, key hits being two run doubles by McGory and Filosemi.

Ron Kaufman and Fred Griffin were credited with the wins as the Lakers moved to 24-7 for the season.

GCC Laker, Mike Filosemi sparked Garrett Community College to a double header victory over ACC-South of Pittsburgh yesterday at McHenry. Filosemi pitch d the entire first game, pitched five of the first six innings of the nightcap, and his single in the bottom of the seventh inning of the opener provided the game's only run.

The Lakers won by scores of 1-0 and 18-1, raising their consecutive-game winning streak to eight. The team connected on 16 base hits in the second game, scoring a ten-run fifth paced by four safeties from Rex Walbolt that included a three-run double during the fifth.

Filosemi out-pitched Marty Hradsky in the first game as both pitchers yielded just two hits. The Lakers got a foothold in the bottom of the seventh when Tim Hornick and Bob Varner walked and after Hornick was thrown out at third on a force play with Varner taking second, Filosemi succeeded with a base hit which sent Varner running home.

The Laker's only other hit came in the second inning when Varner singled. ACCs two hits were a one-out double by Spicuzza in the first inning and a one-out single by Kinkler in the fifth.

Filosemi pitched the first five innings of the second game, allowing only three hits with no bases on balls before yielding to Brett Hillegas in the sixth. The major hit of the nightcap was bases-loaded double by Walbolt, who also scored three singles.

Hornick was good for three hits during the game while Craig McGory and Bill McGarvey took two apiece. Walbolt, Ron Kaufman and Terry Barkey scored three runs each and Hornick and Jim Hasinger both made it home.

Coach Dennis Fearnow's Lakers finished their regular season Saturday with a double-header against Catonsville C.C. The team goes into their final game with a 26-7 overall record and eight straight victories.

Garrett Rifle Team Wins First Match, Metheny Scores Perfect 100

PERFECT 100 — You can't score much high than a perfect 100 which is what Garrett County 4-H Junior Rifle and Pistol Club member, Joe Metheny, shot during individual competition at a recent rifle match held in Keyser, W.Va. Not bad for his first competition, but it leaves little room for improvement.

DON'T SHOOT! — We lose more photographers this way. Pictured is the Garrett County 4-H Junior Rifle and Pistol Club's femme fatale, Kim Trickett. Kim did well in a recent match at the Keyser Armory taking second place in the individual competition with 345 points. She is shown demonstrating good form in the standing position, but don't worry, the gun wasn't loaded — was it?

The Potomac Valley Chapter — Order of DeMolay Rifle Team hosted a Shoulder to Shoulder Rifle Match at the National Guard Armory in Keyser last Saturday with competitors from Garrett County 4-H Junior Rifle and Pistol Club and the Green Bank Rifle and Pistol Club, Green Bank, W. Va. in attendance.

The Garrett County team placed first in the competition with a team score of 998. The Keyser DeMolay team placed second with 963 points. The Green Bank team was divided into two sections, the Red and the Blue which scored third place, 780 points and fourth place, 692 points, respectively.

Nearly 50 shooting enthusiasts joined together in the first National Rifle Association approved match in the local area, according to David Brantner, NRA instructor-coach for the Keyser team.

Shooting in the individual matches was divided into four sections, Prone, Off-Hand, Kneeling and Sitting. The top shooters with a possible 400 points were Joe Metheny of Oakland, 348; Kim Trickett of Oakland, 345; Melanie Ryan of Oakland, 344; Chris Clark of Keyser, 335; Jim Beitzel of Oakland, 313 and Ronald Weimer of Green Bank, 313.

The Team Match was fired in Prone, Off-hand-kneeling and Sitting positions. Competitors included Patty Harsh, Jim Hartman, Steve Moore, Rod Mills, Jon Keplinger, Gregg Weimer, Conrad Smith, Wes Coleman, Mark Arnold, Phil Cornell, Jon Mellanax, Ron Weimer, George Behrens, Kevin Ginn, Scott Ginn, Kevin White, Robert Gibb, Tony Valencia and Hank Behren.

In the top four Individual Total Averages, three local competitors ran away with the first three positions. Joe Metheny took first place, Kim Trickett, second and Melanie Ryan, third while Chris Clark of Green Bank ranked fourth.

In individual competition in the Prone position, Joe Metheny scored a 94, Kim Trickett 92, Jim Beitzel 78, Patty Harsh 96, and Melanie Ryan 97. In the Off-Hand position, Joe Metheny 79, Kim Trickett 81, Jim Beitzel 67, Patty Harsh 33, and Melanie Ryan 77. In the Kneeling position, Joe Metheny 93, Kim Trickett 91, Jim Beitzel 82, Patty Harsh 84 and Melanie Ryan 78. In the Sitting position, Joe Metheny 82, Kim Trickett 81, Jim Beitzel 86, Patty Harsh 86 and Melanie Ryan 92. The team members also received the following averages: Jim Metheny 348, Kim Trickett 345, Jim Beitzel 313, Patty Harsh 299, and Melanie Ryan 344.

Garrett team members also fared well in the Individual Total Team Match Scores as Melanie Ryan scored a 233, Patty Harsh 236, Joe Metheny, 263 and Kim Trickett 265.

The results of the match were impressive, considering this was the team's first competition. The team is directed by Doug Oxford, head coach, Russell Stewart, co-coach and John Williams, assistant.

Parents of the children provide transportation to practice sessions and matches. They are currently involved in a fund-raising project which will off-set transportation costs.

The team will be competing in several Western Maryland District Matches this summer including a match in Hagerstown later this month and a July match in Denton, Md.

YOU'RE IN THE ARMY NOW — These youngsters might be smiling sweetly, but they're also armed to the teeth. All are members of the Garrett County 4-H Junior Rifle and Pistol Club. The club recently participated in its first match and brought home the top three awards for individual shooting. They also earned first place in team competition, defeating the Keyser DeMolay team and two teams from Green Bank, W. Va. In fact, they did so well, there's no sense in wishing them "better luck next time." Pictured are, left to right, front row, Joe Metheny and Jim Beitzel, back row, Kim Trickett, Melanie Ryan, and Patty Harsh.

A BIG ONE THAT DIDN'T GET AWAY — Albert Fleming, Swanton, started the spring fishing season with a bang by hooking this 24" large mouth bass. Fleming snagged the monster on the evening of April 10, in the Green Glade section of Deep Creek Lake. The fish weighed seven pounds, 15 ounces, and was caught on a jitterbug.

Clark is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Clark, Sr., Oakland, and he will graduate from Southern High School this June.

Racers Make Good Showing Saturday

County drivers involved in stock car racing at Morgantown Speedway Saturday made a good showing, despite mechanical problems and accidents.

Frank Lewis, Oakland, started second in the helmet dash and finished first. In the heat race, he started from fourth position and finished third. There his luck ran out, however, as mechanical problems developed which kept him from running in the feature.

Dewey Wakefield, Friendsville, entered his car in the heat race, starting second and finishing in the number one spot. In the feature, he moved from seventh to second place.

Randy McCartney, Mt. Lake, started third in the heat and finished second. . In the feature, he started fifth but did not finish due to an accident and resulting mechanical problems.

On Sunday at the Motordrome in Pennsylvania, Frank Lewis started fifth in the heat and finished fourth. He was placed second in the feature race and had moved to first place when he was involved in a pileup which eliminated his car from the race.

Rams Victorious Over Petersburg

The Southern Rams played some tough catch-up baseball Saturday as they salvaged the first game and then held on valiantly in the bottom of the seventh to wrangle two Potomac Valley Conference victories from host Petersburg 4-3 and 3-2.

The Rams upped their PVC record to 4-2 taking a 3-2 lead into the bottom of the seventh only to see the Vikings tie the game. Then, in the eighth frame, Wayne Scott connected on a one-out single, went to third on Craig Sullivan's single to left and came home on winning pitcher Joe DiSimone's sacrifice fly.

In the second game, sophomore Jeff Colaw took over the mound from starter Jim Simms with two outs and the bases loaded. Colaw sent Jim Hawk down swinging to maintain Simms' second win in three starts.

Junior Frank Lewis took a double and three singles to the Rams' advantage as the team finished with a 4-5 overall record.

"Hey, somewhere in there is your Dodge."

This year, there are a lot of special reasons for you to sit up and take notice of Dodge. Reasons like Motor Trend's Car of the Year, our front-wheel-drive Omni. Reasons for you enthusiasts, too. Like Magnum XE. A personal luxury car equipped with a standard 318 V8.

And for families, our mid-sized Monacos. Including wagons that'll handle over 85 cubic feet of cargo with the rear seats folded down. While for added luxury, you might want to consider Diplomat. Luxury, that is, in a most accommodating size and price.

And then there's Aspen, which is more or less a car for all reasons, offering packages to suit your need for thrift, your desire for extra comfort, or even your yearning for a real road machine.

There's a lot more, too. But by now you've probably got the picture. So if you want a closer look, see your Dodge Dealer. You'll not only sit up and take notice, you'll want to say, "Hey, that's my Dodge."

Delta Kappa Gamma Society Has State Convention April 28-30 At Village Inn

Alpha Beta State of Delta Kappa Gamma Society held its annual convention at The Village Inn, McHenry, April 28, 29, and 30. Hostess chapters for the convention were Alpha Alpha of Garrett County, Eta of Allegany County, and Pi of Washington County.

The convention opened Friday evening with a reception around the indoor pool area of the Inn. Jean Wolfe, president of Alpha Alpha, introduced the Dolphin Club of West Virginia University who were featured performers. Members of the club performed a water ballet to the theme, "Science Fiction," with such songs as the theme from "Star Wars" and the love theme from "Logan's Run." Mary Calemine, president of Eta Chapter, then introduced a musical group from Frostburg State College, who presented both vocal and instrumental selections.

Following these performances, members were invited to a wine and cheese buffet catered by The Village Inn. Serving as chairman of the reception was Anna Bishop, of Alpha Alpha.

Saturday's agenda included a state executive board meeting and general business session from 9 a.m. until noon. Presiding was Dorothy Cavenee, president of Alpha Beta State. A luncheon was held at 12:30 with Mary Matula, first vice president of Alpha Beta State, presiding. Alice Craven, scholarship chairman of Alpha Beta, presented scholarship awards while Elizabeth Peregoy, past state president, delivered a tribute to the Founders.

A playlet depicting women's roles through the years was then presented by members of Gamma Chapter.

Following luncheon, members were invited to participate in a variety of activities, including a discussion group led by Jessie Sim, international guest, and a bus tour of the lake with Lillian Reckner, Alpha Alpha, acting as guide.

Climax of Saturday's events was the formal banquet held at 7 p.m. Following the procession of chapter presidents, Rev. James S. Remley, pastor of the Bethel United Methodist Church, Mt. Lake Park, delivered the invocation. A chorus consisting of members from the various chapters presented several selections. Directing was Jeane Klender, music representative. Participating from Alpha Alpha were Anna K. Beachy, Margaret Dean, Charleen Thomas, Lillian Reckner and Jean Wolfe.

Elaine Crowe, treasurer of Alpha Beta State, introduced the guest speaker, Jessie Sim, treasurer of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International. Miss Sim's address centered on the theme, "Mountains and Lakes," stressing the solidity of our lives as reflected in the people we touch.

Special guests at the banquet included Dr. William Buser, superintendent of Garrett County Schools, and Mrs. Buser; Dr. Claud Kitchens, superintendent of Washington County Schools, and Mrs. Kitchens.

Honorary members were initiated prior to the banquet, with Betty Mitchell, state initiation chairman, presiding.

Sunday morning a Necrology Service was conducted at 8 a.m. A breakfast followed the service.

Speaking on the topic, "What Delta Kappa Gamma Means to Me" were Nancy Brown, Lambda Chapter; B. Ella Copes, Kappa Chapter; and Jeanne Whitehair, Alpha Alpha Chapter. Jean Wolfe, chairman, then expressed appreciation to participating members. Group singing was led by Jeane Klender.

The convention concluded with an evaluation meeting conducted by Ethel Sellman, second vice president of Alpha Beta State.

Treasurer for the convention was Evelyn Watson, while Dorothy Frame was in charge of registration. Chairman of the breakfast was Anna K. Beachy. All are members of Alpha Alpha.

Mrs. Jean Wolfe, president of Alpha Alpha Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma, was among the chapter presidents honored prior to Saturday's convention banquet at The Village Inn. All state chapters were represented during the opening ceremonies.

Cooking Corner

by Mariane

Rising food prices cause a temporary loss of appetite in some people but other people find the frustration of a visit to the grocery store causes them to rush to the nearest food they can find for some temporary comfort and solace.

The fact still remains that food prices are high and the economic experts predict that food prices will continue to rise sharply over the next year. Some people can adjust by simply increasing their food budget money but, for others, this route of action is financially impossible or just plain against their principles. For the latter group, coping will include growing their own food, eating less expensive food and, perhaps, eating less food.

One way to have plentiful and good food is to consider using meat substitutes because meats take a sizable chunk out of a normal food budget. One meat substitute in particular—legumes—is very inexpenisve and filling. Legumes include dried beans, peas and lentils and provide tasty and substantial meals.

The following recipes are shared by Robin Sandsmark and are from one her favorite cookbooks: The Vegetarian Epicure by Anna Thomas.

LENTIL TOMATO SOUP

2/3 cup dried lentils	chopped parsley
4 cups water	garlic
1 onion, chopped	salt and pepper
4 carrots, chopped	thyme
2 stalks celery, chopped	dill weed
1 cup tomato paste	tarragon
a few Baco-bits (optional)	dry white wine (optional)

Put the first 5 ingredients into a large pot and simmer gently for about 3 hours, replenishing the water as needed. Add the Baco-bits at this time if you wish to use them. At the end of cooking time, try adding a little dry white wine, if you have a taste for it. Then, tasting to see what quantity is right for you, add very small amounts of the herbs and spices.

Finally, stir in a cup of tomato paste and let it all heat through. Makes 6 servings.

EGGPLANT PARMIGIANA

1 medium eggplant, sliced thick	white or red wine, as needed
flour	pinch of oregano
1 egg, beaten with some milk	clove of garlic
	salt and pepper
dried breadcrumbs, wheat germ or cracker meal	1 cup fresh-grated Parmesan cheese
½ lb. Swiss cheese or Mozzarella cheese, sliced	olive oil
	6 oz. tomato paste

Wash your eggplant and, without peeling it, slice it about ¾ inch thick. Dip these slices first in flour, then into the egg, then into the breadcrumbs so they are well coated. Saute them in a little olive oil, a few at a time, until they are nicely browned on both sides; tend them carefully and add oil if it is needed.

When they are crisp and brown, arrange them in a baking dish and put a slice or two of Swiss or Mozzarella cheese on each one. Make a thick tomato sauce by diluting the tomato paste with wine. Mix the tomato sauce with the oregano, salt, pepper, and crushed garlic clove, and spread 2 to 3 tablespoons on each slice. Finally, sprinkle the grated Parmesan on top of it all. Bake at 400 degrees for about 15 minutes and serve steaming hot. This hearty dish will serve 4-6 people.

NUTRITION NOTE: The protein in the above recipes is substantial but will be complemented by adding rice pudding to the meal. Proteins are composed of many parts and the proteins found in legumes and milk products are complemented by adding rice or wheat dishes to the meals in which they are served.

TIP OF THE WEEK: My children clued me to the fact long ago that they seem to get hungry sooner if their meals don't include some crunch chew food. Adding carrot or celery sticks or hard bread sticks to a meal of mainly soft type food not only adds texture but seems to keep the hunger pangs away longer than if only soft type foods are served in a meal.

142 Receive Small Business Assistance

The Institute for Small Business at Frostburg State College provided management assistance to 142 clients during the quarter ending March 31, according to James F. Decarlo, Jr., Director.

This brings the nine month total of 376 clients, an increase of eight percent over the total number of clients served during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1977. The 142 clients served is second in volume only to the 153 clients served during the quarter ending September 30, 1977.

The number of clients from Allegany County during the quarter was 65, bringing the year-to-date total to 164. The year-to-date total of 79 for Washington County includes 25 from the most recent quarter. The remainder were in other parts of Maryland as well as adjacent areas of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

The most common problem area was financial analysis. Other major problem areas included purchasing, sales promotion and advertising, and recordkeeping.

Institute counselors were successful in securing financing for three client firms during the quarter. A total of $56,000 was made available to these clients resulting in the stabilization of eight jobs. For the nine month period, 22 loan applications were approved for a total of $1,754,500. A total of 112 jobs were affected.

The Institute expanded its walk-in counseling network by opening a walk-in counseling service at the Garrett County Community Center. This is in addition to walk-in centers already operational in Frostburg, Hagerstown, and Frederick. The newest walk-in center in Oakland is open from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. every Thursday.

The Institute for Small Business was founded as a community service of Frostburg State College's Center for Management Development in August, 1973. Since that time more than 2,100 existing or prospective small businesses have received management assistance or training and more than $3,500,000 in financing has been secured as a result of Institute efforts. This financing has resulted in the creation or stabilization of at least 236 jobs.

In addition to support provided by the College, the Institute receives financial and technical support from the Appalachian Regional Commission, the Regional Education Service Agency, and the U. S. Small Business Administration.

Anyone desiring additional information about the Institute can call 301-689-4417 or write to the Institute at Frostburg State College.

Head Start Relates Services Available For Handicapped

The Garrett County Head Start Program staff reminds county residents that Head Start now extends its services to handicapped children. Children with special needs may be enrolled to use the full range of Head Start's educational, health, and other program services under Congressional mandate.

Head Start staff members are trained to work with handicapped children and their families. In addition, the program works with other agencies in the community to provide a full range of services a handicapped child may need.

In the program, a handicapped child is encouraged to think less about his disability and more about his strengths as he relates to other children.

Congressional directive defines handicapped as "mentally retarded, hard of hearing, deaf, speech impaired, visually handicapped, seriously emotionally disturbed, crippled, or health impaired children — who require special education and related services."

For additional information or enrollment applications, contact Leon Butcher, 360 W. Liberty Street, Oakland.

Weekend Accidents Injure Several

Several persons received varying degrees of injuries in weekend mishaps, mostly in the southern area of the county.

Tommy Gene King, Friendsville, was thrown from his motorcycle about 1 a.m. Monday as he was driving west on the Sang Run road near the Bishoff Road. Several deer ran across the road in front of him causing him to loose control of the vehicle and overturn. He was brought to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad. Tfc. R. C. Georg investigated.

The driver of one of two vehicles was injured on Maryland 135 near the railroad bridge at Bloomington just past noon Sunday. Robert Smith, III, of Luke, and Cheryl A. Lipscomb, Bloomington, the injured person, were driving on Route 135. The Lipscomb car attempted to make a left turn and was struck by the Smith car as it attempted to pass. Tfc. D. H. Riggleman charged Smith with passing on the left when unsafe.

An early morning mishap injured the driver of one car in a two-car mishap on Maryland 135 east of the Swanton Hill road. Cecil C. Preston, Westernport, was headed west followed by Carmen P. DelSignore, Jr., RD 3, Oakland, the injured person. DelSignore failed to reduce speed and struck the Preston car. Tfc. L. N. Smith made the charge against DelSignore.

The passengers of a two-car wreck were injured in a Friday afternoon accident at the intersection of U. S. 50 and U. S. 219. Gary R. Knotts was eastbound on Rt. 50 with his passenger Linda Knotts, both of Grafton, W. Va., Joseph R. Romano of Clarksburg, W. Va., and his passenger, Patrick J. Curtin, Wheeling, W. Va., were southbound on Rt. 219 and failed to give the right-of-way to the Knotts car and struck it. Tfc. Riggleman made the charge.

The car of Mark I. Johnson, Elk Garden, W. Va., was parked, unattended, on the shoulder of an unnamed road in the Cove area about 1 a.m. Saturday. A car driven by Evelyn Marie DeBerry, Bruceton Mills, W. Va., and her passenger, Gary Glotfelty, Oakland, ran off the road and struck the Johnson car. DeBerry and Glotfelty were both transported to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad. Smith charged Evelyn DeBerry with negligent driving.

World Observes Sun Day Today

United Press International

With cheers, dancing, brass fanfares and prayers, Americans greeted the sun today to celebrate the dawning of the solar age.

An estimated 500 Washingtonians gathered on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial under the silvery sliver of a new moon to welcome the rising of the sun over the Reflecting Pool in a cloudless sky.

All along the East Coast, others carried out similar celebrations.

It was the start of Sun Day, throughout the United States and in some 30 other nations, a celebration of the sun's potential to replace oil, natural gas, coal and nuclear power with a virtually inexhaustible clean source of power.

Federal officials noted that in the United States the sun already provides some 6 percent of the nation's energy requirements, twice what comes from nuclear reactors.

At the Lincoln Memorial, a triumphant fanfare by the Century Brass ensemble at 6:18 a.m. signaled the first appearance of a golden-orange sun over the top of federal buildings to the East.

Spacecrafts To Aim For Venus

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CALIF. (UPI) — Two Pioneer spacecraft will be launched for Venus between May 20 and Aug. 7 to make the first detailed survey of the cloudy planet's atmosphere and surface.

Pioneer-Venus also is the first project devoted primarily to studying the atmosphere and weather of any planet, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration says.

One of the Pioneer-Venus missions will employ a multiprobe that will split 8 million miles from the cloud-shrouded planet into five separate spacecraft. Each is targeted to make measurements from the top of the atmosphere to the surface where it will crash.

The other mission is an orbiter, which should circle Venus for a minimum of eight months. At the lowest point in its lopsided orbital path, the orbiter will dip into the upper atmosphere 90 miles from the surface.

The orbiter's 12 scientific instruments will return daily pictures of Venusian clouds, make numerous measurements of the atmosphere and compile radar maps of the surface.

Diamond Found During Autopsy

NEW YORK (UPI) — A four-carat diamond ring stolen more than a year ago has been discovered in the stomach of a Michigan prison inmate during an autopsy.

The ring, valued at about $35,000, was returned to its rightful owners, the Fifth Avenue firm of Danaos Ltd., after it was found inside the body of convicted perjurer Peter Lazaros, who died last Friday of unknown causes in a Pontiac, Mich., jail.

"It was one of the great cons of all time," a spokesman for the firm, Robert Bullen, said today.

Bullen said Lazaros — known as "Peter the Greek" — was staying at Manhattan's posh Pierre Hotel on Jan. 19, 1977, when he called to ask the firm to send up an assortment of diamonds for his perusal.

"We sent up a sales representative and an assistant," said Bullen. "There, all around him, were a barber, an optometrist, a masseuse, a manicurist, a caterer, all these people hovering about him, as a diversion of course."

Bullen said that, when the sales people left, they discovered missing a four-carat ring composed of two diamonds set in platinum, a white diamond of 2.13 carats and a canary diamond of 1.9 carats.

Returning to the suite, Bullen said, the two sales people "encountered a theatrical routine you would not believe." Bullen said Lazaros had a pacemaker, and said, "Why are you troubling a sick man?"

The Fifth Avenue firm later filed an insurance claim with Lloyd's of London, and was paid $17,000.

Lazaros, 44, was convicted of perjury in 1971. He was jailed in Pontiac April 13 to await trail on 10 counts of fraud, involving bank swindles and schemes to defraud citizens.

Police Arrest Two For Murder Of Seven-Year-Old

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The state medical examiner says 7-year-old Mario "Tony" Howe, whose body was found by Baltimore City police in a quarry Tuesday, died from drowning.

Police spokesman Michael Bass said police were led to the boy's body after questioning 14-year-old Joseph Nolan, who was arrested and charged with the boy's murder.

Nolan and 16-year-old Michael Evans were charged as adults with homicide, extortion and kidnapping.

"The first suspect made statements that implicated the other one and led us to the Clipper Mill Road Quarry," Bass said.

Bass said the young boy was tied to a board and lowered into an 80-foot quarry.

Area newspapers reported, but police would not confirm, that Howe fell off the board and as he floundered to stay afloat, his assailants threw rocks at him.

The police spokesman said Howe, who was reported missing Monday night, was found at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday on a ledge 30 feet under water after more than 25 police officers conducted an all night search of the North Baltimore quarry.

Police Lt. Derryl Duggins, a department diver, found the boy's body.

Bass said police were called to the Howe home Monday night after the boy's parents, William and Betty Godfrey, said they received a telephone call that their son was kidnapped and would be returned for $300.

The parents quoted the caller as saying, "Miss Betty, if you want to see Tony again, you'd better come up with $300."

Mrs. Godfrey told police she recognized the voice and told police where the suspect lived. Police began searching the quarry after talking with Nolan.

Bass said three youths were originally picked up for questioning but the 15-year-old third youth was released.

Probe Continues For Cause Of Scaffold Failure

WILLOW ISLAND, W. VA. (UPI) — A comparison of two mixes of concrete could play a key role in helping federal safety experts pinpoint the cause of a scaffold collapse that dropped 51 men to their death.

The quality of the concrete, however, is only one phase of the many-faceted probe in progress by three teams from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

"We have a good idea where the break started," David Rhone, OSHA's regional administrator, said Tuesday.

Research-Cottrell, a New Jersey-based subcontractor erecting the cooling tower for the $867 million power plant, switched last year to concrete mixed off the premises by Criss Concrete Co. in Saint Marys. Formerly, the concrete, provided by another firm, was batched on the construction site.

Rhone believes both types of concrete were used on the unfinished tower. Inspectors plan to study both types.

Additional experts were brought in as OSHA investigators went to the Saint Marys plant to pursue the concrete angle. Criss Concrete has defended its product rigidly against reports it failed to hold up in the Thursday accident at the Pleasants power station of the Allegheny Power System.

Tuesday's visit to Criss Concrete's plant was to have been without notice, but "I don't know how anything we do around here now could be surprise," Rhone said.

"We went there to look at the whole concrete preparation and delivery."

The OSHA researchers also met with officials of the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratories which is testing the concrete used on the cooling tower.

Conflicting testimony has surfaced with regard to the concrete break, and OSHA inspector Charles Straw said the discrepancies must be resolved before this vital point can be firmed up.

After the break is located, OSHA believes its task of finding the actual cause of the tragedy will become easier.

THEY ONLY COME OUT AT NIGHT — If you're timid about things that go bump in the night, then a walk through a cemetery is not for you. Our foolish?, brave?, photographer captured this eerie photo in a local graveyard at sunset. The mysterious figure is merely a tombstone adornment illuminated by the sun. However, it is true that they only come out at night — photographers, that is.

Banking Committee Approves Transit Program Costing $14.8 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Banking Committee approved a four-year, $14.8 billion mass transit program with a new formula to send more of the money to large urban areas.

The authorization bill, $3.5 billion more than the administration asked, would go to local governments and mass transit operators for new construction and operating costs.

"The figures in our bill do not represent the cost of 'wish list' projects," Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., said. "They are necessary to underwrite the costs of keeping our public transportation systems operating, attracting riders and to make new investments where they are warranted."

The committee's new formula would steer more of the operating assistance money to urban areas by taking into account the level of ridership as well as population in the calculations.

The committee also included a special formula program that would earmark additional funds for the so-called "transit intensive cities."

Under the current formula, the largest cities are getting less than 10 per cent of the federal share for operating costs, compared to the National average of 20 per cent.

The package includes a new $400 million program to provide construction and improvement capital and operating assistance to small urban and rural areas to help cities between 5,000 and 50,000 population.

The committee also approved a new planning program to merge urban highway and public transit decisions.

"This will ensure that transportation policy is made in a more rational and balanced manner and will help eliminate our overdependence on the private automobile," Williams said.

UM Medical Student Discovers Way To Increase Blood Life

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A 26-year-old Baltimore student studying for her doctorate at the University of Maryland Medical School may have discovered a way to prolong the life of human blood.

Denise Harmening said she developed a blood preservation program that would double the life of human blood on her own time, using donated materials.

Miss Harmening said her research involved the problem that stored human blood quickly loses its ability to transport oxygen. As a result, blood that is not used for three weeks must be discarded.

Miss Harmening said she developed a procedure to impregnate resin beads with phosphate, which serves to preserve blood longer and also increases the quality of blood during its second and third weeks of storage.

The beads attempt to combat decreasing levels of ATP and 2, 3-DPG — chemical compounds that are believed to initiate the transfer of oxygen from the blood cell to the body tissues, she said.

Miss Harmening said when the stored blood cells lose their reserves of 2, 3-DPG, the blood is unable to carry oxygen well.

She said after trying different combinations of resins and phosphates she hit upon the formula that resulted in a high DPG level.

"That had never been reported," she said. "So I repeated the experiments."

The technique has not been tested on animals or humans, but Miss Harmening said the beads are being patented by the Research Corp., an interantional organization that promotes university-based science and technology.

Parents Urged To Use Safety Carriers

Many well-meaning parents expose their children to injury or death every day by not using a safety restraint system when riding in autos. An accident, even at moderate speeds such as 25 to 30 miles per hour, can inflict serious or even fatal injuries.

Most parents would be shocked to learn that the single leading cause of death for small children is highway crashes, reports the Insurance Information Institute. Each year, more than 2,000 children are killed in motor vehicle accidents.

Holding a child in your lap is not a form of protection, the Institure points out. You are not strong enough, at the instant of the crash, to protect or to hold the child against injury.

In shopping for a restraint system, you must decide which type is right for your child according to his age, weight and height. The Institute notes that safety experts make these suggestions for an infant carrier:

- The carrier should be able to be fastened in place by the car's seat belts.
- The carrier should include restraint belts at least 1½ inches wide.
- The carrier should be high enough to protect the infant's head.
- The carrier should provide side support, particularly in the head and shoulders areas.
- For maximum frontal protection, the carrier and infant should face the vehicle's seat back, not forward.

For a child car seat, you should look for these features:

- The seat must give protection from front and rear-end crashes; cushioning the child and preventing him from being thrown free.
- The seat must give adequate protection against whiplash injury.
- The child's upper body should be restrained by belts or impact pads.

Medical Researchers Can View Unborn With Optical Device

NEW YORK (UPI) — Using a very thin tube fitted with an optical system, researchers at Yale University Medical School are able to take a close look at fetuses in the womb, it was reported Tuesday.

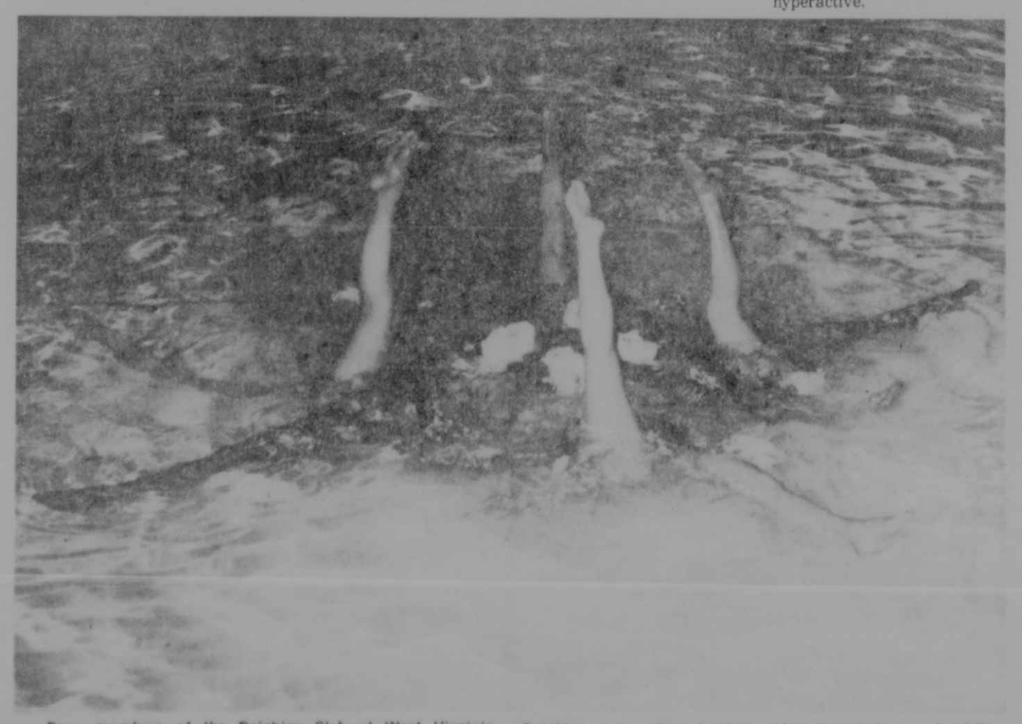
Dr. Maurice Jeremiah Mahoney, an associate professor of human genetics, reported at a seminar for science writers it is possible to see facial features, view sex organs and count fingers and toes.

In 10 years, he predicted, the state of fetal diagnosis will advance to the point it will be possible for a doctor to put a hand in the uterus and position the fetus for surgical procedures to correct defects.

"It is reasonable to say this will happen," Mahoney said at the seminar, sponsored by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, the Society for Pediatric Resarch and other pediatric groups.

In 5 percent of the cases, Mahoney reported, a miscarriage is induced and the outcome is fatal to the fetus.

Another Yale scientist, Dr. Norman S. Talner, said sound waves aimed at fetuses are making it possible to "image" tiny developing hearts — watch them working and even see the little valves opening and closing.



Nearly four dozen fetuses have been studied this way as doctors look for cardiac abnormalities during the second or third trimester.

The pioneer work at Yale has turned up one case of congenital complete heart block in a 28-week-old fetus, Talner said.

Dr. Sally E. Shaywitz reported alcohol ingestion in large quantities during pregnancy may leave a child with neurological damage.

She said one or two one-ounce drinks should be the limit.

Her studies at the Learning Disorder Center at Yale shows children damaged by alcohol during pregnancy appear to do poorly in school and are hyperactive.

Four members of the Dolphins Club at West Virginia University performed various routines such as the one above to help entertain members of Delta Kappa Gamma Society during the annual convention at The Village Inn this past weekend. The Dolphins now number about 30, and perform twice yearly at the University and for various other events when asked. Theme Friday evening was "Science Fiction."

Guerrillas Attack U.N. Peace Force

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Palestinian guerrillas attacked the field headquarters of French U.N. peace-keeping forces in Tyre, climaxing a day of clashes that left as many as nine people dead. Both sides warned of worse fighting ahead.

The battles Tuesday marked the third and worst day of fighting between Arab guerrillas and U.N. forces pledged to keep them from infiltrating to the border and attacking Israel.

"We're not anti-Palestinian or anti-Israeli or anti-anyobdy," Col. Jean Menegaux, the French spokesman, said in Tyre. "We made it clear that we are going to fulfill the U.N. mandate — which means keeping armed men out ... it seems this is going to continue, and there will be further dead."

But a spokesman for the leftist Lebanese militia countered: "We warn these forces not to oppose us again. Let this be a threat."

In separate fighting, Palestinians in the port of Sidon, north of Tyre, battled Syrian troops from the Arab League force that ended the Lebanese civil war. Four people died in that fighting, which erupted from a personal quarrel, reporters at the scene said.

In a third incident, a bomb planted in an car near a crowded cafe wounded as many as 40 people in the northern Lebanese town of Zghorta, home of former Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh.

Reports from French officials and diplomats in Beirut differed from a later version of the fighting supplied by a spokesman at U.N. hedquarters in New York.

The Beirut reports said that as many as nine people were killed during the day on both sides. The spokesman in New York said one French soldier died, five were missing and seven were wounded, including the French commander, Col. Jean Salvan.

Salvan was reported in serious condition in a Beirut hosptial.

The flare-up came two days after Israeli forces turned over 220 square miles of south Lebanon to the United Nations troops and withdrew to a "security line" 3 to 6 miles inside Lebanon.

The French opened fire on guerrillas seeking to cross U.N. lines in at least two separate incidents around Tyre, and Senegalese U.N. troops fired on two guerrillas in a third incident, U.N. officials in Beirut said.

The attack on the French barracks, reportedly by guerrillas firing machine guns mounted on speeding jeeps, followed at least one of these clashes.

"Palestinian elements opened fire on the French United Nations' troops in the Tyre barracks and in the city of Tyre," the spokesman in New York said. "The French troops .. returned the fire" in an exchange lasted for half an hour. Six French soldiers were wounded and one of them died two hours later.

Secretary General Kurt Waldheim issued a statement in New York that said he was "profoundly concerned" about the attacks and "deeply anxious about the fate of those still missing.

Waldheim dispatched the U.N. force commander, Maj. Gen. Emmanuel Erskine of Ghana, who was in New York for a Security Council meeting, back to Lebanon.

The U.N. spokesman in New York said trouble began when Palestinian troops fired at a French vehicle 2 miles northeast of Tyre. Beirut reports said the U.N. forces intercepted guerrillas trying to slip through their lines.

Italian Leaders May Try Exchange For Moro Release

ROME (UPI) — Government and political leaders today debated a secret Socialist Party proposal for a "humanitarian gesture" that might induce the Red Brigades terrorists to release kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro.

A Red Brigades' lawyer said the gang's demand that 13 of their jailed comrades be released in exchange for Moro's life was "open to negotiation," but he was vague about what type of compromise would be accepted.

The Socialists put their "humanitarian" plan before the ruling Christian Democrats during a five-hour meeting that broke up after midnight.

Christian Democratic Party Vice Secretary Giovanni Galloni said the Socialist plan was "based on a humanitarian hypothesis that would not offend the fundamental principles of the constitution and of the law.

"The proposal will be closely analyzed by us, by the other parties and, because of certain technical aspects, by the government, and therefore we reserve any final judgment," he said.

Galloni refused to reveal the Socialists' plan, but said "in the abstract, it seems practicable. In reality, we'll have to see case-by-case."

"The Christian Democrats asked us if we had any precise proposals and we showed them that on this question our ideas are certainly not imprecise," Craxi said, a grin spreading over his face.

The Socialists, who earlier condemned the government as "a bunch of cheap hawks" for their hard-line, "no-deals" stance toward the Red Brigades, have been severely criticized by other parties for suggesting that something be done to appease the terrorist gang.

Moro, 61, kidnapped 49 days ago by a commando team that gunned down his five bodyguards, has written 14 letters from captivity begging the government to agree to the Red Brigades demands.

The gang twice has threatened to "execute" the five-time premier unless the Red Brigades prisoners are released.

In Genoa, Red Brigades' lawyer Giannino Guiso said the gang's demand that 13 jailed comrades be released in exchange for Moro was "open to negotiation."

"The negotiations must be based on the liberation of prisoners in exchange for another prisoner (Moro)," Guiso said. "But how many and which prisoners should be released — that's open to negotiation."

U.S. Citizen Is Freed From East German Prison

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Alan Van Norman, who spent nine months in an East German jail after he failed to help a family escape to the West, returned to his hometown of Windom, Minn., Tuesday night.

The 22-year-old college student was part of a three-way international prisoner exchange.

"I plan to go home, play with the kids and walk the dog," Van Norman said, with a smile, at an airport news conference.

For the time being, he indicated, his involvement with international politics is over.

Van Norman, tall, thin, bespectacled, was part of an international swap that also involved a Soviet spy and may lead to Moscow's release of Jewish dissident Anatoly Shcharansky.

Van Norman tried to help a physician and his family escape East Germany last summer. He said he was first approached about the matter in 1976 when he was in Europe. Things did not work out at the time and he was flown back to Europe the following year. All he received, he said, was his air fare there.

He was arrested in Gera, East Germany, on Aug. 2, 1977, when police discovered the doctor, his wife and child hidden in the trunk of his car. He was sentenced to 2¼ years in prison.

"It was not a question of money," Van Norman said. "I felt very sorry for them. They are now in prison and still haven't been tried.

The East Germans traded Van Norman for Robert G. Thompson, who was sentenced in 1965 to 30 years in prison for spying for the Russians. Thompson was released from the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., Sunday and flown to West Berlin, then taken to East Berlin.

Van Norman, quiet and collected after a 12-hour flight from London, said, "I'm really glad to be here."

He planned to go home to Windom, 130 miles southwest of Minneapolis, and later will return to Concordia College at Moorhead, Minn.

His mother, Mildred, had met him in West Berlin. His father, Donald, was waiting at the airport.

This is a moped.
It's called a Puch (which rhymes with book).
And, if the guy who invented the wheel could see it we think he'd be mighty proud of what Puch's done with his handiwork.
The Puch has pedals like a bicycle and a motor like your motorboat. Which means it can whip you around town in great style without worrying about things like being out of breath, or cardiac arrest.
Remember the sports car you had? It's that kind of fun.
The upkeep is low. And if you ride it 1500 miles next year your fuel bill will be about $15!
Come on in, ride one, and see for yourself: it's been a long time since this much fun made this much sense.

Faith Begins With Crayons

Copyright 1978 Keister Advertising Service, Strasburg, Virginia
Scriptures selected by The American Bible Society

Remember? Arithmetic began with apples. I had one. You gave me one. Then how many did I have?

So don't be surprised that Faith begins with crayons!

And never forget that in this free land your government compells only secular education. Rightly, it leaves the religious education of your children up to you.

From the first halting strokes with the crayon to the eager use of the Bible as a guide for life, the Church is your ally in the spiritual development of your child's soul.

But the compulsion must come from within . . . from your convictions . . . from your determination that your child may share your Faith.

Wise parents find their children's crying need for religious training a happy incentive for their own church life.

THE AGE OF MIRACLES

Lesson for May 7, 1978

Background Scripture:
Acts 9:32-43
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 35:3-10

When I was a young pastor I would just as soon avoid passages of scripture like the story of Simon Peter raising Dorcas from death at Joppa. I found the concept of miracles unsettling. Oh, to be sure, I could have explained this story with the idea that Dorcas had not really been dead, but only seemed dead. Thus, we might reason that Peter did not bring her back to life, but only revived her from a coma or loss of consciousness. Of course, the writer of Acts did not say that she only seemed dead; he definitely said that she had "died."

Rev. Althouse

But Peter prayed

Another loophole would have been the oft-repeated idea that the age of miracles was limited to the Biblical period that ended with the completion of the New Testament. Now that is a tidy little explanation, except that it doesn't stand up under examination. There is nowhere in the New Testament where it is suggested that the age of miracles is to be limited in time. Quite the contrary. Jesus indicated that his followers would do even greater works than he.

So, caught on the horns of those two dilemmas, I generally tried to skip over such passages. If I couldn't reconcile them, at least I could ignore them!

In those days I saw these stories as being quite contrary to the principles of science. Confident that a scientific view of the world left no place for miracles, I avoided the question as best I could. Today, however, I no longer find miracles contrary to science. Our scientific worldview has changed greatly since I was a young man. We have had to change radically our view of what is and is not possible. Today, instead of being smug about how much we know about our natural world, we tend to be more humble in the face of what we don't know.

Today I do not find it difficult to believe that Peter prayed and Dorcas was restored to life. Nor do I find it hard to believe that God is still performing mighty works like that today.

Many believed

One reason is that I have seen people healed by the power of faith before my own eyes. I have spoken with people who "died" (were pronounced clinically "dead") and were resuscitated back to life by their physician. I do not find it hard to believe that what Peter did with Dorcas in restoring her to life, Christ's followers can do today as well.

Miracles are not really contrary to science. I have realized, only contrary to what we know of science. They represent an area of reality that is still largely unknown to us. But just because something is unknown, doesn't mean it isn't real or cannot happen. If science has taught us anything, it is that we should never say "never." The age of miracles is not over.

HYPERTENSION DOES NOT JUST GO AWAY

One of the most difficult things about high blood pressure is that not only can it be there without any special symptoms, but that there is as yet no cure for the disease. Undetected, it can wreck havoc with your body, silently killing you without your knowing it.

But fortunately, high blood pressure is relatively easy to find and once found, it can be treated effectively with diet and medication. No it's not going to just go away but while it's there, you can still be comfortable and lead a normal life.

Farmers Offered Payments To Divert Feed Grain Crops

Maryland farmers who participate in the 1978 Feed Grain Set-aside Program can receive payments for voluntarily diverting additional acreage, Paul A. Crowl, Chairperson of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, reported. The regular ten percent feed grain set-aside provisions remain unchanged.

"The additional diverted acreage must equal 10 percent of the 1978 acreage of each crop of corn, grain sorghum and barley planted for harvest," Crowl said. Also, the 1978 acreage of each crop may not exceed the 1977 acreage of that crop.

The payment for corn will be $.20 per bushel times the farm yield established for corn, times the actual corn acreage planted for harvest. The diversion payment for barley and grain sorghum will be $.12 per bushel, applying the same farm yield and planted acreage computations.

Crowl said farmers will receive one-half the payment when they sign up. "The 1978 acreage of NCA crops, required set-aside, voluntary diversion, and any wheat grazing and hay acreage for payment cannot exceed the farm's normal crop acreage," Crowl said.

Maryland producers signed into the set-aside Program as of April 24, totals 1450 plus. This shows an increase of approximately 51 percent over the previous week's sign-up. Sign-up has been extended from May 1 to May 15.

For more information on voluntary diversion of any or all of the feed grain crops, persons should contact the local county ASCS office.

MDT Planning To Sell Refunding Bonds On May 16

The Maryland Department of Transportation intends to sell refunding bonds on or about May 16, 1978 to refund ten separate issues of its County Highway Construction and County Transportation Bonds totalling in principal amount, $153,685,000.

The department anticipates that the refunding program will result in savings in the effective cost of debt service; however, the exact amount of savings will not be known until the refunding bonds have been sold. Savings will be allocated to each participating county and to Baltimore City in proportion to its amount of participation in the refunded bond issues.

The department has retained the investment banking firm of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., Incorporated as its financial advisor to develop the refunding program. The sale of the bond issue and the allocations of the resulting savings will be made by the department in accordance with the refunding program developed by the financial advisor and approved by the department.

The department intends to offer the bonds to an underwriting syndicate for whom Alex. Brown & Sons; Wertheim & Company, Incorporated; and Baker, Watts & Company are acting as managers.

the ROCKPILE

by Cathy Helbig

In 1893, a gentleman who thrashed a man for annoying some lady bathers was fined $50 by the local court, but the ladies of the neighborhood at once collected money among themselves and presented him with a gold scarf pin set with diamonds and a check for $150.00.

Public schools that year were scheduled to close on March 17, while "schools not having made full time will be allowed to run one week longer." Kids, compare that date to the last day of your school term!

The gallows upon which John Brown and his confederates were hanged at Charles Town, W. Va., in 1859, "has been found stored in a garret in Washington, and it will be put together and taken to the World's Fair. It ought to be put in Mrs. Jarley's Chamber of Horrors." The World's Fair, in 1893, was held in Chicago.

The new postmaster "supposedly" made and sent the new rules to the Post Office Department. These "new rules," and their creditability, could be debated: "The placing of stamps upside down on letters is prohibited. Several postmasters have recently been seriously injured while trying to stand on their heads to cancel stamps placed in this manner;" "Persons are compelled to lick their own stamps and envelopes; the postmaster cannot be compelled to do this."; "Ducks cannot be sent through the mail when alive. The quacking would disturb the slumbers of the clerks on the postal cars."; "John Smith gets his mail from 674,279 post offices, hence a letter directed to John Smith, United States, will reach him."

An editor, tired of getting no response from his delinquent subscribers, came up with a brilliant idea. He publishes their obituary on the theory that they must be dead. "It has caused a big stirring up, but the cash is rolling in."

An "interesting character" is the way a news item spoke of Brooks, the head waiter of the Oakland Hotel: "For almost 18 years he had the charge of a staff of waiters in the Arlington in Washington and had the privilege of waiting upon such distinguished officials as Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland, Harrison, King Kalakana, the Emporer and Empress of Brazil, the Grand Duke Alexis, Joseph Chamberlain and others of equal note."

Finally, I would like to mention a little political item I found in the papers of 1893 which could be equally true in 1978: "Wouldn't you feel very different if the President and the Congress were Republican — honest Injun?"

Miss Gilpin Is Easter Bride Of Thomas F. Diehl In Grantsville

Miss Brenda L. Gilpin became the bride of Thomas F. Diehl on Easter Sunday, March 26, at Christ Lutheran Church, Grantsville.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. David E. Fetter. Linda Bittinger was vocalist and organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis E. Gilpin, Rt. 2, Swanton. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Diehl, Grantsville.

Escorted to the altar by her brother, Larry C. Gilpin, Sr. and given in marriage by her brother and parents, the bride wore a full-length gown of cotton and Venise lace. The sweet-heart neckline was edged with Venise lace.

The A-line gown was accented by an empire waistline with lace adorning the long sleeves. A crown-shaped headpiece covered with Venise lace held the fingertip, sheer illusion veil.

The bride carried a cascade of light and dark pink roses. The maid of honor, Carol A. Gilpin, Hyattsville, cousin of the bride, wore a turquoise gown and carried a nosegay of yellow roses.

Keith Beachy, Grantsville, was the best man. Ushers were Irvin Bennett, Lonaconing, and Mark Diehl, Grantsville.

The reception immediately followed in the social room of the church with approximately 120 people attending.

The three-tiered wedding cake was served by the bride's sister-in-law, Robyn Gilpin. Serving at the punch bowl was Debbie Rinker, cousin of the bride. Francis Sweitzer, aunt of the bride, served the ice cream, and serving the coffee was Robin Diane Gilpin, cousin of the bride.

As the bride and groom opened their gifts, they were recorded by the groom's sister, Mrs. Judy Sebold.

The couple traveled to Deep Creek Lake for their honeymoon.

The bride is a junior at Southern High School and the groom is a 1976 graduate of Northern High School and he is employed at Yoder's Locker Plant.

Sign-Up Deadline Is Extended For Maryland Farmers

Maryland farmers wishing to participate in the Feed Grain and/or Wheat Programs will have an additional two weeks to sign up, Paul Crowl, an official of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, announced this week.

Mr. Crowl said that Secretary of Agriculture, Bob Bergland, was extending the sign-up period for the program from May 1 through May 15 because of changes announced March 29 in the program. On that date, Secretary Bergland authorized additional diversion of cropland under the Cotton and Feed Grain Programs and permitted Wheat Program participants to graze out their wheat or harvest hay on a percentage of their planted acreage.

PET POINTERS

by jim willis

With the mosquito season fast approaching, the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association today urged dog owners to be on the alert for canine heartworm disease.

The disease, transmitted by mosquitoes, is serious and potentially fatal to dogs.

It is caused by long white worms, which reach a length of six to fourteen inches and live in the right side of the heart and adjacent large blood vessels. An infected dog may have several hundred of them in its system.

Until recently, heartworm disease was considered to be a problem only in warm climates, but in the past few years it has spread to almost all mosquito-infected areas of the United States. An increasing number of cases is being found in Maryland, according to the veterinary association.

Most dogs can be successfully treated if the disease is detected early.

The only way to detect the disease is through a blood test. A veterinarian, using relatively simple diagnostic procedure, can usually detect the tiny heartworm microfilariae in an infected dog's blood but, occasionally, an infected dog will have adult heartworms but no microfilariae. In such cases an x-ray examination and other laboratory tests are needed to confirm heartworm infection.

Signs of heartworm disease that dog owners are most likely to notice include frequent coughing, sluggishness, rapid tiring and labored breathing.

In treatment of the disease, the adult worms are killed with a drug given through a series of carefully administered injections. There is always some risk in this, veterinarians caution, but fatal reactions are rare among dogs that are otherwise in good health.

Although no vaccine is available for the disease, veterinary research has developed two means of preventing infection. One method consists of giving small daily doses of a drug that keeps the infective larvae from developing into adult worms. The other method employs injection of a drug every six months to destroy any worms that may be developing.

Maryland dog owners are urged to consult with their veterinarian about regular heartworm examinations and preventive procedures.

Reprinted from a Maryland Veterinary Medical Association release.

May Is Proclaimed Older Marylanders Month In Maryland

Older Marylanders Month in May has been proclaimed by Acting Governor Blair Lee. The gubernatorial proclamation was issued at a formal ceremony in the State House in Annapolis, according to an announcement this week by Dr. Matthew Tayback, State Director on Aging.

Traditionally, Older Marylanders Month is a time used by State and local officials and agencies and the private sector to honor older Marylanders for their achievements and to open new opportunities for improving the well-being of the elderly.

Dr. Tayback explained that Maryland's celebration is part of the nationwide "Older Americans Month" which has been proclaimed for the past sixteen years. The Director said that many activities have been scheduled for May to focus attention on the many contributions made by the elderly in Maryland.

Participating in the ceremony with the Acting Governor and Dr. Tayback were State Senator Margaret C. Schweinhaut, Chairman of the State Commission on Aging, Delegate Pauline Menes of Prince George's County, a member of the Commission on Aging, Mrs. Betty Hamburger, President of the Maryland Advocates for the Aging, Rodney Crowther, President of the Montgomery County Association of Senior Citizen Organizations and Col. L. F. Goyette, Legislative Representative for the National Association of Retired Federal Employees.

Acting Governor Lee signed the proclamation which declared that "the insight, experience, wisdom and courage of our older citizens have contributed beyond measure to the past achievements of our State and nation."

In addition, the proclamation called on all Marylanders to reflect upon the needs and contributions of the State's older citizens.

Scouts See Free Fall Parachutists

Scouts from Potomac District attending a weekend Spring Camporee at Larenim Park, near Burlington, W. Va., were entertained by three free fall parachute jumpers April 29.

The three were military free fall specialists of the West Virginia Army National Guard, who parachute with tactical manuevers as "Green Berets" of elite Special Forces.

The men jumped from a UH-1-D from 7,500 and pulled their ripcords at 2,500 feet.

The special performance was arranged by Tom Bittinger, Scoutmaster of Troop 99, sponsored by Proctor-Kildow Post 71, American Legion in Oakland.

Known as "Halo Team One," the National Guard Parachute group is composed of Staff Sergeants Dale C. Jones, Joseph F. Schmidle and David L. Bonnittee, all residents of Kingwood assigned to Special Forces section at Camp Dawson in Preston County, W. Va.

The local scouts were able to examine the helicopter when it landed and talk with the aircraft crewmen and parachutists.

Dieting is one of those fads that's here to stay. All across the nation men and women are trying to shed a few pounds.

Unfortunately weight watchers are not always successful, partially because they have the wrong idea. They assume that celery is the key to a slim attractive figure. However, celery stuffed with chocolate cake is not all that effective.

Some people refuse to diet. They take solace in the fact that some of the world's most important people are, or were, fat. Winston Churchill, Pearl Bailey, Totie Fields, Minnesotta Fats, Racquel Welch. Racquel Welch?! — well maybe she is a bit overweight in some areas, but I like the distribution.

There are some people who don't realize they're fat. If you can answer yes to any of these questions you are fat:

Do you order your clothes from Omar the Tentmaker? Have you laid on the beach and someone phoned in a whale sighting? Do you fall through the floor of your neighbor's Volkswagen? Do you have to buy two airline tickets when you fly? Do your friends invite you to parties so they can show home movies on your back? When you step on an insect does it disappear? When you crawl into bed does your wife bounce through the ceiling? Do you wipe out the cookie section of the grocery store when you shop? Do your children use your old brassieres as a two-seater hammock? If so, you're not fat — you are obese.

Watching someone on a diet is really entertaining. The dieter develops a whole series of strange maneuvers to avoid thinking about fattening foods — like diving under the table everytime the dessert cart goes by.

Diets also turn people into liars. The dieter tells everyone at the office that he's going to take a diet pill, and then you hear him munching Oreos in the stockroom.

Dieters also subconciously eat anything that touches their lips — similar to a Venus Fly Trap. A calorie conscious girl in our office is forever losing her pens, she also has a habit of chewing on her pens. I think I know what happens to the pens.

On the other hand, being underweight can be just as bad. I know. Whenever I ride on a subway someone always stands there holding onto my neck. I don't dare wear the hood up on my sweatshirt because a strong headwind could drag me down the street. In desperation I ordered a miracle cure called "Wate-On," — they sent me a pair of lead-weighted diver's boots. If that wasn't enough, people are constantly mistaking me for a survivor of the Donner party.

Wouldn't it be nice if Dr. Christian Bernard could perform a successful fat transplant?

"Customers can help in reviewing their listings and calling us with any changes they want before May 5," said Nancy Nemith, local manager for C&P.

February Gasoline Consumption Less Than Last Year

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reported late last week that gasoline consumption in the State during February 1978 was actually less than the gasoline usage during February 1977. "This is one of the few times since the Arab Oil Embargo that gasoline use in a current month has been less than use for the same month of the previous year," Mr. Goldstein said.

Motorists consumed 147,391,384 gallons of gasoline during February 1978, compared with the 150,284,769 gallons used during February 1977. "Gasoline use in January 1978 was only one-tenth of one percent more than it was the previous January, indicating the possibility of a genuine conservation trend developing in Maryland," Comptroller Goldstein said.

Despite the decline in gasoline consumption, State Motor Vehicle Fuel Tax revenue for March 1978, reflecting February sales, rose 3.36 percent to $14,182,394. "The increased revenue can be traced to a 35.75 percent increase in February 1978 tax collections from the sale of diesel fuel and a 42.34 percent increase in revenue from the road tax on motor carriers, paid by trucking companies," Mr. Goldstein said.

For the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978, Motor Vehicle Fuel Tax revenue amounts to $145,248,523, up from the $140,529,555 collected during the same period last year. A total of $142,526,063 has been distributed to the Transportation Trust Fund of the Maryland Department of Transportation during the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978. Part of this money is redistributed to local subdivisions.

POPULAR CULTURE:

Mirror of American Life XV:

CREATORS OF OUR OWN CULTURE? Technological developments, such as this RCA video cassette recorder, may provide greater individuality in our culture. Features include: (1) optional camera which allows production of home shows, (2) speed switch which allows up to four hours recording time, (3) remote pause control, (4) tape counter with memory, (5) electronic digital clock/timer for unattended recording, (6) optional microphone, (7) cassettes with four-hour recording capacity.

This is the last in a series of 15 articles exploring "Popular Culture: Mirror of American Life." In this article, Alvin Toffler, author of "Future Shock" and "The Culture Consumers," discusses the probable trend toward the demassification of the mass media in our popular culture. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

THE DEATH OF THE MASS MEDIA?

By Alvin Toffler

Are we witnessing the death of the mass media?

Starting nearly 200 years ago, the media — newspapers, magazines, radio, television, and the movies — have increasingly influenced daily life in all the industrial nations. Filling our ears with mass-produced music, our eyes with mass-produced graphics, and our minds with mass-produced folk tales about football heroes and Hollywood stars, they form the sea of popular culture in which all of us swim.

Their basic principle was simple: Like a factory that stamped out products, they stamped out images, then disseminated them. Sets of images, carefully engineered by professional writers, editors, artists, newscasters, actors or copywriters, were packaged into programs, articles, or films, and then pumped wholesale into the mind-stream of the nation, or for that matter, the world.

The result was a standardization of the culture of the world's industrial societies, the homogenization of ideas, values, and life styles. The mass media helped create what sociologists came to call "mass society."

The Ladies Home Journal, for example, was the world's first truly mass magazine, achieving a circulation of around one million at the turn of the century. When the LHJ carried an article on how to decorate your living room, it influenced taste (and furniture sales) from California to New England, helping in this way to create a national market for standardized, mass manufactured goods.

Even today, the mass media retain enormous mind-shaping power.

Signs Of The Future

Nevertheless, there are signs that the mass media are in their death throes and that a revoluntionary new information system is being born. What we are witnessing is nothing less than the demassification of the mass media.

Since the 1950s some of the world's largest magazines — Life, Look, and the Saturday Evening Post, to name a few — have died or shrunk into ghostly reincarnations of their former selves. Some media gurus declared that this was because people were no longer reading, that television produced a "post-literate" generation.

Yet after a decade or more of so-called post-literacy, people are reading as much as, if not more than, ever before. Ask the publishers. People are reading. But their word-diet is no longer limited to standardized messages aimed at a universal, mass audience. The place of the great mega-magazines has increasingly been taken by hundreds of mini-magazines carrying highly specialized messages to small segments of the public.

On one newsstand in Omaha, not long ago, I found 15 different magazines aimed at aviation enthusiasts alone. In addition, the stands are filled with cheaply produced, offset printed, specialized magazines for hot-rodders, scuba-divers, ecologists, collectors of antique cameras, UFO freaks, religious cultists, political splinter groups, ethnic subcultures, businesses, professions, and for every age group from toddlers to those in their "golden years."

Regionalism Revived

Long before we had national magazines at all, we had regional and local magazines that reflected the regional and local basis of our technology and economy. As technology grew more powerful, and national markets emerged, these local and regional publications disappeared and the national magazine took their place.

Today, we see a revival of regional and local publications in every part of the country. There are even magazines that slice up the reading public two ways at once: by region and by interest. Thus we find, for example, South, a magazine aimed exclusively at Southern businessmen.

What does all this mean? The death of the mass-interest magazines heralds a basic change in our popular culture. The decline of the mass magazines and the proliferation of specialized magazines means that fewer standardized, culture-wide messages are flowing into our minds, and that more specialized messages are reaching different sub-groups within the society. This is accelerating the breakup of the old mass society and the formation of a new social, political, and cultural diversity.

With the arrival of cheap copying machines, as media critic Marshall McLuhan has suggested, every individual can be his or her own "publisher," and we are now freely circulating images, messages, signs, and symbols to very small groups, indeed. The Xeroxed Christmas message that goes to family and friends is an example of this form of "personalized" publishing. It represents the ultimate de-massification of the mass media.

Sound Factories

But parallel trends are racing through the audio media as well. Take, for example, the tape recorder. The radio broadcaster operates a "sound factory" distributing the same sounds to millions of ears simultaneously. The tape recorder makes each of us a broadcaster, or more accurately, a narrow-caster. We choose what we wish to record, of all the sounds around us, and we can duplicate them and pass them around to friends or through chain-letters, if we like.

Radio, putting us in the position of passive listener, and carrying messages from the few to the many, is inherently undemocratic. Tape recorders are inherently democratic. (Soviet dissidents — poets and singers who cannot get on the state-controlled airwaves — pass messages along the tape-vine).

Television remains today the great standardizing medium, and Barbara Walters can still command $1 million a year because it is thought she can maximize the mass audience for her network. But television is still a primitive technology. (We mistakenly think TV is more "advanced" than printing, but it has gone through fewer successive generations of improvement).

As we move toward wider use of cable and video cassette, the number of channels and the number of different messages will rise, just as it is already doing in both print and oral communications. Here, too, we shall increasingly generate images, ideas, and symbols to be shared by a few, rather than by the culture as a whole.

De-Massification

These changes in our media and in our popular culture reflect even deeper shifts in our society. Industrialism produced a mass society. We are now swiftly moving beyond industrialism to a new stage of civilization that will be technological, but not industrial. This new society will be the mass society de-massified.

We see this de-massification taking place at many levels. We see it in the rise of ethnic consciousness, in the rise of secessionism in Quebec, Scotland, or Brittany, in the breakup of monolithic Communism into nationally oriented Marxist movements, in the growing sectionalism in the United States, and in many other social, political, and artistic manifestations.

This centrifugal process will undoubtedly bring with it many problems. But it will also open vast new opportunities for us to reach toward greater individuality.

Popular culture, instead of being mass-machined at a few centers, then mass-distributed to passive culture consumers, will take on a new richness and variety, as we become producers as well as consumers of our own imagery and symbolism, our own values and lifestyles.

Surely some powerful national mass media will survive this long-term shift. No doubt there will continue to be some national or even global hook-ups to spread certain important ideas, news, and metaphors simultaneously to us all.

But instead of getting most of our popular culture from the mass media in pre-packaged form, as it were, we will increasingly design and create our own culture, as communities did in the distant, pre-industrial past. We are moving swiftly into the future.

We are about to witness the death of the mass media as we have known them.

Sportsmen Agree To Support Coal Mining Coalition

Members of the Allegany-Garrett Sportsmen's Association agreed to support positions taken by the Citizens Coalition on Surface Mining at the April 18 meeting of the Association, held at the Barrelville Sportsmen's clubhouse.

The Association also voted to donate $10 to the Coalition.

In other business, the group decided to recommend to Lonnie Bray, of the Western Maryland Wildlife Federation, that either Allegany Community College or Frostburg State College be listed as acceptable locations to hold annual DNR public hearings in the western Maryland region.

Bob Abraham, of the DNR extension service office at Naves Crossroads, noted that trout stocking in the two counties is now on schedule, after having been slightly behind schedule in some Garrett County streams earlier this spring. Mr. Abraham also suggested that interested parties contact the appropriate fisheries department officials at this time to arrange for fish deliveries to conduct local fishing rodeo events.

He then urged sportsmen, as a group or individually, to become involved in the Save Our Streams program, sponsored by the Isaac Walton League and the DNR, and noted that information is available at his Naves Crossroads office.

Secretary Dennis Tompkins informed members that the DNR proposed muzzle-loader season with flintlock rifles only has been amended by passage of a House bill to provide for the use of percussion rifles also.

President Charles Emerick read DNR newsletters urging participation in the "Maryland Acres for Wildlife" program, designed to combat the loss of upland wildlife habitat, and another concerning the opening of the two-week spring gobbler season April 24.

The next meeting was scheduled May 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the Eckhart Square Circle Club. At that meeting votes will be taken on Association bylaw changes.

Membership dues are now past due for those clubs which have neglected to mail their $3 annual membership fees. Dues should be sent to treasurer C. C. Pete Myers, Winchester Road, Cumberland.

EPA Blocks Sterling Water Recycling Project

By Carol Canan

What started out as an example to industrialists in conservation and recycling of water at the Sterling Processing plant in Oakland has turned out to be an example indeed — but of bureaucratic buckpassing boondoggle.

After seven years of EPA testing supervision, that agency cannot see its way clear to grant approval to use recycled water in the processing of chickens, despite statements from top U. S. experts declaring the water not only fit for use, but among some of the finest water in the U. S.

How can it be that recycled water certified as "potable," i.e., safe for human consumption, and then mixed 50-50 with well water cannot be used to process chickens? The somewhat obscure answer lies with the structure of government regulatory agencies, their redtape, and their reluctance to commit themselves to a final decision.

In spite of the desperate need for workable solutions to the problem of conserving and recycling water, EPA will not give the go-ahead for use of water.

Vice president Gilman Sylvester takes a drink of the water EPA will not certify as safe for drinking. Sterling's recycled water must now be the most tested water in the U. S., and so far no one has given the least indication the water would be unsafe either for drinking or for cleaning chickens.

The recycling project began in January seven years ago, with the groundbreaking for a building to house machinery for recycling. Shortly before this time, the town of Oakland had notified the processing plant that it could not supply water for a second shift and that what was being used on the first shift would have to be doubled in cost.

Vice President Gilman Sylvester requested of the town council that water continue to be supplied at the current rate plus additional water for a second shift, with the provision that Sterling initiate a water conservation program, plus agree to build its own water treatment plant plus a sewage treatment facility.

At a later date, Sterling decided to cooperate in a pilot project to build a plant to treat the effluent being discharged to the Little Yough River in a way that at least 50% could be recycled back to a potable supply.

The plant would consist of a 300-gallon per minute double filtration system, to have a total cost of $204,000 with $146,000 from EPA, the remainder furnished by the State Health Department and Sterling. Costs of the construction now amount to well over a half million dollars, of which $100,000, is from Sterling.

Sterling already had a waste treatment plant which was 95 to 99% effective. The system would recirculate secondary waste effluent from the discharge point of the second aerated lagoon where the water had been treated three weeks before being run through the new filtration system and returned back to the first lagoon rather than being returned to the water treatment plant as a raw supply due to EPAs procrastinations.

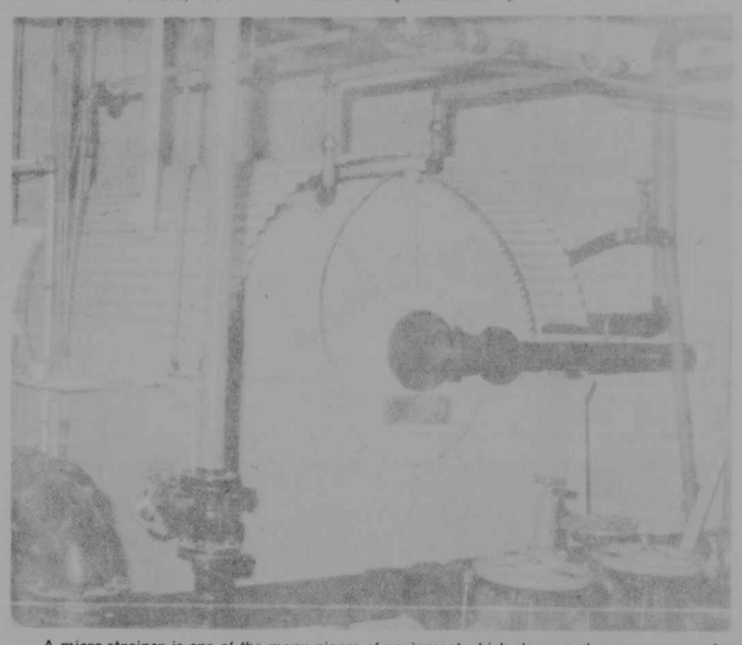
Phase three, where the project is stalled, would combine recycled water and well water as Sterling's raw supply with one final additional treatment in Sterling's water plant.

The plant was duly constructed under the watchful eyes of prime regulatory agencies for the meat and poultry industry. The project was supervised all these years by the Environmental Protection Agency and Maryland's Environmental Health Administration. To satisfy EPA that the water would be safe for reuse, that office spent an additional $113,000 to finance further studies of the water by one of the nation's top water quality experts, Dr. Julian Andelman, of the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Andelman tested and retested the water, and certified that the water is safe to use, posing no threat to public health. The Maryland State Health Department handed down the same opinion.

But now the blockage, the inanity and futility of it all. Since EPA had requested the additional funds and tests, and had posed so many questions about the potability of the recycled water, the USDA said it would require the EPA office of Water Supply to also certify the water as potable.

In what is surely the most frustrating illustration of backpedaling imaginable, EPA stated that it had no objection to the use of the recycled water in the plant, yet it would not certify that the water is potable. They say, among many buckpassing remarks, that the EPA definition of potability is based on the use of raw water, not recycled water, even though the recycled water may be of superior quality than raw water.



And, without this statement from EPA, the USDA, prime regulatory agency for the food industry, will not permit the use of the recycled water in the plant.

To continue its circle of frustration, EPA is unable to cite anything specific about the recycled water that causes their reluctance to certify it as potable. They have said that there MAY be some unknown qualities in the water which might suggest that it should not be used as drinking water, although it is safe to use to wash chickens.

The nebulous unknown qualities were not tested for by Dr. Andelman, says EPA, because the knowledge of water quality research has changed since his findings were reported.

If this were not ridiculous enough, EPA said it could not conduct more research on the water to answer whatever questions it might now have about the water which prevent it from certifying the water as potable, because it could not formulate the questions needed to conduct further research. In fact, questions could not be posed because not enough was known about whatever it may be EPA wants to research further. And besides, EPA reasons, by the time additional research was conducted and finished, EPA would have still additional questions to pose based on further developments in the field. In other words, EPA will probably never state that recycled water is potable regardless of the findings of expert after expert.

In September, funding for the project ran out. What can and is being done? Congressman Goodloe E. Byron and his staff have devoted much time to researching the project. Congressman Byron had formally requested Congress not to fund any of EPAs water quality research unless the Committee report specifically directs the EPA to take all necessary steps to enable the use of recycled water in Oakland's plant.

A micro-strainer is one of the many pieces of equipment which cleans and re-processes water so that it can be used safely for chicken processing at Sterling. Despite seven years of efforts by Sterling and cooperating government agencies, the EPA cannot bring forth any concrete decision on the use of the water for the plant.

Congressman Byron noted that his request was based on past actions of EPA — especially in light of the Sterling project, which have not shown that agency capable of wise spending of funds. The authorization for fiscal year 1978 for research in water recycling and other drinking water research programs was $25 million. The budget request for fiscal 1979 is $10.9 million.

And EPA is now making statements that America in the future may have to turn to water recycling and reuse as a way of conserving water supplies and meeting strict water pollution control standards. Can you imagine the whole U. S. in the same predicament as Sterling? "Yes, the water is certified safe, but no, you cannot use it." Perhaps most EPA rules are not "Potable."

Maryland Children In Title I Programs Attain Higher Achievement Levels

For the second consecutive year, Maryland children who participated in federal education programs for the disadvantaged grew in reading skills at a faster rate than the national norm.

A report issued by the State Department of Education on Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act shows that last year, second grade students gained 11.3 months in reading and third grade students gained 11.8 months. These average rates of growth were made during 10 months of instruction.

Average growth for Title I children was substantially lower in 1971, when second graders grew 6.6 months and third graders gained 8.1 months for 10 months of instruction. If continued, an evaluation specialist with the Department of Education said, the higher rate of growth during the last two years would enable the Title I children to close the educational gap between them and their more advantaged peers.

"These results are particularly significant because the children served by Title I have traditionally fallen further behind other children in the elementary grades," State Superintendent David W. Hornbeck said. "We believe this is strong evidence that Title I is helping these children achieve like other children."

The report attributes the success of Title I programs to better program planning, a closer relation between Title I programs and the basic instructional programs, improved staff development, increased involvement of parents in the education of their children, and greater program stability resulting from more timely finding of programs.

Dr. Percy V. Williams, assistant state superintendent for compensatory programs, said that by concentrating on children in kindergarten through grade three Title I programs aim at reaching children early before they develop serious learning problems.

More than 60,000 children participate in the special programs operated in the 24 local school systems with federal funds provided by Title I.

Consumer prices were up 0.8 percent in March.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q. Recently on A.M. Pittsburgh two real estate agents were explaining a program called "for sale by owner thru your broker." As I understood this a seller would find the buyer and save the commission, but the agent would do the paper work. Is this type of plan available to owners in our area?

A. Yes. This arrangement between Seller and Broker has been practiced since before my time under an agreement known as an Exclusive Agency. If you list your property with us under this type of agreement and find your own buyer, we will handle the "paper work" and you pay only ½ of the regular commission. However if we find the buyer you pay the full commission.

Please feel free to mail your questions to our office. Each question will be answered.

Oakland's Meals On Wheels Is Rolling Right Along

By Jim Willis

Early last October a car pulled up to the kitchen entrance of Garrett County Memorial Hospital and two volunteers entered the kitchen where nine hot meals were loaded into an insulated container under the supervision of Mary Kay Kovachs, then dietitian for the hospital. The container and nine cold snacks were then loaded into a car and the volunteers drove off . . . Meals on Wheels of Oakland was born.

Mmmm, Mmmm, GOOD — Wanda Stahl, a cook at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, prepares a dinner snack for the Meals on Wheels program. The program serves the same nutritious menu that hospital patients receive. Special diets such as diabetic, low sodium, bland and soft foods are also available. Participants in the program receive their meals for a nominal fee thus making the program self-supporting.

The original idea of home delivered meals goes back to London during World War II. Elderly people living in bombed-out quarters were unable to shop, cook or patronize the communal kitchens, so meals were driven to them on a daily basis. The idea spread to the United States in 1954 when a program began in Philadelphia. Today there are several thousand Meals on Wheels programs across the United States.

Today the Oakland program serves many local shut-ins with the help of about forty volunteers. It has come through the difficult winter, missing only one day of deliveries because of the weather, a tribute not only to the hardiness of the volunteers, but also to a special "Eskimo Squad" that functions when the regular volunteers cannot.

Meals on Wheels of Oakland provides low cost, nutritious meals to ill, aged, and handicapped persons in their own homes. The program allows those who might otherwise require nursing home care to live independently.

Two meals are provided daily, a hot lunch and a cold supper, which are delivered to the home each day, Monday through Friday, including holidays.

The Oakland program limits its deliveries to Oakland, Oak Park, Mt. Lake Park and Loch Lynn, but has been able to extend the delivery area with the cooperation of the Commission on Aging and aide, Reggie Jackson, who delivers four meals daily to outlying areas.

Wendy Norris, registered dietitian for Garrett County Memorial Hospital, oversees the preparation of the meals in the hospital kitchen. Wendy is a newcomer to the area from Clearfield, Pa., where she worked as a therapeutic dietitian.

The meals are the same as those served to the hospital's patients, unless a special diet is required. Many dietary needs, diabetic, low sodium, bland, soft foods, etc., are available and a Meals On Wheels recipient need only give the volunteer a doctor prescribed diet to follow.

Persons may receive Meals on Wheels on a permanent basis or for a short time while recovering from illness or hospitalization. The program is self-supporting and recipients are charged the nominal fee of $2 a day or $10 a week for the service. Food Stamps are accepted and special arrangements for payment can be made to suit the financial situation of those in need. The program does accept contributions toward supplies and operation expenses.

Oakland's MOW volunteers work in pairs, one person remaining in the car while the other personally delivers the lunch and dinner combinations. Volunteers must employ a delicate balance between speed of operation and kindly attention. Food must arrive hot at the last destination and the route is usually covered in forty-five minutes to an hour.

Volunteers never leave food at the door. If a client does not answer, the volunteers are instructed to report the fact to Intake Chairman, Fran Yoder, who then checks to be sure the client is all right. Volunteers also report any other unusual situations on the route. For some elderly people, Meals on Wheels is their only contact with the outside world.

Volunteers for the Oakland Meals on Wheels program include: Lois Couchey, Ruth Durst, Rosalie Evans, Margaret Feather, Merritt Feather, Chris Fischetti, Carolyn Germain, Jo Anna Harsh, Nancy Helbig, Erma Hull, Bernice Idleman, Doug Malone, Jennie Mandrovsky, Dick Maroney, Jessie McCullough, Mary McRobie, Dottie Morris, Marianna Naylor, Betty Naylor, Jean Naylor, Helen Nordeck, Shirley Panther, Joseph Robway, Margaret Robway, Verla Rosenberry, Adeline Ruckert, Nancy Ruff, Richard Seaks, Sybilla Sharps, Manning Smith, Brad Stewart, Dorothy Straub, Diane Thayer, Elisabeth Thayer and Deeta Waller.

The speed with which the trip is made is partly due to the work of Ruth Jackson, who makes up the routes for the volunteers. With each change or addition to the route, Ruth checks the address and decides where the stop should be inserted. The position of Project Chairman is held by Jessie McCullough, who replaces the original chairman, Rev. Richard Seaks. Pastor Seaks is still active on the steering committee and serves as one of the volunteer chairmen along with Marianna Naylor and Dottie Morris. The volunteer chairmen are responsible for the recruiting, training and scheduling of the volunteers. Other members of the Steering Committee are Polly Hanst, Intake; Manning Smith, Secretary; Brad Stewart, Treasurer; and Dorothy Straub, Publicity Chairman.

Oakland's Meals on Wheels program suffers, as do many others, from a shortage of volunteers. Congress has recently recognized the shortage and is now considering several bills that will establish a national Meals on Wheels program. Although the Older Americans Act provides some limited funding for home-delivered meals, no cohesive national effort exists to insure that all home-bound Americans are provided with daily nutritious meals.

Those wishing to volunteer their services to the Oakland program may call Pastor Seaks, 334-2668; Marianna Naylor, 334-4851; or Dottie Morris, 334-8469. For information and referral contact Fran Yoder or Jessie McCullough at 334-8111.

GET IT WHILE IT'S HOT — Hot lunches are packed in styrofoam containers and then in insulated carriers to keep them hot until they are delivered by a Meals on Wheels volunteer. Volunteers cover their routes within an hour and provide a valuable service by checking in on their clients — for some elderly, Meals on Wheels is their only contact with the outside world. Pictured are, left to right, Cheryl Sines, hospital volunteer; Shirley Harsh, cook; Dorothy Straub, Meals on Wheels Publicity Chairman; and Margaret Shank, cook.

CHECKING THE MENU — The Meals on Wheels program provides nutritious lunches and dinners for its clientele. Pictured are Wendy Norris, left, dietitian for Garrett County Memorial Hospital; and Jessie McCullough, Project Chairman, reviewing the week's menu. The program operates five days a week, including holidays, thus allowing persons who might otherwise require nursing home care to live independently.

OH, WAITER — Pastor Richard Seaks, the original Meals on Wheels Project Chairman, and Jessie McCullough, present Project Chairman, load an insulated carrier containing hot lunches into the car. Volunteers travel in pairs, delivering hot lunches and cold suppers to shut-ins in the Oakland, Oak Park, Mt. Lake Park, and Loch Lynn areas. The Oakland Meals on Wheels program was begun last October and has since expanded from its initial nine clients. Today the program utilizes the services of some 40 volunteer workers.

One From Mt. Lake On Tech Dean's List

A Mt. Lake Park student was among the 629 who made the dean's list during the winter quarter at Virginia Tech's College of Engineering. One hundred twelve made all A's, or a perfect 4.0 average.

Brian A. Frederick, a junior in civil engineering, was the only local student on the dean's list.

To make the dean's list at Tech, a student has to make a 3.4 average or better in the University's 4.0 grading system. A 3.4 average is the equivalent to a middle B average.

"Spirits" Revenues Shared By Counties

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reported this week that Maryland's twenty-three counties and Baltimore City are sharing $1,139,129 in distilled spirits tax revenue collected by the State during January, February and March 1978. The distribution of the distilled spirit tax is based on deliveries to retail outlets in the respective subdivisions at the rate of .50 per gallon.

These revenues, for the third quarter of Fiscal Year 1978, generated $278,223 for Baltimore City. Other large checks were mailed to the following counties: Prince George's, $194,957; Baltimore, $173,073; Montgomery $103,970; Anne Arundel $85,751 and Cecil $84,478.

For the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978, Maryland's 24 subdivisions have shared $4,156,206, an increase of $40,411, or 1% over the amount distributed for the same period of last year.

Garrett County had received $3,324 for the third quarter, and a total of $14,364 for the three quarters of fiscal 1977-78, the lowest amount in the entire state.

Hunting Seasons For Various Game Set By Wildlife Administration

The closing of the fall turkey season, the institution of a flintlock deer season, and the establishment of seasons for fisher and long-tailed weasel are contained in the Maryland hunting regulations adopted by the Department of Natural Resources.

James B. Coulter, Secretary of the Department, signed the regulations after a public hearing and months of public comment on proposals put forward by DNR's Wildlife Administration.

The fall turkey season will be closed the 1978-79 season because of a reduction of the turkey population in Western Maryland.

A new flintlock season for deer hunters in all counties who did not previously bag a deer during the firearms season, was established and will be December 7 - December 9, 1978, with a bag limit of one.

Muzzleloaders used for deer hunting must be at least .40 caliber in size and use not less than 60 grains, and propel one all lead or lead alloy soft-nosed or expanding bullet or ball at a single discharge. Telescopic sights are prohibited during the flintlock season.

Only one deer may be taken with a firearm, either regular or flintlock, and one for the bow and arrow season, except in Dorchester County where a person may take a total of one whitetailed deer and two sika deer, or three sika deer.

The fisher, fox, skunk, and long-tailed weasel are now recognized as furbearing mammals which allows the Department of Natural Resources to establish seasons on these previously unprotected species. The exact season dates have not been established yet, although the seasons will run from November 1978 to January 1979.

As for antlerless deer permits, the regulations again call for Maryland residents to be given first choice of permits available.

Special hawk and owl (raptor) seasons exist for squirrel, ruffed grouse, rabbit, quail, and pheasant. The seasons begin on the same day as the hunting seasons, however, all continue until March 31. The bag and possession limits are the same with the exception of quail bag limit: 4 per day, possession 8.

Migratory waterfowl seasons are selected from Federal guidelines available in August.

The following are the seasons for the 1978-79 hunting and trapping license year which begins August 31, 1978. (Bag limit is abbreviated BL and Possession limit is abbreviated PL.)

Poll Shows Lee Running In Front In Governor Race

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A recent poll shows acting Gov. Blair Lee III has solid support from almost every bloc of voters in the state.

A poll commissioned by the Baltimore News-American indicated Lee is not dependent on any one group of voters for support in his try for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Lee is running well ahead of the other gubernatorial hopefuls in almost every voting bloc, according to the poll.

Respondents to the poll reflected voting blocs according to age, race, sex, religion, and educational level.

There were some categories in which Lee showed more strength than others. For instance, he was more popular among voters who had completed high school than among those with either higher or lower educational levels.

Lee was popular among black voters, gaining 25 percent of their support or 35 percent if Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer is our of the race.

Lee's support trailed other candidates in three areas: Attorney General Francis Burch had a slight edge with respondents who had not completed high school and Schaefer had more support among black and Jewish voters.

Burch, State Comptroller Louis Goldstein and former Transportation Secretary Harry Hughes appealed to similar constituencies, according to the poll.

They drew a higher degree of support than other candidates from voters over age 50 and from those with less than a high school education.

Baltimore County Executive Ted Venetoulis drew a significantly higher percentage of support than the other candidates from voters under age 30.

GARRETT COUNTY RESIDENTS

Important Meeting!

There will be a public meeting at the Crellin School, Crellin, Md., on Friday, May 5, at 7:30 P.M., concerning the proposed development of an industrial park in the Crellin-Hutton area above the Youghiogheny River.

For this purpose the Garrett County Commissioners are trying to obtain four hundred acres (400) of land of Swallow Falls State Forest.

The construction of an alleged coal processing plant is being considered on this site. This proposed plant has the potential to ruin surrounding streams, farms and existing roads.

Your attendance and strong verbal support against the devastation of our natural resources is needed. Please attend.

Local People Plan To Join Rally For Disarmament

A local group of people are developing plans to organize transportation to a large public rally for Disarmament at U. N. Headquarters in New York City on Saturday, May 27.

The Rally is part of an international Mobilization for Survival, started to educate the public about the dangers of nuclear technology and to support the kinds of government programs which will provide real security for people by meeting basic human needs. The rally is timed to coincide with the first U. N. Special Session on Disarmament.

The group of local people is expected to be joined by thousands of others traveling from all parts of the United States, in addition to hundreds more from around the world. Japan is expected to send 400 participants.

To help prepare for the rally, signatures are being collected on an eight-point petition addressed to President Jimmy Carter. The petition suggests specific actions which the President could take to carry out his campaign pledges to cut military spending and work toward an end to nuclear weapons. On May 27, a delegation from the rally will meet with United States Ambassador to the United Nations, Andrew Young, to present the petitions.

Persons interested in joining or finding out more about the rally and/or the petition drive should contact Mike Brandes at 895-5765 or Mark Lancaster at 777-7789.

H-P Holds Annual Sales Meeting

The annual sales meeting of the H-P Stores, Inc. held April 18 in Mt. Lake Park, was attended by 31 managers of the chain, plus four assistant managers, four regional supervisors and the buyers for five different categories of merchandise. Irvin Feld, President of the chain, presided.

The overall purpose of the meeting was to develop a program for better serving the needs of communities where H-P stores are located. The group discussed new style trends for Fall which have been previewed by the chain's buyers and management team in New York. Operation procedures that are potentially more convenient to store customers were reviewed by Fred Feld, Vice President, followed by a discussion of methods developed to improve communications between H-P personnel and clientele. Mick Feld, Director of Promotion and Advertising, was the discussion leader for the latter segment of the program.

Tom Ritchey, Manager of the H-P Store in Oakland played a principal role in the meeting suggesting improvements in merchandise selection and service to the customer. Mr. Ritchey pointed out the desirability of localizing both merchandise and customer service, adapting them to the specific need and wishes of the people in Oakland.

By
Congressman Goodloe Byron
Maryland—Sixth District

This column serves as another vehicle to keep in touch with my fellow residents of central and western Maryland. Send your questions or comments to me c/o U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. 20515. While I'll be unable to print all replies, I will answer each of you who contacts me.

The following questions were typical of the kind asked of me in recent weeks.

Have you sponsored any environmental legislation in this Congress?

As a member of the House Interior Committee I have actively supported the preservation of some of our nation's most crucial environmental assets. In the past two years I have introduced legislation to protect the Redwoods National Park, to protect endangered species, to preserve 100 million acres of Alaskan land, to establish the Boundary Waters Canoe Area, and add more than one million acres to our wilderness preservation system. I have also authored the law to create the Monocacy National Battlefield Park and have co-sponsored legislation to increase the Land and Water Conservation Fund from which every county in Central and Western Maryland have drawn funds to aid in the development of much needed local parks.

Why are you opposed to relocating the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to Downtown Washington?

A convincing number of constituents have advised me of the many problems which would ensue if such a move were to be made. Over 75% of the employees of NRC live in Montgomery County and portions of Frederick, Carroll and Howard Counties. The move would force 2,000 employees to either commute to Washington or relocate their home, find new schools for their children as well as a suitable living environment in an already over-populated metropolitan area. I feel this obvious disruption to human lives should be given prime consideration. Futhermore, requiring thousands of employees to commute to downtown Washington would violate the spirit of President Carter's call for all federal agencies to do as much as possible to promote energy conservation. Finally, the General Services Administration states that such a move would save over $4 million annually, but it is my understanding that available land and parking in Montgomery County is many times cheaper than in the District of Columbia. I have also been advised that GSA never consulted the Montgomery County Office of Economic Development during its investigation of this matter.

Does the government publish a First Aid Guide For Consumers?

Yes. A pocket guide to treating emergencies such as impaired breathing, bleeding, shock, heart attacks, burns, exposure and poisoning is available for 80 cents from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009. Be sure to request booklet 034F.

Would you please explain your bill which would give renters a tax break?

I have co-sponsored legislation in the House to provide a tax credit for renters who, under current law, are not permitted a federal tax deduction for the local real estate taxes they pay as part of their rent. The measure would provide a credit against Federal income tax equal to 5 percent of annual rent, up to $75 for a married couple and $50 for single taxpayers. As I stated to a Congressional committee earlier this month, 37 percent of all Americans rent residences and this bill is an effort to place renters in a comparable position as homeowners under Federal tax laws.

Please explain your legislation to curb textile imports and save American jobs?

Last October I actively supported passage of a resolution asking the Administration to take the special problems and import vulnerability of the textile industry into consideration during future international trade negotiations. It is my understanding that this advice has gone unheeded and that substantial tariff cuts are being proposed for imported textile, apparel and fiber products. I oppose such action because it is inconsistent with our national objective of reducing unemployment, and I have introduced special legislation to prevent these further reductions in tariffs. Imports have caused a loss of 400,000 U. S. jobs already and if tariffs are lowered, as planned, an additional 50,000 jobs stand to be lost annually. This will most certainly affect the employment picture in Central and Western Maryland since we are the home of a sizable number of textile, apparel and fiber industries. Congress must combat such unfair foreign competition and I believe the American textile industry and its workers deserve our support through this legislation.

What are your views on widening Route 15 in Frederick County?

I have contacted Transportation Secretary Brock Adams in an effort to insure prompt and final approval for the dualization of U. S. Route 15. I have pointed out to Secretary Adams that this highway project is essential to the public safety, and I reiterated the staggering accident rate on this road including the series of fatal mishaps in recent years. I am extremely pleased with indications that the Department of Transportation may be prepared to act quickly on this matter to permit the start of construction sometime in the near future.

Does your office have any information on Camping in our National Parks?

The 1978 edition of "Camping in the National Park System" is now available to the public. The pocket-sized booklet offers information on fees, visitor regulations, safety, and back-country camping. It also contains a listing of the services and facilities in more than 400 campgrounds in 100 park areas from Alaska to the Virgin Islands. Another feature is the listing of exact fees charged at each National Park Service-operated campground. You may order your copy directly from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

What do you consider to be the most important pending Federal Legislation which will affect Senior Citizens?

There are many bills pending which are designed to improve the quality of life of senior citizens. I have co-sponsored a number of proposals to help the elderly live in dignity. For example, for many years I have introduced legislation to raise the Social Security earnings limitation and I am pleased that this provision is now law. I have also introduced a bill to provide that increases in one government program, such as social security, will not cause corresponding decreases in other programs, such as veterans' benefits. I have sponsored a bill to provide that the first $5,000 of pension income be tax exempt and also legislation to provide a tax deduction of $1,500 for families who provide care and support for a senior family dependent living with them.

Job Prospects Look Better

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — The college class of '78 will have better luck in the job market than in recent years, but liberal arts graduates may still have to pound the pavement, a college recruiting coordinator said Tuesday.

Martha Patton of the University of Maryland said more corporate recruiters have visited campuses in the state this year, searching primarily for engineers, computer science majors and other technically trained students.

"For us, it's been one of the best years in the last five or six," she said.

Mrs. Patton estimated that 500 recruiters have come to the campus, the same number as during the "good years" of the late 1960s.

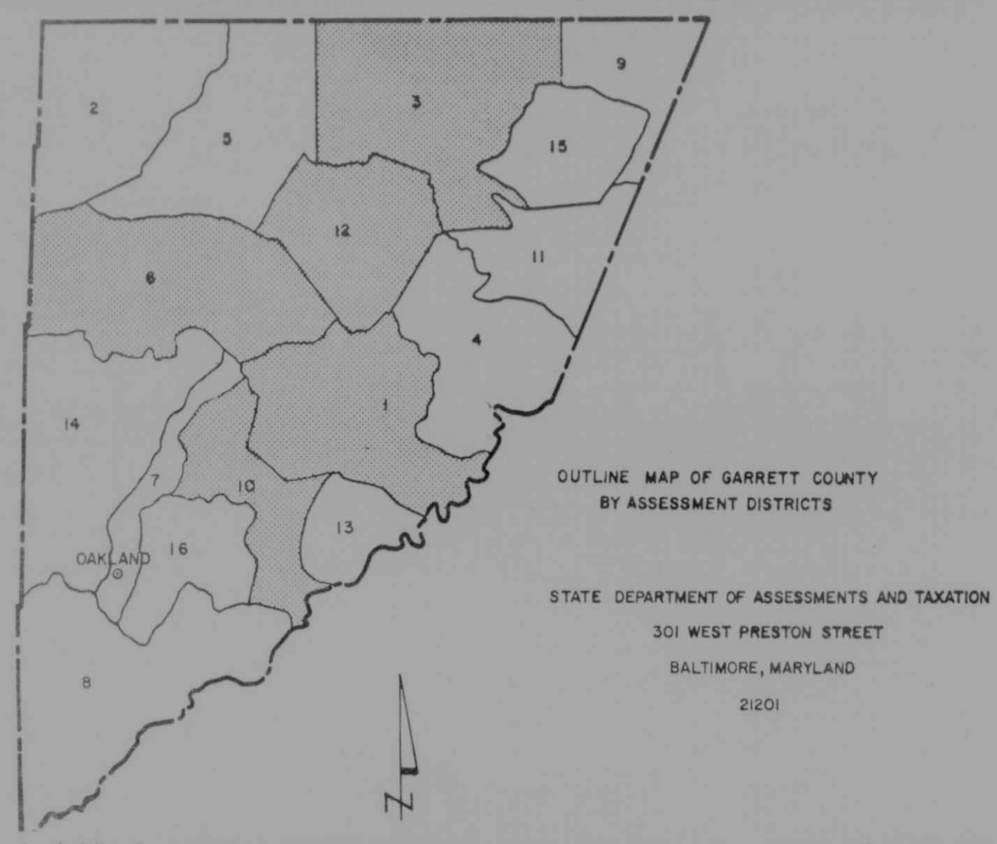
"And these people are actually offering jobs," she said. "It's not just an exercise."

The National College Placement Council reports that job offers to graduates in March were 31 percent ahead of a year ago and 47 percent more than 1976.

Engineers received 44 percent of the offers, the council said. Graduates in other scientific disciplines heard 35 percent more job offers this year and for business majors, 16 percent more offers.

But liberal arts and social science majors received only 8 percent more offers.

Betty Jean Glascoe, placement director at the University of Maryland Baltimore County, said only the best liberal arts students can expect job offers before graduation.



"They're asking for persons to have business-related skills, and they're asking whether they've ever had an internship, or whether they've been in a cooperative program," she said. "They won't have to spend as much money training those kinds of students."

James Roberts, director of Morgan State University's Career Development Center, said students must be willing to relocate in order to take advantage of many job offers.

"They have to realize that all the jobs are not going to be in the Baltimore-Washington area," he said. "A lot of people just aren't willing to travel.

"In education, for example, there is a demand for teachers in rural areas and in the midwest, especially for students with some math and science background," he said. "But you have to be willing to go where the jobs are."

Assessment Department Schedules County Property Reviews For 1978

A scheduling for proposed physical review of properties within the County Assessments Districts during 1978 has been released by the State Department of Assessments and Taxation.

For assessment purposes, the law requires that all properties be physically reviewed at least once every three years. The shaded areas of the map above depict those locations within the county assessments districts which are scheduled for such a review during 1978.

Assessing officers will be working in these districts. Whenever feasible, they will show property owners an official identification prior to conducting any appraisal. The assessors will not ask to enter or inspect the inside of anyone's home.

Property owners may write, call or visit their local assessments office for more detailed information, if desired.

Assessment Answers

Q. I have appealed my assessment on my home, and in so doing, I have requested a copy of my worksheet. Comparing it with my worksheet of two years ago, I find that the depreciation allowance is less now than it was at that time. Why is this so?

A. Depreciation allowances on residential properties are normally expressed in percentages rather than in dollar amounts. In your case, the depreciation allowance or percentage is the relationship between the current value of your property and the cost of replacing it if it were in new condition, or "cost new" in appraisal terms. It is possible that the percentage allowance for your property is less than it was two years ago, but the total amount may actually be greater.

The actual depreciation is the loss in value from all causes. Any factor that would affect the value, either by improving it or worsening it, could change the depreciation figure. If major renovations such as plumbing, electrical, a new and better heating plant, plastering of walls, etc. are made, then these would improve your property and lessen your depreciation allowance. A change in the condition of the structure would affect the depreciation allowance. Another reason for a difference in your depreciation allowance could be that there was an error in the assessment that was discovered.

Another possibility for a higher depreciation allowance two years ago could have been caused by what is known in assessing as economic obsolescence or functional obsolescence. Economic obsolescence is caused by factors that are external to the property; such as, a heavily travelled street, a change in the character of the neighborhood, or commercial or industrial intrusion, etc. Functional obsolescence is the impairment to the value of your property that is caused by internal factors other than deterioration. Depreciation through deterioration is the primary cause of a lessening in value.

The market will indicate what the rate should be, and the assessor will use the cost manual to support the market value that has been determined by studying the sales ratio. If the market indicates a lesser value than the cost, less physical deterioration, then the difference will be attributed to economic or sometimes functional obsolescence. In the past two years, the market has gone up in your area. Consequently, the economic obsolescence is less, and this has lead to an overall smaller depreciation allowance.

The allowance for depreciation will be controlled by the market. Let us look at two comparable homes, one built today and the other three years ago. The one that is three years old, despite its age, could be equal in value to the one built today, and if they were put up for sale, they would probably bring the same price. In this hypothetical situation, the assessor would be required to use the same depreciation rate.

According to court decisions, each annual reassessment of property for tax purposes is distinct and presents its own problems, and there is no reason to compare prior assessments with the current assessment. Each separate assessment must stand on its own merit, regardless of how it compares to previous years. The question becomes one of final estimated value. A less allowance for depreciation this year is not a conclusion that your property has somehow managed to reverse the effect of wear and tear by the elements and the process of aging, but rather, is a simple statement as to the relationship between the estimated "cost new" and the final estimated value. For this year only, it may or may not be a greater difference than an earlier estimate.

Questions or letters of general interest on assessments and the property tax should be addressed to 'Assessment Answers — James Burley' in care of this newspaper. They will be answered through this column to the extent that space allows.

This column was written with the co-operation of the Maryland State Department of Assessments and Taxation.

Consumers Tire Guide Available

A new Consumer Tire Guide, with up-to-date information on the latest auto tires, has been issued by the Tire Industry Safety Council just in time for the summer driving season.

"In addition to offering valuable summer tips, the guide contains information that will prove useful all year," said Council Chairman Malcolm R. Lovell, Jr.

The 16-page booklet stresses the importance of proper inflation for maximum safety and economy. It contains load and inflation tables for all types of tires, including the new "P-series" metric tires. It also has a new chart showing "preferred," "acceptable" and "not recommended" tire combinations.

A free copy of the pamphlet may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-sized envelope to Tire Industry Safety Council, Box 1801, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Lovell warned that underinflation, bald tires and overloaded vehicles are the three biggest threats to the vacationing motorist.

"Unless preventive measures are taken, any of these factors could lead to a sudden tire failure," Lovell said.

The Tire Industry Safety Council offers these other tips for safer summer driving:

—Check your inflation pressure at least once a month and before every long trip. Add four pounds of air to the recommended pressure for turnpike driving over extended periods but don't exceed the limit molded on the tire sidewall.

—Carry your own air pressure gauge. Service station air towers are often off by several pounds, studies have shown.

—Beware of "summer ice." Water mixed with dust and oil acts as a lubricant on roadways and reduces traction even if your tires are new. Particularly dangerous is a light drizzle following a prolonged dry spell.

—Check regularly for objects imbedded between tread grooves. They can eventually cut into the rubber, leading to air loss and tire failure.

—Do not reduce air pressure after driving. Heat buildup during driving is normal and tires will cool down to proper air pressures on their own after you stop.

—Be on guard against hydroplaning, a phenomemon that occurs on wet pavement and literally causes your tires to leave the road. As water accumulates on the roadway, tires may begin to "surfboard" at increased speeds, especially over 40 mph. Worn tread increases the incidence of hydroplaning and the possibility of losing control of the vehicle.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memory of my mother, Mrs. Martha Spiker, who passed away May 8, 1977.

Family ties somehow don't seem to mean as much these days as when I was a child. Most children and their parents go their separate ways, but mother, our home was so different in so many ways and things we did. I'll always cherish your sweetest love and family ties, and now that you are gone you'll always have a place within my heart that no one else can fill. I'll always need you and love you and you know I always will.

Very respectfully,
Mr. Bliss Spiker,

SPECIAL GUESTS at the annual Lincoln Day dinner Saturday at Deer Park fire hall were, left to right, Sen. Edward J. Mason (R- Allegany, Garrett); Mrs. Brenda Butscher, Republican Central Committee chairman, Don Devine, Republican candidate for governor; and Delegate DeCorsey E. Bolden. Over 200 persons attended the dinner and heard Mr. Devine relate that expenses of Maryland government have grown almost 200 percent since 1970, while population has grown only five percent. Members of the Deer Park fire auxiliary prepared and served the turkey dinner family style for the ticket holders present.

Eta Aquarid Meteors

Friday will be the maximum of this meteor shower. About 20 meteors may be seen per hour by a single observer. This is three times the number visible on a night without a meteor shower. These meteors will collide with the earth at a speed of 64 kilometers (40 miles) per second. These meteors will also be visible Thursday morning and on Saturday morning before dawn.

Moon

Passing through New Moon phase on Sunday morning at 47 minutes after midnight, the moon will be in the same direction in the sky as the sun. Moonset will be at 4:47 p.m. today. Next Tuesday it will be at 10:35 p.m. The moon will be waxing after Sunday.

Visible Planets

Visible this week are: Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, and possibly, Mercury. The closest planet to the sun, Mercury, might be seen just above the horizon before sunrise. The best time to look will be toward the end of the week. Venus, on the other hand, is very bright in the west for 2 hours after sunset. Mars is among the stars of Cancer, setting several hours after midnight. Jupiter, among the stars of Gemini, sets about 4 hours after sunset. Saturn sets shortly after midnight, with the stars of Leo.

Uranus will be rising as the sun sets. It will be exactly opposite the sun Friday. This position of Uranus is called an opposition. Remember, Uranus may be seen near the brightest star in Libra. This is a double star. Uranus is about as bright as the dimmest star in the double star. Viewing on several evenings in a row will help identify Uranus, since it moves with respect to the stars as viewed through binoculars from one night to the next. Last week the planet was seen closest to the double star. It has now moved west of the star.

Daylight Increases

There will be 13 minutes more daylight next Tuesday. Sunrise was at 6:17 a.m. this morning. Sunset will be at 8:12 this evening. On Tuesday sunrise will be 7 minutes earlier, and sunset will be 6 minutes later than it is today.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 102 | OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1978 | PER COPY 15c | NUMBER 11

Faults Fable . . .

Former First Lady Betty Ford should receive a trumpet fanfare and a medal for her recent, humble admission to the entire world that she has an alcohol and drug problem.

A woman of such prominence, who has so little private life anyway, came right out and leveled with all of us.

Reactions have been varied. Many admire her for it, many others have cast their eyes downward on her.

As ridiculous as it seems, many persons have a difficult time simply admitting that they are human—to openly admit to everyone else, "yes, I do have faults." The all powerful ego continually tries to stop us from such admissions, even though we all know that such weaknesses exist in all of us. When we finally do admit our shortcomings, it is usually just to close friends or family and even that can be difficult. Imagine telling millions of people as Mrs. Ford did, about such a personal problem. As paradoxical as it seems, by admitting her weakness, she is showing tremendous strength.

We should learn not just to admit our imperfections, but also to share them. Keeping everything inside, trying to maintain an image or facade that most people will eventually see through anyway, is not only cowardly, but unhealthy.

By admitting one's own faults, one can then better understand the faults of others. One then learns to assist others with their problems.

Yes, many will look down on Mrs. Ford and say things like, "That's disgusting. What a disgrace for a former First Lady!"

What they are really saying is "I'm sure glad I don't have any faults," or possibly, "It's OK for me to have faults, but not a former First Lady." Neither statement could be more hypocritical and further from the truth.

Meeting On Proposed Industrial Site Attracts Crowd Of 140 Citizens

Approximately 140 persons attended an informational meeting held last Friday evening at the Crellin Elementary School. The meeting concerned a proposed industrial site on a 400-acre tract of land near Hutton and Crellin. The land is presently owned by the state and county government is now going through the process of acquiring this particular tract from the Department of Natural Resources.

The meeting was conducted by a panel of county and state government personnel, including Marshall Rickert, county administrator, Tim Dugan, Garrett County Planning Office, Tom Jones, Garrett County Development Corporation, and William Cramer, Department of Natural Resources.

The audience was composed mainly of Hutton and Crellin area residents.

Mr. Dugan began by giving some of the background of and the reasons for this proposed industrial site.

He stated that the economy of Garrett County is based primarily on Agriculture and recreation and that there is a need for some industrial development. The county is seeking state land because one out of every five acres of land in Garrett County is state owned. He said the county received approximately $30,000 back from the state in 1975-76, a figure representing only 15% of the total amount raised by this state land (through parks, fees, camping, etc.) Just for a comparison, Mr. Dugan stated that if all of the state land in Garrett County was privately owned and assessed, it would add $193,000 to the county through taxes.

Mr. Dugan went on to state that the county has considered numerous tracts of land in the southern end of the county. The site near Hutton was chosen because it seemed to be the best suited for industrial development. The land is relatively flat, it is close to a fairly decent highway (Rt. 39 and, most importantly, it has railroad access).

Most of the persons in the audience believed that there definite plans to construct a coal treatment plant on this tract of land and were greatly concerned about air and water pollution, rights of way, devaluation of property and land condemnation.

Mr. Dugan went on to say that nothing definite has been decided for the site and the county is just now going through procedures to see if the DNR would consider making this land available to the county for any type of industrial development.

Mr. Jones began his presentation by stating that there was a particular coal concern that showed considerable interest in the Hutton industrial site last year. This particular company was then in the process of acquiring mining rights in the Crellin area. However, since that time, the company's plans have not proceeded as originally projected. Jones pointed out that deep mining interests have been shelved by all coal companies because the coal market is rather unstable right now.

He said one of the good

Hearing Held On Junkyard Rules

The Board of County Commissioners conducted a public hearing at its Monday session to consider adoption of a new junkyard ordinance for the county. The previous ordinance had been declared invalid due to a procedural technicality.

Approximately 35 attended the session to ask questions and make suggestions for the new rulings. The draft must then be approved following a public hearing.

The new draft for an ordinance would clarify procedures and make standards more specific. The new law would be in effect for any new and expanded junkyard, and present junkyards already in operation must eventually come into conformance with the new rules.

The new articles would stipulate that a license be required. An application must be submitted to the Board of Commissioners which would then approve or deny the application. There would be an annual license renewal fee. The Board may also from time to time inspect the junkyard.

In the new proposed draft, no junkyard may be less than 25 feet from the right-of-way line of a public road; 500 feet from any land owned or leased by a government agency for recreation, open space, conservation; 200 feet from a residence, retail business, school, hospital, or other health care facility.

Each licensed junkyard would also be required within nine months of the issuance of the license, to be enclosed by effective screening, to totally remove the premises from view by the travelling public and by adjoining residences. Such screening would consist of vegetative or structural materials, or both. No junk may be stacked to a height greater than the height of the screening.

Woman Arrested For Larcenies At Area Schools

State Police arrested a young woman Tuesday afternoon in Cumberland in connection with a series of breakings and enterings of schools in a two-state area earlier this year.

Held in the Garrett County jail in lieu of $5,000 cash bond is Mrs. Cathy Lee House, 21, who was arrested in Cumberland on charges of breaking and entering, grand larceny, malicious destruction of property, and receiving stolen goods from Route 40 Elementary School February 24.

Three others were arrested a few weeks ago in connection with the same case.

According to state police, Mrs. House is also wanted in connection with a breaking and entering at Frost Elementary School in Allegany County, and will wave extradition to West Virginia, where she is wanted in connection with breakings and enterings of schools in that state.

Decision Pending In Sanitary Commission Suit

A decision should be reached in Garrett County Circuit Court later this week in the case between the Garrett County Sanitary Commission vs. the town of Mt. Lake Park.

An all-day hearing last Friday by Judge Fred A. Thayer was a continuation of last June's hearing when the Sanitary Commission was bringing suit against Mt. Lake for monies the Commission testified was owed to them in back sewerage payments.

In June 1977, Judge Thayer ordered the Sanitary Commission to retain a consulting firm to apportion the cost owed by the town. Ernst and Ernst was duly retained and their testimony presented Friday, along with additional testimony from both sides in the suit.

Fire Destroys Menges Home Sunday Night

The two-story frame home of Mr. and Mrs. John Menges at Keyser Ridge was totally destroyed by fire Sunday night despite efforts of five fire companies.

According to Robert Shimer, fire investigator for the state fire marshal's office, a malfunction in a stove hood exhaust fan apparently started the blaze. When 14-year-old Johnnie Menges returned home about 8:30 p.m. he found the kitchen cabinets ablaze. He immediately turned in the alarm.

Accident was the first company called. Assisting were Grantsville, Deep Creek, McHenry and Friendsville. Bittinger was called for water and Finzel stood by for Grantsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Menges and son Thomas, 25, were in Grantsville at the time of the fire. The only articles the family managed to salvage were some records of the family dairy business. By the time firemen arrived, the home was totally involved.

Although the home was insured, many family antiques were destroyed. The family is staying at the home of Mrs. Menges' mother, Mrs. A. G. Reichenbecher, also of Keyser Ridge.

Bloodmobile To Visit This Friday

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will make its regular Oakland visit this Friday, May 12, at the National Guard Armory, according to Mrs. Norma Hesen, chairman.

In the past, the hours of the visit were from 12 noon to 6:00 p.m. However, the new hours are 11:00 until 5:00 p.m. The quota is 135 pints.

Mrs. Hesen stated that there are several local persons in need of replacement blood. The list of names of these individuals will be at the register desk. She stated that all blood types will be accepted, however there is a particular need for types O+, O-, A-, B- and AB-.

Planning Commission Endorses Railey, Inc. Re-zoning Request

Many items were on the agenda at Tuesday's meeting of the Garrett County Planning Commission in Oakland, with discussions ranging from information on the Garrett County Agricultural Preservation Advisory Board to the Hutton Industrial Site.

The Planning Commission passed a resolution continuing endorsement of the rezoning request for Railey, Inc., Rock Lodge Road. The request will now go to the Commissioners to schedule a public hearing.

The Commission also accepted an amendment to the county plan in conjunction with the request for rezoning. The draft will be made public for review by interested citizens and the Planning Commission will have a hearing in July.

Several members appointed approximately one month ago to the county Agricultural Preservation Advisory Board attended, along with executive director for Maryland, Allen Musselman. Mr. Musselman indicated his group will follow through with a state law passed last year setting up a state-wide program to keep land in farming. The program is just beginning, and the county will be kept informed of future actions.

In reference to the Upper Casselman project which could set up three or four impoundments in the Casselman watershed, information was given about a meeting last week in Grantsville. At that time the steering committee had asked each of the sponsoring agencies, including the town of Grantsville, whether they wished to continue the preliminary work on the project which would provide flood control, recreation, and perhaps a water supply for that area.

The sponsors reaffirmed their 1976 resolution supporting the planning work, and later the groups will determine whether they want to complete the entire project.

The City of Frostburg has named the Piney Watershed a critical area in response to state requests for high-priority problem sites. The town of Frostburg now operates a reservoir on Piney which provides the town with water. The Planning Commission suggested that in enlarging or moving the reservoir, the town purchase a minimum amount of land, negotiating easements or making arrangements other than outright purchases.

Both the Commissioners and the Planning Commission indicated approval of an Allegany County request to expand the size of that county's landfill near Westernport. The landfill site, located near Westernport, has been in use by Allegany County for ten years.

Tim Dugan, planning director, reported on the happenings at the public meeting Friday concerning the proposed Hutton Industrial Site, but no action was taken by the Commission in regards to another hearing in the immediate future.

The Planning Commission passed a resolution Tuesday similar to one approved some weeks ago by the Development Corporation, asking the Commissioners to establish a temporary coal policy task force. It would be the responsibility of the task force to look into the coal mining impact on the county for the present and foreseeable future. The task force would be composed of representatives from the Commissioners, the Planning Commission, developers, mining companies and private citizens.

It would be the prime responsibility of the group to take an intensive look at the coal industry in relation to tax policy, and to make necessary recommendations by next fall.

Gene Straub, Garrett County representative on the Land Reclamation Committee, was present to give a briefing on emergency regulations the Department of Natural Resources adopted concerning the surface mining industry. He told the group of the state regulations which were made recently in response to federal regulations, and his conclusion was that the new regulations in several ways weaken local control.

The Commission authorized Tim Dugan to submit testimony saying that the Planning Commission is opposed to anything weakening the strength of the Land Reclamation Committee, and also opposing any move which would take power from the public and give it into a state bureaucracy.

Deputies Investigate Recent Larcenies

Larcenies and destruction of property incidents are under investigation this week by members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

Two persons reported that their hubcaps had been taken. First to make the report was Harold Harris, Route 2, Swanton, who told police hubcaps had been taken from his vehicle while it was parked at Friend's Stockyard May 5. Loss value was set at $184.

Robert Halsop, reported that between April 29 and May 6 someone had caused damage to his boat dock at his property on Marsh Hill Road. Damage was estimated at $60.

Judge Rules In Defendant's Favor In Damage Suit

Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer rendered a decision Thursday in favor of a local corporation, following a suit brought against them for blasting damages which occurred in 1975.

The plaintiff had claimed $12,000 damages to his home following a dynamite blast while roadbuilding was being conducted by Piney Mountain Development Corporation.

Judge Thayer, however, indicated there was not sufficient evidence to sustain the suit, and filed a decision in favor of the defendants.

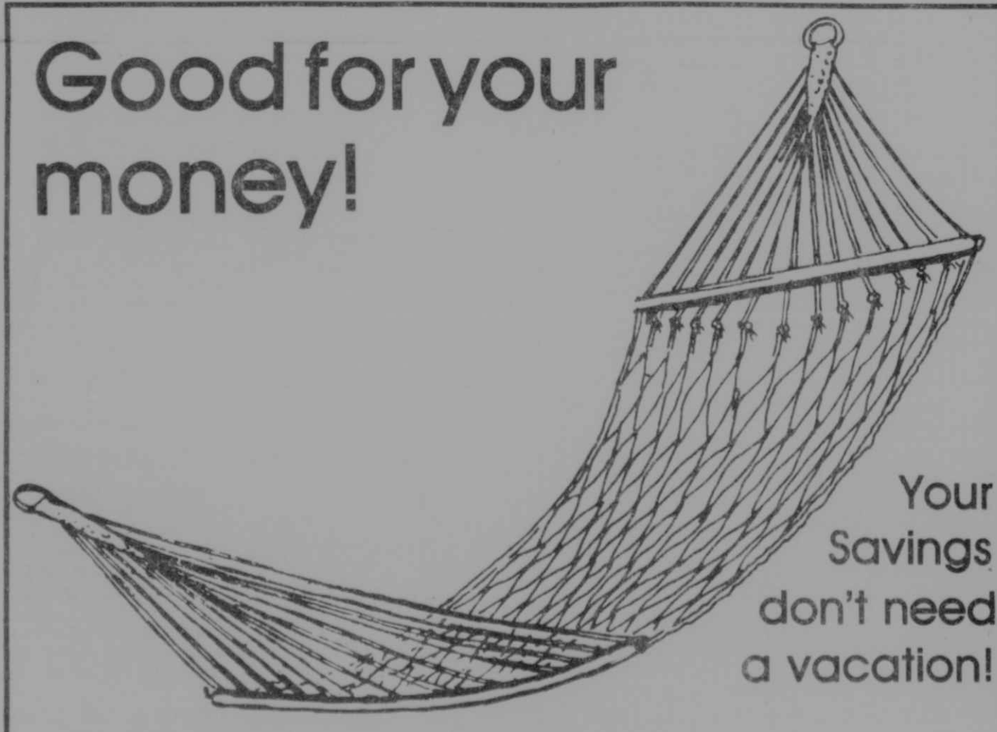
4-H Citizenship Tour Held May 6

Forty-seven Garrett and Allegany residents participated in the annual 4-H Citizenship Tour held in Dorchester County this past Saturday, May 6, according to 4-H Leader Reva Thomas.

The Garrett delegation was dismissed from school Friday at 1 p.m. and traveled to the Eastern Shore where they spent the night at the Easton Holiday Inn or in the residence of Cambridge residents Don and Helen Marshall.

The group attended the Citizenship ceremonies at the Dorchester High School where three of the Garrett delegation, Kathy Nice, Pam Trickett, and Carol Durst, received their Citizenship Pin and Bill of Rights Scroll upon graduation from the 4-H Program at the age of nineteen.



Highlighting the bus tour of Dorchester County was a trip through the Blackwater Wildlife Refuge where the youth observed several wildfowl species such as a bald-eagle and several egrets, as well as wild ducks and geese which were migrating north. Several youth had the opportunity to walk through Spocott Windmill which is one of the few remaining wind-powered grist mills in the U.S. A quick trip through the Dorchester Heritage Museum revealed the area's earliest traditions and customs. Many tour participants had the opportunity to share the rich heritage of Trinity Church which is the earliest settlement congregation in the United States which is still in use, being founded in the year of 1650.

Among the youth and adults from Garrett and Allegany in attendance at the Citizenship Tour were Todd Bashore, Annette, Bryon, Dessie and Luke Bowman, Sarah and Mrs. William Boyd, Chip and Mrs. Dorothy Broadwater, Harold and Pam Butler, Tawney Cowan, Carol Durst, Bill DeWitt, Dwight Emory, Christy Fratz, Doug Frazee, Elizabeth, Melrose and Mrs. Walter Hanft, Michelle Hesen, Tina Kepple, Ellen Lantz, Lawrence Little, Denise, Patty and Mrs. Susie Livengood, Jill Margroff, Cheryl and Joannie Morgan, Kathy Nice, Vivian Richter, Ben and Kevin Ridder, Mrs. Mabel and Theresa Sisler, Carrinelle and Jenilee Stemple, Jerry Steyer, Johanna Swauger, Mrs. Reva and Teresa Thomas, Kim and Pam Trickett, Betsy Wawzenski, Becky Wolf, and Mark Younkin.

Tentative plans for the next Citizenship Tour, scheduled for the first Saturday in May, indicate that our Garrett delegation will be traveling to Carroll County.

GARRETT COUNTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

This new column is meant to provide communication between the public and Garrett County Memorial Hospital. It is a combined effort by The Republican news staff and the administration of the hospital. Persons having questions and comments, both negative and positive, may send them to The Republican office for publication. Questions concerning specific medical cases will not be accepted because of possible legal consequences.

Several employees of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital, including administrative personnel, have been "brought in" from outside of Garrett County. Why not draw people from Garrett County first?

Whenever we have an opening for a position, we first look and attempt to recruit locally. Unfortunately there are several positions that require a great deal of technical and educational training that prevent local people from being hired. Registered dietitians, hospital controllers, experienced accountants, certified laboratory technicians, physical therapists, etc. all fall into this category. If we cannot find the talent locally then we have no other choice than to go outside. Whenever a local candidate has the needed talent or a job is vacant and we can train someone locally then they are our first choice.

How has the Garrett County Memorial Hospital been upgraded in terms of its equipment and capabilities?

Many changes have taken place at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital over the past several years. Some of those changes have included: increased laboratory services thus eliminating a long waiting time for tests to be sent out of county and results to return; an extremely competent Coronary Intensive Care unit staffed and equipped with the most modern technology and qualified personnel; a physical therapy service concerned with the rehabilitation of persons who have a disability resulting from injury or disease; a rapidly developing cardiopulmonary service that provides the physician with increased abilities in heart and breathing problems as well as diagnostic and rehabilitative support; five day per week radiologist coverage; general upgrading of equipment in anesthesia, operating room, emergency room, as well as other areas.

In addition there have been changes in the indirect patient areas of housekeeping, laundry, plant operations, dietary, and accounting.

Why was there a recent layoff of employees at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital?

Yes, the hospital recently had a reduction in its workforce. Hospitals generate their income from the revenue (rates) charged to a projected volume of patients. Over the past four years usage of the hospital in all areas (inpatients, emergency room, laboratory, X-ray, etc.) has gone up. We expected this trend to continue. In reality what happened was our volumes fell below not only our projections but below the activity we witnessed over the past four years.

This resulted in a year to date excess of expenses over income of about $180,000 as of January 31st, 1978. As a comparison, our expenses were right in line with our budget. We have only two ways to effect such a situation; increase our rates to generate the additional income or decrease our expenses so that income exceeds expenses.

We elected to do both and subsequently increased our rates slightly while decreasing our expenses. Since personnel costs account for 70 percent of our total expenses a temporary reduction in workforce was necessary. Currently our volume is back up and several of those people let go have been called back to work.

It should be noted that the economy in general in Garrett County adversely affected many businesses who similarly had to take the same type of actions.

Letters to the Editor

REMINDER — Unsigned letters to the editor will NOT be printed under any circumstances. Letters exceeding 300 words will also not be printed.

To the editor:

I read in the April 3rd issue of U.S. News and World Report some distressing news. The excerpt read as follows: "A new government survey confirms what you knew if you have been sick: Physicians fees jumped 50% more than average consumer prices in 1977. The increse of 9.3 percent gave self-employed physicians a median net income of $83,000. For some specialists $100,000."

Obviously, no one complains to the physician about the fee — who would dare to do so? I would like to know why it is that doctors are expected to become independently wealthy within a few years after beginning their practices.

If they really have the patient at heart, why not give him (the patient) a financial break and buy one less piece of real estate for speculation or for a tax break write-off?

President Carter is recommending a 5.5% maximum increase in wages due to the extreme inflation of the last quarter. Will the doctors heed this recommendation or continue taking advantage of people who have no other recourse? Is this not reminiscent of what the Arabs did to us during the oil embargo?

Is it any wonder we have so much crime, when there are so many poor people who have almost nothing while a few of the affluent have everything? Add to this the inequality of our whole tax system, with the loopholes provided for the wealthy, by the wealthy, and it helps us to understand the increase in terrorism and kidnapping, and the growth of underground groups in this country.

Remember the day of the family doctor who was more interested in the overall welfare and health of his patient than he was in becoming president of the bank or head of a corporation?

It seems that in this land of equality, some are certainly more equal than others. Here is proof of the old adage "as the rich get rich, the poor get poorer."

Sincerely,
Name Withheld

Sir:

In reference to the "letter to the Editor" concerning Community Action's role in installing storm windows and doors on an expensive new home, I have searched my files thoroughly and found no evidence of weatherizing such a home.

After speaking with the lady who wrote the letter, I believe the house she was referring to was not weatherized by Community Action, but instead by a private contractor.

It is the intent of Community Action to serve the low-income families. We take what steps we can to insure that families being served are the most needy in the county.

Sincerely,
Russell E. Conway
Director,
Energy Conservation

Dear Editor:

I want to express my appreciation for the excellent coverage given to the Oakland Meals-On-Wheels program in last week's issue of The Republican. Highlighting community services and citizens who serve is just one of the many vital contributions your publication makes to our area.

May I also take this opportunity to salute the kitchen staff at the hospital for the most important contribution they make to the program. In addition to those named in last week's article, Carrie Ahern and Alberta Hanft are the cooks. They and the diet aides are also deserving recognition.

Thank you,
Richard A. Seaks

Commission Endorses

A violation of any section of the proposed ordinance would be a misdemeanor, subject upon conviction to a fine of not less than $25. Each day on which a violation continues would be a separate offense.

Several changes were suggested by those attending, and a revised draft will now be studied by the Board of Commissioners prior to final hearing and adoption of a county junkyard ordinance.

In other business Monday, representatives from the Garrett County Interagency Committee on Mental Retardation met with the Commissioners to discuss potential sites for a group home facility for the mentally retarded in the county. The Committee had investigated 11 sites in detail and adopted two recommended locations for the Commissioners to consider.

One of the sites is on Broad Ford Road, the other on the Oakland-Sang Run Road a short distance past the golf course.

The Commissioners requested the group to completely review pertinent zoning applications and related clearances before they would consider conducting a public hearing. The Commissioners did, however, unanimously vote to endorse the Committee's recommendations.

Allen Musselman, executive director of Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation met with the Commissioners to brief them on state programs and on means of preserving agricultural land and agriculture as a way of life in the state.

Meeting Attracts

points about the mining industry is that it would bring a tremendous number of dollars into the county during the development and would considerably widen the county tax base, to the point that county taxes would decrease for everyone. It would also create numerous jobs.

Mr. Jones concluded by giving some facts about the Garrett County Development Corporation, after concern was raised about county tax money supporting the corporation. He stated that money spent by the corporation should be considered an investment by the county. He said that the corporation's record so far is solid. The corporation was instrumental in the establishment of Bausch and Lomb, Garrett Manufacturing, HV Test Systems and redeeming the Carnation Company. He finished by saying that the corporation does not discriminate between interested industries, whether they are coal companies or some other type of industry.

The meeting was then open for questions. Some of them, along with answers from the panel, are as follows:

Q. Does Garrett County give a tax break to industries?

A. No. There was a law on the books which provided for a tax break for industries, but it was removed just a few years ago.

Q. Will private property be condemned by the state or county so that access roads can be provided to the industrial site?

A. All other avenues will be attempted before even considering condemnation of land. Much of the land which would be involved in a right of way is owned by the B&O Railroad. There is little private property involved.

Q. Is it true that the county tries to get the state to condemn my farm [Ron Mark]?

A. No, that is not true.

Q. Has the county checked with the health department concerning water supply to this tract?

A. No.

Q. Has the county checked to see how much the Crellin water table would be affected?

A. No.

Q. Has the county been in contact with the Environmental Protection Agency?

A. No, all of these details have not yet been worked out. Everything is still in the early stages of development. However, air and water quality control is extremely strict. The law may even prevent construction of a coal preparation plant in Western Maryland, for example.

Q. Who pays for the road construction and engineering necessary for the industrial site?

A. Most, if not all such costs, would be paid for with funds appropriated by the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Q. What will the effects of the industrial park be on the Youghlogheny River?

A. Any development activity is bound to result in some runoff and cause an impact on streams. However the impact would be minimal. Once again, the environmental laws are quite explicit.

Q. What is the name of the coal company that showed an interest in the site?

A. The name of the man who contacted the Development Corporation was Harold Baity? I (Jones) don't know the name of the company.

Q. Why would a coal company which also considered a tract of land near Corinth cross the state line into Maryland when West Virginia taxes are one twentieth of Maryland taxes?

A. I don't know. (Jones). It was not mentioned by Mr. Baity.

Q. Is the county asking for the mineral rights of the Hutton site as well as the land?

A. No. The DNR would not give up any mineral rights anyway.

Q. What can we as property owners do to stop this project?

A. Continue to show concern by your letters and attendance at public meetings. All input by citizens is strongly considered by those making the decisions for the county. Public input is helpful. It offers guidance. The ultimate decision on this matter will rest with the county commissioners.

Following the questions and answers, Harold Janoske, a property owner whose land is adjacent to the proposed site, gave a forty-minute presentation noting a possible conflict of interests and possible collaboration between the Garrett County Development Corporation, the DNR Advisory Board, the county commissioners, a realty company and some coal companies. He also stated that the Development Corporation spent $562,000 of county money and that it was not audited. He asked Delegate DeCorsey Bolden, who was in attendance, if he would get some answers about the audit.

Delegate Bolden said he had no reluctance to pursue this, but would be reluctant to jump to the same conclusions concerning Janoske's alleged conspiracy.

Commissioner George Edwards then made various points about several issues raised during the evening. He said that there will be no condemnation of land under any circumstances. He said that Garrett County needs more employment opportunities because too many of the county's high school graduates are leaving the county. He stated that other types of industries, not just coal companies, have shown an interest in the industrial site. In reference to Mr. Janoske's presentation, Edwards said that all of the county records on budgets and monies spent are open to everyone. "We have nothing to hide," he concluded.

Commissioner Wayne Hamilton then made several remarks to conclude the meeting. He first stated that Mr. Janoske's conclusions were absolutely untrue. He said that too much is being assumed by too many people. "Our only interest, as commissioners, is to think in terms of economic opportunities for Garrett County. We will continue to explore all possibilities," he said.

As for the environment, Mr. Hamilton stated that the laws guard it well. He said many companies get upset because Garrett County laws are so strict.

Mr. Rickert closed the meeting by giving the addresses of all the panel members so interested persons could write to them with their comments and complaints. He said that there will be several more public meetings on this issue. All meetings will be advertised well in advance, he concluded.

Sheriff Releases Report For April

John Evans, Jr., Sheriff of Garrett County, released this week a monthly report of all investigations and activities conducted by his department during April.

His staff served over 254 papers on all civil, criminal, juvenile, law and equity cases, and answered over 160 complaints from various citizens.

A total of 300 patrol checks were made at the request of homeowners and businessmen.

Twenty-six arrests were made, on charges ranging from assault and battery, breaking and entering, larceny, and bad checks.

There were seven prisoners in the jail at the beginning of April with 41 added. Thirty-eight were released, leaving ten at the end of the month.

Four trips were made transporting prisoners to the state penitentiary, Springfield state hospital, or the children's center. All the above activity added 19,000 miles to the departmental vehicles.

A Rochester, N. Y., man has been sentenced to five years of psychiatric appointments for threatening to kill President Carter.

AMA HEALTH TIPS

Tetanus

With the advent of the spring season of 1978 most of us are beginning to get out of doors again. There are gardens and lawns that need work and outdoor chores of all sorts that have accumulated during the winter.

With the return of outdoor activities comes once again the hazard of minor accidents, cuts and scratches. Most often these aren't serious and will heal quickly if properly cleaned and protected.

The American Medical Association cautions that sometimes these scratches can be more serious. Sometimes they are the channel through which you could get tetanus, commonly called lockjaw.

Tetanus-producing spores lie dormant in the soil of your garden, the dirt of your garage. These spores can infect you through the tiniest wound — a pin scratch, a bee sting or a small cut.

Tetanus spores may remain in your body for long periods without producing the disease. Or, they may produce poison effects in five to fourteen days, even though the wound has healed.

First signs of tetanus are irritability and restlessness. Muscles rapidly become rigid, eventually causing a clenched-jaw leer that gives tetanus the popular name of lockjaw.

When symptoms appear, the outlook is grim, even with the best treatment. To avoid the deadly consequences, be sure you and your family are immunized with tetanus toxoid. When you are immunized, your body manufactures antibodies that will fight tetanus. A booster is needed every ten years.

If you aren't protected, in an emergency there is no time for immunization. If you have no built-in immunity, your physician may inject tetanus antitoxin. An emergency shot, however, is not always effective.

Your only long-range guarantee against tetanus is immunization with tetanus toxoid. Only one of every four Americans has this protection. Have you?

Flower Arranging Course Scheduled

Senate President Says Homeowners To Gain Some Property Tax Relief

Garrett County homeowners will be getting significant property tax relief as a result of more than $768,300 in economic benefits approved by the Maryland General Assembly, according to the President of the Maryland Senate, Steny H. Hoyer.

"About $460,000 will be direct relief to the County's property tax payers," Hoyer said, "and $308,000 will be state aid to local government."

The property tax relief will take several forms:

$253,900 will come from a ten percent reduction in the property tax assessments of all Garrett County homeowners and a 15% limit on future assessment increases.

$59,900 will come from a three cent reduction in the state property tax rate.

$146,300 will be dispensed under the Homeowners Tax Credit Program to taxpayers with limited incomes and those over the age of 60.

More than 940 Garrett County homeowners will be eligible for this program — the average tax savings will be $158.

Hoyer also said that Garrett County and its local governments will receive $43,900 in police aid; $241,300 in education aid; and the state will pay for $23,000 in local medicaid costs.

"The impact of the state's property tax relief package will be lessened if the local property tax rate is increased," Hoyer said. "It is our hope that the state aid for police protection, education and medicaid funding will relieve some of the financial pressure on the local governments and help them maintain their present tax rate."

Hoyer called the tax relief package the most important property tax reform that has been enacted in the 12 years he has been in the Maryland Senate. "The Homeowner's Tax Credit Program is specially significant," he said, "because it helps the people who really need it — the low and moderate income homeowners who simply cannot afford to keep up with skyrocketing assessments."

Mountain Top Gets Much Rain

A considerable amount of rain fell on the Mountain Top during the past week. Chilling temperatures prevailed also. The sun hid behind clouds most of the time.

Last Wednesday was clear until late afternoon when clouds gathered. Overcast skies with frequent rain showers then prevailed from Thursday through Saturday. Sunday began mostly cloudy turning cloudy in the afternoon with more rain at night. Monday was cloudy with showers in the afternoon. Yesterday was variably cloudy with occasional afternoon and evening showers. Clouds hid the sun again this morning but there were some light breaks in the clouds and also a light shower. The heaviest rain day was Friday with almost an inch, .92 inch. Just over half an inch was recorded Thursday and also Monday. Precipitation totaled 2.39 inches or just about half normal for May.

Temperature averaged four degrees below normal caused mostly by chilly daytime readings. Highs averaged 57.6 degrees or 7.8 below normal. The high was yesterday's 67 degrees. The coolest day was Saturday with a 51-degree reading. Lows averaged 38.4 degrees or .2 below normal. The low was a freezing 32 degrees Sunday. It was 33 degrees last Thursday and 34 the following day.

Been waiting for a Ford Fiesta?

Your ship just came in!
Fiesta, with front wheel drive, imported from Germany, is at your Ford Dealer now! It has already outsold every new car nameplate ever introduced in Europe (based on a comparison of sales in the first 16 months).
We think you'll be impressed by this little car. It offers advanced European engineering, quickness, maneuverability and surprising roominess.
Fiesta was designed to perform on the high-speed European autobahns, and to be quick and maneuverable in city driving. In Ford tests it did 0-50 MPH in an average of 8.8 seconds. And Fiesta's 4-passenger design has created more back seat legroom than any other imported or domestic car of its kind.
So test-drive a Fiesta at your Ford Dealer and see why we say, your ship just came in!

Lakers Close Regular Season 27-8

Three times Saturday, Garrett Community College was within one pitch of a doubleheader sweep of Catonsville, but Lady Luck caused the Lakers to settle for a season-ending split, winning the first game 9-4, and losing the second game 8-6.

Laker starter, Fred Griffin, led the nightcap 5-3, taking two outs and then getting two strikes against the next three batters. He dropped all three with hits and the Cardinals managed to tie the game five-all, winning the game in the 10th.

In the opener GCC had two significant run-scoring innings and took the 9-4 advantage. Jim Hasinger started the first big inning when he struck a bases loaded double in the second. In the sixth Greg McGory, Mark Martini, Tim Hornick, and Rex Walbolt each took a single to add four more runs to the GCC scoreboard.

The loss of the nightcap ended a nine-game winning streak for the Lakers who will not take a 27-8 record into Region XX NJCAA play this weekend at Prince Georges Community College.

Southern Golfers' Record Now 5-1

Southern collected a team score of 364 to defeat Beall by 20 shots in a match at the Maplehurst Country Club last Monday, May 1.

Dan Daniels topped the winners with 83 while Larry Sanders had a 90 and Jeff Orr a 91.

Tim Pleacher earned a 90 and Kevin Plummer a 92 for the Mountaineers.

The Rams had a team 341 to 385 for Central and 407 for West Preston.

The Southern golf team currently stands at 5-1 for the season and 110-2 for their career tally.

St. Paul's Sponsors May Fellowship

"Promises we keep" was the theme of the May Fellowship Day Celebration conducted at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Accident, on Friday by the Church Women United Unit of Garrett County.

Pastor and Mrs. William Carlson were in charge of the registration. A business meeting followed and it was announced that the Maryland State meeting of Church Women United will be held this year at Drayton Manor, Kent County, with Cornelia Smith of Baltimore City as director. Charlotte Mousch reported on the financing of the local unit, and the many projects the offerings funded. The Fellowship of the Least Coin was part of the offering for the day. During the election of officers, Martha Glotfelty was re-elected as president, and Evelyn Steyer was re-elected as secretary for a second term. Audrey Brenneman was elected as Vice-President to succeed Evelyn Wildesen who could no longer serve. Other officers are Charlotte Mousch, treasurer, and Rose Lee Folk, ecumenical coordinator. Mrs. Brenneman will be installed as vice-president in November.

Following the meeting a luncheon was served by the ladies of St. Paul's church.

The worship service began with a welcome address by Pastor Carlson. Those taking part in the presentation of the program were Helen Silber, Mary June Harvey, Shirley Panther, Ferne Beachy, Mattie Tusing, Charlotte Mousch, Pearl Rush, Audrey Brenneman, Norma Mitchell, Minnie Wolfe, Evelyn Steyer, Melda Bittinger, Dessie Bell, Ellen Humberson, and Virginia Rainey.

The program emphasized the promises made for us by our parents at baptism, those we make at our Confirmation and the vows we make at the time of our marriage. Norma Mitchell spoke on the Biblical imperatives involved in all of these promises with readings from the Old and New Testaments. All those present signed a scroll renewing these promises. The scroll was made by Robert Slautterback a member of St. Paul's.

Posters depicting the various areas of promises were made by Harriett Buckel of the Bittinger Emmanuel congregation and Gail Frazee of Asher Glade Brethren Church.

Arlene Green sang two solos, "A Hill Called Calvary," and "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked." Special music was provided by a choir composed of Helen Henline, Bertha Simmons, Helen Keller, Pearl Rush, Thelma Humberson, Ann Mummert, Bertha Tower, Isabel Klotz, Miriam Maust, Florence Deniker, Beulah Rush, Hazel Margroff, Orpha Miller, Carol Frazee, Norma Mitchell and Arlene Green.

Registration showed five denominations participating in the May Fellowship Day celebration, namely, Methodist, Lutheran, Mennonite, Brethren and Roman Catholic, with participants from 17 individual congregations with a total of 65 individuals in attendance.

The Unit was invited to hold their World Community Day Celebration at Bethel Methodist Church, Mt. Lake Park in November. Betty Wildesen of the Otterbein Methodist Church volunteered to help with planning the program for that day.

The May Fellowship Day planning committee consisted of JoAnn Slautterback, Chairman and Helen Keller, Helen Silber, Audrey Brenneman and Martha Glotfelty. Mrs. Glotfelty also served as organist and Rose Lee Folk as choir director.

"PROMISES WE KEEP," was the theme of the May Fellowship Day celebration at St. Paul's Church, Accident. The program emphasized the promises related to baptism, marriage and confirmation and the importance of keeping the promises. After the presentation the participants signed a scroll and renewed their pledges. Pictured are officers of the Church Women United Unit of Garrett County holding posters depicting the three sacraments and their significance. They are, left to right, Martha Glotfelty, president; Evelyn Wildesen, vice president; Evelyn Steyer, secretary; and Charlotte Mousch, treasurer.

Members of five denominations and 17 congregations attended a May Fellowship Day Celebration Friday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Accident. The program was hosted by the Church Women United Unit of Garrett County and 65 participants enjoyed a luncheon served by the ladies of St. Paul's, a worship service, and a special program.

Some Minor Wrecks Noted Last Week

A few minor accidents happened early last week at opposite ends of the county. There were no apparent injuries.

One mishap occurred at the intersection of Md. 135 and old 219 at Foodland, the evening of May 1. David E. Burleson, Kernesville, N. C., was eastbound on Rt. 135 as Timothy N. Everly, Rowlesburg, W. Va., was driving west. Everly attempted to make a left turn and drove into the path of the Burleson pick-up. Tfc. L. R. Rosage charged Everly with failing to grant the right-of-way to the other vehicle.

The following evening Nancy J. Turner, Cresaptown, was driving west on U.S. 40 near the Lower New Germany road when a deer darted onto the roadway. She went to the left to avoid the animal, lost control of the car, went off the road to the right and struck a telephone pole. Tfc. Dale Williams made no charges.

A minor accident occurred on the Friendsville-Addison road at the bridge over Mill Run minutes after a fatal accident at the same point just past midnight, May 2. Pamela A. Manges, Morgantown, W. Va. approached the scene and ran into a piece of a steel guard rail that had been thrown there by the previous fatal accident. When she struck the object it caused both front tires to go flat. Tfc. R. C. George investigated this mishap as well as the just previous fatal wreck, reported last week.

by Cathy Helbig

At a Sunday School picnic, in 1879, the Superintendent threw one lemon and two strawberries in the creek and sold the water to the scholars as strawberry lemonade at five cents a glass. The denomination of the church was not mentioned, nor the credibility of the writer.

"President Hayes and party passed through Oakland Monday evening. A large crowd was collected at the depot, a number of whom had the pleasure of shaking hands with the President."

In 1879 the public school funds were a bit less exorbitant than present day. "The distribution by the State of the public funds for school purposes for the quarter ending October 1879 gives to Allegany and Garrett counties $5,065.70 for white schools and $151.10 for colored schools."

A Mr. Johnson was married in jail at Cumberland to Nettie McCabric, which put "an end to a suit brought by the girl against him while an area man was declared to be an "insane pauper" by a jury and ordered taken to the Maryland Hospital.

"An ordinary sore throat may be cured in twenty-four hours by rubbing well with coal oil and wrapping a piece of flannel around it that has been saturated with the oil and gargling with a solution of alum and water." Of course, don't plan on playing the trumpet too soon afterwards.

The summer season brought many tourists to the Oakland area; "Among the guests at the Oakland Hotel are three members of the Chinese legation; Tam Kin Cho, Ting Miun Kiow and Tsu Soow Ke, all well educated and polished in their manners."

The summer also brought a yield of vegetables large enough to be mentioned in the paper. Mr. J. P. Kampffer had a radish that measured 26" in circumference. A beet grown by John Lower measured 25" in circumference, was 22" long and weighed 17 lbs.

At the end of the summer, Josiah Summers of Sang Run had killed 281 rattlesnakes. "He ought to be pensioned by the County Commissioners."

Public Meeting Concerning Ginseng Set For Monday

Delegate DeCorsey E. Bolden (R), District #1A, announced that a public meeting would be held in the First National Bank Community Meeting Room, Oakland, at 7:30 p.m. on May 15 to discuss the future of "Ginseng hunting in Maryland."

Delegate Bolden said, "The Federal Government has placed a ban on the export of Ginseng root from this country. This was done because Ginseng is fast becoming an endangered species. The popular sport of 'Sangin' and the apparent high price being paid for the root has caused an increase in the number of people participating and consequently a decline in the abundance of Ginseng in our western Counties." Delegate Bolden continued, "Legislation may not be the answer and in order to acquire valuable information from those who hunt "Ginseng" and so that they may help to arrive at a solution to the problem, this public meeting was arranged." Ron Johnson, Director, Division of Plant Industries of the Maryland Department of Agriculture will conduct the meeting.

"Sangin, is an important way of life to many of our residents and I expect that through these efforts and perhaps some compromise as to when the root can be taken the sport may continue to thrive."

Preserving Memories . . .

An exhibit by another one of Garrett County's budding artists is presently on display at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland. An original collection of oils, charcoal drawings, silk screens and woodcuts by Cathy Lohr, of Oakland, will remain on display through this Saturday, May 13.

Cathy, a native of McKeesport, Pa., is one of twins born May 26, 1946, to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Miers.

Her interest in art was discovered during her high school days. Following her graduation from McKeesport High School, she attended Nazareth College near Louisville, Ky.

While in college she met and later married Robert F. Lohr of Oakland. Bob serving with the U. S. Army in Anchorage, Alaska, at the time and the breathtaking Alaskan landscaping encouraged Cathy more than ever to utilize her artistic abilities.

Cathy then tabled her talents for several years in order to raise her two children. She has just recently had the time to return to the canvas. A recent cruise to the Caribbean and a more recent tour of the West Coast have provided Cathy's latest inspiration.

"I like to preserve memories by painting them. It provides enjoyment and self-satisfaction for myself, as well as pleasure to those who may perhaps discover some of their own memories or interests in my work," she said.

Besides pursuing an art career and raising a family, Cathy also does the bookwork for her husband's wholesale beer business and serves as secretary of the Garrett County Licensed Beverage Association.

Cathy says her favorite artist is none other than Garrett County's own, Aza Stanton. Her favorite subjects include scenic landscapes, sunsets, lakes and streams. She also has a rather extensive collection of charcoal drawings of various purebred dogs.

Cathy's creations reflect quite a flexible sytle. Two of her works could be placed side by side and an unknowing viewer would probably not be able to tell that the two were done by the same artist. Some of her works, particularly the landscapes, are done in brilliant, striking oils, whereas some of her other scenes are composed in soft, subtle charcoals and pastels. She also has a number of abstract pieces.

When asked if her twin sister, Clara Kirk, of Deep Creek Lake, possesses a similar talent for art, Cathy replied, "Yes, actually she's pretty good. But she has never been interested in developing it."

Some of Cathy's pieces now hang at her alma mater, Nazareth College. She just recently returned from Clarksburg, W. Va., after presenting an exhibit in a public library there. Some of her work will be on display at the Starlite Motel Dining Room within the next few weeks.

One of Cathy's woodcuts just recently took Best of the Show in the Garrett County 4-H sponsored Art Show. She has just begun to sell some of her paintings and is also available for commissioned work.

For those interested in art, you may well find something you like in Cathy Lohr's collection.

EXHIBITS ARE HARD WORK! — Local artist, Cathy Lohr, gets some much needed rest and relaxation after setting up her one-woman show at the Ruth Enlow Library. Besides the actual time spent on the artwork an artist spends hours fixing, matting and framing her work. The exhibit will remain on display through this Saturday, May 13.

FAMILIAR SCENES — Cathy Lohr preserves familiar scenes of Deep Creek Lake and Garrett County on her canvases. She feels "they may provide pleasure to those who may perhaps discover memories or interests in my work."

FIRST PLACE WINNER — This multi-color woodcut of two mallards recently took the Best in Show award at the Blue Pine Spring Riders' 4-H Club Art Show at Garrett Community College.

State Funeral Planned For Moro

ROME (UPI) — The Christian Democratic Party, apparently overruling the expressed wishes of the family, announced today a state funeral would be held Saturday for ex-Premier Aldo Moro, murdered by his Red Brigades kidnappers.

Officials also announced the government's emergency "Plan 3" was put into effect at dawn today with police reinforcements rushed to guard all major political figures, party headquarters, ministries, public buildings and embassies against any new strike by the terrorists.

The announcement came as Moro's old friend, Pope Paul VI, his voice quavering with emotion, called the former premier's murder "a stain of blood that dishonors our country."

The pontiff eulogized Moro at his weekly general audience as Italy's parliament, shocked but united by a national outcry to avenge Moro's slaying, was called into session today to back a tough new anti-terrorist law aimed at the Red Brigades.

But violence continued in Rome, when a terrorist hit squad of three men and a woman pumped five bullets into the legs of a director of Italy's vast Montedison Corp. in a Red Brigades-style "knee-capping."

The Christian Democratic Party — which had been headed by Moro — said the state funeral would be held at the basilica of St. Johns in Lateran in Rome. Party leaders said the funeral would be held without the body.

Moro's embittered family has planned a quiet, private funeral in Turrita Tiberina.

In a statement Tuesday, the family it did not want any state funeral, and all but told political leaders they would not be welcome at the private funeral.

Initial autopsy reports, meanwhile, said Moro had apparently attempted to defend himself as his killers began to pump the first of 11 bullets into his chest.

Medical examiners said one bullet grazed the thumb of Moro's right hand indicating he had lifted the hand to his heart to ward off the bullets.

The Interior Ministry said "Plan 3" had been drawn up for use immediately after the Moro case reached conclusion in case the Red Brigades attempt to "throw the country into chaos."

The ministry said it was working on the theory that the Red Brigades would time "a sensational terrorist action" with the conclusion of the Moro kidnapping.

North of Rome, hundreds of police searchers combed the beach areas of Fregene for the hideout of Moro's kidnappers. They said sand found in the cuffs of Moro's trousers matched the white sands of Fregene.

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the new knee-cap attack, but such leg shootings are a favorite Red Brigades method of warning their enemies that they have incurred the gang's wrath.

B.P.W. CONVENTION PLANS were finalized Saturday afternoon in a planning session held at Will o' the Wisp, McHenry. This year's annual Business and Professional Women's gathering will be held at Hunt Valley, with members from five hostess clubs, including Garrett County, in charge of various responsibilities. Garrett County's representatives on the committee are Anne Connor, seated, above left, and Phyllis Trickett, seated at right. Others attending the meeting were, front row, left to right, Mabel Basore, credentials chairman; Louise Crist, convention chairman; Henrietta Potter, registration chairman. In the back row are Lillian Martin, Thurmont club; Thelma Henneberger, Hagerstown; Cleo Knippenberg and Gladys Kennedy, Cumberland; Garnetta Funkhouser, Mildred Smith, Celia Ausherman, Nellie Bryan and Janet Newcomer, all of Hagerstown. The convention will be held at Hunt Valley May 26-28. Representing the local club in addition to the committee members will be Barbara Flinn, Eleanor Deal, Pam Ashby, Mildred Wucik, and Helen Harman.

Mystery Illness Still Under Study

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — A spokesman for the state Environmental Health Administration says there is not much hope that the cause of a mysterious illness that has struck more than 100 persons will be found soon.

Jon C. Crosby, a spokesman for the state Environmental Health Administration, said test results are due within the next few days, taken from some of the persons who ate lunch at a Howard County restaurant.

He said the state's Central Laboratory in Baltimore is studying food samples and fecal samples from persons suffering from the disease.

Officials of the state Bureau of Food and Drugs said they do not know what caused the virus-like illness, which struck patrons of the Henkel's Restaurant and Lounge in Annapolis Junction 10 days ago.

Dr. Mark Goldberger, a state epidemiologist for the state, said most of the people taken ill ate roast beef or ham sandwiches and drank beer, mixed drinks or soft drinks and showed symptoms of nausea, diarrhea, fever, headaches and vomiting.

William Zepp, a Howard County food inspector, said none of the persons were seriously ill and all recovered within two or three days.

State officials said cases of the illness were reported in Howard, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, and Prince George's counties.

"We've ruled out upper gastro-intestinal diseases (GI), intoxication and immediate poisoning," said Margaret Bush, the bureau's field supervisor.

"The cases imply a lower GI disturbance, but we don't know what it is," she said.

Auto Makers Rather Pay Fines Than Meet 1985 Requirements

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U. S. automakers probably will choose to pay fines rather than fully meet the 1985 fuel efficiency standards required by law, Energy Department officials say.

That prediction is one among many in a new report saying the nation's appetite for energy appears likely to grow faster than its domestic energy supply through 1990 under present policies.

Energy Department officials issued the report Monday, saying they had waited as long as possible for Congress to act on energy legislation it has been considering for more than a year. The report was required by law.

On Capitol Hill, Republicans said the natural gas compromise worked out in secret by a few congressional negotiators as part of the proposed new package of energy legislation is worse than no bill at all.

The gas-pricing plan was to be presented to the full House-Senate energy conference committee today. The plan would allow prices for newly produced gas to increase sharply until 1985, when federal price controls would end.

"The principal weakness in this so-called compromise is that it will do very little, if anything, to bring on more natural gas," Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., told reporters.

"This is not phased deregulation. It is regulation to eternity," Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, said. And Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., called the complex plan "a lawyer's dream but a nightmare for the country."

The new forecast by the Energy Department's Energy Information Administration said new cars are likely to achieve as little as an average 21 miles per gallon by 1985, instead of the 27 mpg required by law. Administration officials said they believe at least some auto makers would rather pay fines than meet the 27-mpg standard.

Mrs. Carter Ends Official Costa Rica Visit On Tuesday

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Rosalynn Carter ended her official visit to Costa Rica with a surprise announcement that she hopes fugitive financier Robert Vesco will stand trial in America.

Vesco, who since 1973 had lived in exile here and successfully fought extradition efforts, left Costa Rica 10 days ago — presumably for a Caribbean island nation.

Mrs. Carter, who relaxed today at a suburban country club after ending her official duties at the inauguration of President Rodrigo Carazon, stunned the press corps in a 15-minute news conference Tuesday by referring to the financier.

"We want him to return to the United States to stand trial," she said.

Mrs. Carter dropped her remark after President Carazo said he did not want Vesco to return to Costa Rica.

And in an interview with the morning newspaper La Nacion, Carazo said he has signed a degree barring Vesco from ever returning to this country.

He said all immigration and border officials have specific instruction to refuse entry to Vesco should he try to return.

Vesco is charged by the securities and exchange commission with "looting" the mutual funds company he formerly headed — International Overseas Services — of some $224 million.

Mrs. Carter planned a private three-day vacation in Costa Rica before her departure Friday.

Wife Of Soviet Defector Dies

MOSCOW (UPI) — The wife of Soviet U.N. defector Arkady Shevchenko has died in Moscow from what her son said was a heart attack hastened by her husband's defection and what a semi-official Soviet source described as suicide.

The son, Gennady Shevchenko, denied reports that his mother, Leongina, committed suicide and a family spokesman said she died in a Moscow hospital Monday.

"She died a natural death," Gennady told UPI by telephone. "She had suffered from a heart ailment for a long time and was in a terrible state after my father's defection.

"I think that is what killed her."

"I was here when she became ill," he said. "I took her to the hospital and she died there.

"The postmortem examination has not yet established the reason for her death, but she died a natural death."

But one semi-official Soviet source reported that Mrs. Shevchenko died of an overdose of sleeping pills and the family found her body in a closet at a Moscow apartment.

The source said medical examiners were ruling it suicide.

The source said Mrs. Shevchenko had been depressed by reports from the United States indicating that her husband had been involved with Western intelligence agencies for several years and that he was linked with other women.

Shevchenko, an expert in arms control, quit his $76,000-a-year post as U.N. undersecretary general — the highest Soviet position in the world body's secretariat.

After pocketing more than $80,000 in severance pay, the 42-year-old diplomat said he planned to life a "free" life in the United States.

Mrs. Shevchenko and a daughter, Anna, returned to Moscow from New York a few days before Shevchenko announced he was refusing orders to return home because he was in disagreement with the policies of the Soviet government.

Mrs. Shevchenko told Western journalists in Moscow April 11 she believed her husband's defection was a "provocation or else he is ill."

Gennady, a 25-year-old junior Soviet foreign service officer, was recalled to Moscow from his post in Geneva, Switzerland immediately after his father's defection.

"If you have some way of communicating with my father, please tell him this news," Gennady told UPI.

"We have had no contact with him since he stayed behind in New York. I am surprised that he has not tried to phone us here at home."

Shevchenko, considered a protege of Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, was a top aide to the U.N. Security Council for five years before his resignation.

Italy Plans New Anti-Terrorist Law

ROME (UPI) — Italy's parliament, shocked but united by a national outcry to avenge Aldo Moro's murder, was called into session today to back a tough new anti-terrorist law aimed at Moro's Red Brigades kidnappers.

But violence continued in Rome, when a terrorist hit squad of three men and a woman pumped five bullets into the legs of a director of Italy's vast Montedison Corp. in a Red Brigades-style "kneecapping."

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the attack, but such leg shootings are a favorite Red Brigades method of warning their enemies that they have incurred the gang's wrath.

In Turin, Red Brigades founders Renato Curcio and Alberto Frenacheschini called the murder of Moro was an "act of revolutionary justice" and "the highest act of humanity" in striking against the state.

Curcio was imediately ejected from the packed and heavily guarded courtroom where he and 12 other Brigades are being tried on terrorism charges.

Basque Guerrillas Gun Down Policeman

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Suspected separatist guerrillas early today machine-gunned a patrol car near the cemetery of the Basque town of San Sebastian, killing one policeman and injuring three others.

The attack came less than 24 hours after separatists blew up another vehicle of the paramilitary civil guards in the Basque town of Pamplona, killing one policeman and injuring two others.

The civil guard killed in Pamplona was buried late Tuesday.

Police identified the civil guard killed in San Sebastian as Juan Marcos Gonzalez. One of the three injured was reported in critical condition, with a bullet in his brain.

The ammunition used in the attack was of the type that "Basque Homeland and Liberty," a separatist guerrilla group, has been using in its numerous attacks on policemen and right-wing militants, police said.

Last Step Was Four Stories High

SEATTLE (UPI) — John Wilburn threw his seabag and sleeping bag out the window of the Lutheran Compass Mission and stepped out himself. He later told police he didn't realize it was so high.

Wilburn, 23, fell four stories to the pavement Monday night. He was in serious condition Tuesday at Harborview Medical Center with multiple arm, leg, pelvic and spinal fractures.

Police reported he told them he just "wanted to get out of the building."

A companion in the room said Wilburn woke up about 11 p.m. and decided he wanted to leave.

First "Big Mac Attack" Reported

BOSTON (UPI) — The first known case of "Big Mac Attack" has been reported by doctors at McGill University in Montreal.

A 35-year-old woman had a "life-threatening attack of angioedema" after eating one of the McDonalds' double-decker hamburgers, the doctors reported in the current issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The illness — which causes abnormal swelling of the face, trunks and arms — was treated with drugs and the woman recovered, the doctors said.

McDonalds officials in Montreal cooperated with doctors from McGill's Teaching Hospital who tried to determine the substance that caused the woman's sudden illness.

They tried allergy tests unsuccessfully on the woman with most of Big Mac's ingredients — egg, beef, wheat, mustard, lettuce, tomato, onion, garlic and sesame seed.

They finally found the woman was allergic to gum tragacanth, a substance added to certain brands of food to give bulk, thickness and binding qualities.

"In view of the widespread consumption of 'Big Macs,' we wish to alert other physicians to this hidden allergen," the doctors said.

Dog Subpoenaed In Brutality Case

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — The arresting officer's reply to charges of mistreating a suspect is likely to be brief.

Sultan is somewhat different from the other officers on the force. He's a police dog—not a misnamed German Shepherd, but a Doberman pinscher who serves on the police force.

He was subpoenaed recently to appear in the trial of a robbery suspect he helped arrest.

The suspect is charging police brutality. He allegedly was bitten by a Sultan, who is, after all, a police brute.

The officer who handles Sultan, Bobby George, served the subpoena on the Doberman, who confirmed receipt with an inky paw print, promising to appear in Vista Superior Court June 5.

"At least we don't have to pay him time and a half for overtime," said Police Chief Rolf Henze.

Mine Health Hazards Under Review

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U. S. appeals court ruled Tuesday that a mine operator who is served with a health violation notice cannot legally seek administrative review of the order while miners continue working in the affected area.

The court said Congress in passing the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 made it clear "the first priority and concern of all in the coal mining industry must be the health and safety of its most precious resource - the miner.

"That priority was reflected in the act's review provisions, which did not tolerate either temporary relief from notices of violation or, as we now hold, review on the merits of the violation charged while miners continued to work in the affected area."

"Only when the miners had been removed, or after the violation had been abated and civil-penalty proceedings instituted, did the (mine) operator become entitled to challenge" the violation notice, the ruling said.

The court reversed a ruling by the federal Board of Mine Operations Appeals, which had agreed with an administrative law judge that he had jurisdiction to extend the period set by the Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration to get rid of a violation or to set aside the violation notice as unwarranted.

At issue in this case was a violation notice served on Carbon Fuel Co., which operates several mines in the West Virginia Appalachian region, that a central bathhouse was located too far away for workers to conveniently use it.

The United Mine Workers appealed to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia, saying the company had to get rid of the violation or wait until it received an order to withdraw workers from the affected area before seeking administrative review.

Princess Filing Suit For Divorce

LONDON (UPI) — Buckingham Palace announced today that Princess Margaret has filed suit for divorce from the Earl of Snowdon on the grounds of a breakdown of their marriage since they have lived apart for more than two years.

These grounds mean the divorce would be granted automatically without court testimony about the stormy marriage whose final argument centered around the friendship of the 47-year-old sister of Queen Elizabeth and Roddy Llewellyn, 31-year-old pop singer and dilettante.

The announcement came almost on the 18th anniversary of the wedding in Westminster Abbey on May 6, 1960, that united the daughter of King George VI and the court photographer, then Antony Armstrong-Jones.

It said: "Her Royal Highness the Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon and the Earl of Snowdon, after two years of separation have agreed that their marriage should formally be ended. Accordingly Her Royal Highness will start the necessary legal proceedings."

A palace spokesman said the princess, who is in King Edward VII hospital suffering from suspected gastro-enteritis, has no plans for remarriage. He said the palace could not speak for Snowdon who has reverted to the name he bore as a commoner but Armstrong-Jones has frequently been in the company of Lucy Lindsay-Hogg, his assistant in television

The spokesman said the princess was making good progress in the hospital but the results of tests would not be known until Friday. He said the divorce would not alter her position in the royal family and she would resume her duties as soon as she was able.

He stressed that she and Snowdon were still friends, that the divorce was amicable and that she would retain custody of the two children, Viscount Linley, 16, and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 14, Snowdon having the access agreed upon at the time of the separation in March 1976.

Divorce is not unknown in Britain's royal family. King Henry VIII disposed of wives that way and several years ago the queen's first cousin, the Earl of Harewood was involved in a somewhat sensational suit.

Flush Once For Operator, Please

ST. GEORGE, UTAH (UPI) — For several weeks, the phones in the office of a group of St. George Attorneys would ring but there was nobody on the other end.

Finally, one of the office staff noticed that every time somebody went to the restroom, the "phantom" would call. Closer inspection revealed that when someone sat on the toilet, the phone would ring.

Mountain Bell technicians were called in and found the telephone system in the office was grounded to a water pipe on the floor below. When someone sat on the commode, the circuit would be broken and the phone would ring.

A STITCH IN TIME, or rather thousands of stitches is what fourth grade students at Broad Ford Elementary School have put into this beautiful quilt. The students have spent over a month so far on the quilt which is a class fund raising project to obtain money for the fourth grade's Summer Weekly Readers. They were assisted in the design and sewing by several mothers under the direction of teachers, Sue Raines, Corinne Crumley and Norma Rickman. The quilt represents Maryland and includes the Garrett County symbol, the state bird (Baltimore Oriole), the state flower (Black-eyed Susan), the State House and outlines of all Maryland counties. Shown displaying the quilt are, left to right, Allan Willis, Amy Landon, Jerry Kestner, Johnna Marple and Rita Harvey.

Library "Speak Out" Scheduled At GCC

A "Speak Out" on Library and Information Services will be held at Garrett Community College on May 23 at 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss issues and to select four delegates to the State of Maryland Governor's Conference on Libraries and Information Services called by Acting Governor Blair Lee, III, for October of this year. The Governor has called the State Conference to prepare for the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services which will be held in September of 1979.

The White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services will bring together the collective ideas of American citizens from all walks of life to focus on all types of libraries and how to provide the kinds of information and recreational services that Americans desire.

Ideas for improving library and information service must first be sought at the local level during preliminary conferences in the states and territories. Then citizen representatives from all the states will join forces at the White House Conference to pool ideas and plans for action.

Nomination forms for delegates are available at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland and at all branches.

MY PRAYER

"Dear God, he is so small and innocent. I hold him close to me, filled with my love for him, and, because this love is so great, I am terribly afraid.

"I want him to grow big, strong—yet I cannot bear the thought of all that means. I cannot bear the thought of the dangers, disappointments, anguish, even the agony, that inevitably will be part of his life.

"How powerless I am! If only I could feel his pain for him! If only I could shoulder his disappointments, face his perils, solve his dilemmas! I can't—so I ask You the question thousands of mothers before me have asked: What can I do for him, dear God? In Your love and wonderful mercy, show me the right way, please, through Yourself and Your Church."

THREE VISIONS

Lesson for May 14, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 10

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 1:18-25

The story of Simon Peter and Cornelius the Centurian is a tale of three visions.

The first of these was the vision that came to Cornelius while he was praying. Luke tells us that he was a Roman officer, commander of a unit of 100 men from the Italian mainland. Cornelius was stationed at Caesarea, a coastal city that became the Roman capitol of Judea. Furthermore, he was "a devout man who feared God," a term often applied to Gentiles (non-Jews) who adopted Jewish religious ideas and attended the synagogues without going so far as receiving circumcision and becoming full proselytes.

Rev. Althouse

Praying constantly

Cornelius was a man who took religion seriously and, as Luke puts it, "prayed constantly." It is in the midst of praying one day that he sees a vision. The vision is a reassurance that God has heard his prayers and also an instruction to send someone to bring Simon Peter to his household. Cornelius was not only a devout man, he was also obedient and he does as he is told.

The second vision takes place while Cornelius' messengers are on their way to Joppa. Having ascended to the rooftop of the house of Simon the Tanner to pray, Peter falls into a trance. In the vision the hungry man is instructed to kill and eat some of the creatures he sees, but Peter refuses because some of the animals are forbidden as food by the Jewish law. But the vision's voice commands him: "What God has cleansed you must not call common" (10:15).

Truly I perceive!

While Peter is still trying to understand the meaning of his vision, the messengers arrive. We cannot tell whether he realizes immediately what the vision means, but even his decision to go with the messengers was a breakthrough, for Jewish law forbade all but the most necessary contacts with Gentiles who like the animals in Peter's vision were thought to be "unclean" in a spiritual sense.

So Peter goes to Caesarea and meets Cornelius and each shares his vision with the other. Peter must have been somewhat amazed that God would reveal himself to a Gentile in a vision and he must have been equally overwhelmed with the attitude he found: "Now therefore we are all present here in the sight of God, to hear all that you have been commanded by the Lord" (10:33).

By means of this experience the doors of the church were opened wide to the Gentile as well as the Jew, a development that profoundly affected the whole course of Christianity.

LET'S HEAR IT FOR THE MOTHERS
Every year we try to come up with a special Mother's Day message. Sometimes we extoll the virtues of Mom and sometimes we praise her many accomplishments. We have discussed at times, her devotion, dedication and unending love for her family. And, we have written of how Mom comes through in time of need when a family member is ill.
And, yet no matter how much we say about Mom, it is impossible to say enough. So when all the adjectives have been used up and all the superlatives are gone, we have to fall back on that old reliable—HAPPY MOTHER'S DAY.

Counties, City Receive Beer Tax Revenues

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced late last week that State beer tax revenues collected during the third quarter of Fiscal Year 1978 will provide $879,924 to Maryland's twenty-three counties and Baltimore City. Mr. Goldstein reported that checks totaling that amount are being distributed to local governments based on beer deliveries within each subdivision.

Approximately 4½ cents of the 9 cent tax collected on each gallon of beer is shared with the subdivisions. The distribution is determined by beer deliveries to retail dealers in each jurisdiction, as reported to the Comptroller's Office by Maryland's licensed beer wholesalers.

For the most recent quarter (January, February and March, 1978) the largest single check went to Baltimore City ($196,608). Other counties receiving large checks were: Prince George's ($150,181), Baltimore ($147,039), Anne Arundel ($82,324), and Montgomery ($76,890). Garrett County received $4,710.09.

For the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978, a total of $3,053,806 has been returned to the subdivisions as their share of Maryland beer tax revenue.

R. Thomas Thayer Attends Institute Meet In Chicago

R. Thomas Thayer, Jr., president of Garrettland Realty, attended the Spring meetings of the Farm and Land Institute in Chicago May 3 through May 7. He is one of over 200 Institute members who attended these meetings which are held in conjunction with the meetings of the National Association of Realtors. Thayer was elected president of Chapter 32 of the Farm & Land Institute in February. His area encompasses Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

This is the third year that Thayer has attended the Spring meetings, held to provide the Institute's leadership, committees and individual members with up-to-date information on issues affecting the Agri business and urban and rural land ownership.

A highlight of the meetings was the opening session at which Robert B. Teska was the speaker. Teska, who has his own consultant firm in Evanston, IL., is an expert in regional planning, community development, site design, environmental assessment and land use guidance. Thayer was also briefed in federal legislation affecting property ownership.

The Farm and Land Institute, headquartered in Chicago, is an affiliate of the 550,000 member National Association of Realtors, formulated to bring together the realtor and realtor-associate interested in improving his or her professional competence in all aspects of the land segment of the real estate business.

Farmers May Now Put 1977 Corn In Grain Reserve

Maryland corn and sorghum growers can start to transfer their 1977 crops under loan into the farmer controlled Grain Reserve Program, Paul A. Crowl, an official with the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, said.

"When growers place these 1977 crops into a reserve contract, they will receive immediate cash storage payment of 25 cents per bushel," Crowl said. Interested farmers should apply at the county ASCS office.

The Feed Grain Reserve has a national goal of about 715 million bushels. Farmers have until May 31 to place 1977 crop corn and sorghum under loan.

Joining the three-year reserve commits the grain to storage until market prices reach 125 percent of the loan level when the loan is eligible for redemption. A farmer may choose to sell at that time or wait until prices rise to 140 percent of the feed grain loan level which is the "call level." The farmer may then redeem his loan or the government will call the loan.

Crowl said that if the Feed Grain Reserve meets its objectives, most of the carryover stocks will be insulated from the marketplace and that will increase prices farmers receive.

Cooking Corner

by Mariane

What would you think if you were told you could have some of the food for tonight's meal provided free of charge? You can find free food and there are no strings attached to this offer. All you need to do is go outdoors and find some dandelions which have not blossomed yet. Cut the green leaves and you're on your way to serving free food for supper.

Most people don't think of dandelions as anything but weeds—pesky weeds, at that. However, young dandelion leaves are edible and provided an interesting salad green and vegetable substitute for any meal. You must pick young dandelions because the older dandelions with blossoms will be too bitter for most people's tastes. Wash and trim your greens and use one of the following recipe ideas for preparation or be brave and try using your dandelions in any recipe which uses spinach-type greens. Dandelions don't taste like spinach but this is the nearest thing I can compare them to in taste and texture.

There are many tasty edibles which grow in the wild but most of us just don't recognize them as food items. If you would be interested in attending a workshop about wild foods, please contact the Garrett Community College, Oakland Center at 334-8266 and express your interest. If enough people express interest, the Garrett Community College, Oakland Center, will provide a workshop in the future.

DANDELION SALAD

4 cups dandelions, washed and chopped
3 slices bacon
1½ Tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
2 Tablespoons sugar
¼ cup vinegar
2 cups milk or water
3 hard-cooked eggs (optional)

Cut bacon in pieces and fry until crisp. Remove bacon from drippings and reserve crisp bacon pieces for garnish. To make dressing, mix together the dry ingredients, add egg, vinegar and milk and water. Stir until well blended. Cook this mixture in the bacon drippings until thickened and cool slightly.

Pour dressing over dandelions and mix lightly. Garnish with reserved crisp bacon pieces and, if desired, sliced or chopped hard-cooked eggs. Serves 6.

The following recipe is from an 1890 book titled "Practical Housekeeping." Please note my comments following this recipe.

DANDELION GREENS

Pick over dandelion greens carefully and wash in several waters. Put in boiling water with a piece of salt pork and boil 1 hour. Drain well. Add salted boiling water and boil 2 more hours. When well done and tender, turn into a colander and drain.

NOTE: Our ancestors must have thought that if a little bit of boiling was good, then a whole lot of boiling had to be better. I cook my dandelions in salted water (as little as possible) until tender and this will vary depending on the age of dandelions collected. I try not to drain the water from vegetables I cook as this pours vitamins down the sink drain. It's better to use very little water in cooking, cover tightly and keep an eye on your food so it doesn't go dry and burn.

NUTRITION NOTE: Do you consider desserts to be just a nice addition to your meal or do you count them as providing a part of your nutritional requirements for the day. For example, pumpkin custard pie will provide protein from the eggs and milk, Vitamin A from the pumpkin and B vitamins from the flour in the crust. Food costs are high and desserts can add more than empty calories to your meal.

TIP OF THE WEEK: Don't be surprised when you comparison shop at local food stores and find that meat prices—especially red meat prices—vary considerably. It's very easy to get into the habit of shopping at only one food store because it's time saving and convenient but there's money to be saved or better meats to be put on your table at lower costs if you can find some time to check various food store meat departments in this area.

Earth's Orbital Shape

The earth's orbit is not a circle. It is egg shaped, an elipse. Over a 100,000 year period, the shape of the orbit changes. It varies from an almost circular shape to more of an egg shape. The closest approach of earth to the sun is called the perihelion of the earth. The greatest distance from the sun is called the aphelion. Presently the earth's orbit is becoming slowly more circular which will reduce the difference between aphelion distance and perihelion distance to less than the present difference of 4.8 million kilometers (3 million miles).

Tick Season Underway In Maryland

AMERICAN DOG TICK

The annual tick season which produced 74 cases of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever in 1977 with two deaths, has begun in Maryland and will continue into the fall, said Dr. Kenneth L. Crawford, Chief of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's Division of Veterinary Medicine.

The American dog tick or Dermacentor variabilis transmits the rickettsial organism which causes this infectious disease in man. This transmission usually occurs while the infected tick is imbedded and feeding. Dr. Crawford warns residents that they should use vigilance in protecting themselves, their children, and pets due to the potential for another serious outbreak.

American dog ticks are commonly found throughout Maryland in moist wooded or tall grassy areas of vacant lots, uncultivated fields, thickets and along fences. They may also abound in the heavily vegetated areas of various recreational and camping sites, and in suburbs previously sparsely inhabited by man where small wild animals such as rodents and rabbits exist.

People become infested when they pass through these areas since the ticks await a host for a blood meal while hanging on the grass or bush.

Dr. Crawford pointed out that precaution and protective measures can greatly reduce the risk of infestation and infection of man. The best advice that can be given is to avoid potentially tick-infested areas. If this is not possible, be aware of the hazard and dress in tight-fitting clothing with trousers tightly secured at the ankles with shirttails tucked in and all clothing buttoned. The application of appropriate tick repellent agents such as insecticides, used in strict accordance with the label instructions, can help keep ticks off the body. These repellents are usually applied as a spray to shoes and the lower portion of pant legs.

It is most important that a thorough self or "buddy-type" examination for ticks on the body and clothing be made at two hour intervals when in an area where there are ticks. Upon exit from such areas, examination should occur within two hours after leaving the area. Parents must carefully examine their children if they have played in possible infested areas. This should be a "head-to-toe" examination, conducted as often as necessary, but especially at bath and bedtime. Special care should be taken in examining the head, ear and hair-covered areas. Clothing should also be checked carefully when it is first removed and if necessary washed in hot detergent water.

When found on a person, ticks should be removed immediately. If they are firmly attached to the skin, care should be taken not to crush the tick and thus risk additional skin contamination. Tweezers, forceps or paper tissue held between the fingers can be used for careful removal. The application of a liberal amount of rubbing alcohol or fingernail polish remover with cotton to the tick, will, in several minutes loosen its hold. Then grasp the tick as close to the site of the attachment as possible, and withdraw gently, but without jerking and twisting. After the tick is removed, check to be sure that no mouth parts are left in the bite, clean the wound and apply any mild antiseptic. Disposal of the tick can be made by burning or by flushing it down a toilet.

Dr. Crawford states that Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever can be fatal if not diagnosed and treated promptly with appropriate antibiotics. The major danger with this desease is the delay of the patient in reporting what is often confusing symptoms to a physician and in not reporting a tick bite. He said that in Maryland only about two percent of all ticks are infected. Symptoms of the disease, usually appearing within three to ten days after the attachment of an infected tick may include: severe headache, fever (occasionally 104° to 106°), chills, fatigue, aching lower back and a faint skin rash which first appears about the wrists and ankles and then may spread over the rest of the body. The rash generally involves the palms and the soles of the feet. This disease is usually mild but can be severe and occurs in people of all ages. Physicians regularly use two blood tests to confirm the diagnosis when Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever is suspect.

The family dog is highly susceptible to tick infestation, usually acquired from known tick infested areas. Fortunately, dogs rarely show even mild signs of an infection, but heavy tick infestation can cause skin infections and blood depletion in dogs. To protect the family and the pet, owners should confine or leash their pets, or they should thoroughly inspect them for infestation before allowing them indoors after their entry into a possible infested area. Usually the tick will have crawled to the head and ear areas. It is recommended that animals suspected of having ticks not be allowed to have access to areas of the home with bedding, rugs, and upholstered furniture. Dogs frequently cause tick infestation of homes, which results in costly extermination procedures.

Veterinarians can give advice on selecting tick repellents and tickcides for pets. Indiscriminate use of tick collars and insecticides should be avoided. Heavily infested animals should be treated by a veterinarian, and safe material obtained to treat home infestations.

Dr. Crawford reminds every Maryland resident to use utmost caution during this tick season to ensure that their spring and summer be safe and enjoyable.

Western Maryland Farmers Uneasy About Weather

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Western Maryland Farmers often peer up at the sky, some hoping for rain-carrying clouds and others for warmer weather to ensure a good enough planting season to offset losses from last year's drought.

"Farmers have to live with the weather every day," said Department of Agriculture spokesman Tony Evans. "It determines whether they can make a living."

Temperatures have about 10 to 15 degrees below normal for spring and rain also has been below average in some areas, resulting in slow germination, or sprouting, of seeds.

"What we need is a sustained period of warm, calm weather," Evans said.

Ken Wisner, University of Maryland Agriculture extension agent for Washington County, said in a telephone interview that the situation is not serious, but could be if the ground continues to be wet and cold.

"We're behind as far as plant growth is concerned," Wisner said. "Wheat and barley ought to be knee-high now, but it is not more than six to eight inches high."

He said there is still time to recover from the slow start, but moisture in larger quantities and a break in the cold weather is needed.

"The half inch that fell Thursday helps, but it's not sufficient," Wisner said. "We need one and a half inches over a couple of days."

He said pastures and small grain crops suffer the most because they need warm weather and moisture and Western Maryland was short of both in April, when rainfall totalled only about 1.5 inches.

"We ought to be getting twice that much," he said.

Jim McHenry, extension agent for Garrett County, said the weather is not unusual for this time of year and the farmers' concern is declining because it has been "raining like thunder" in his area for two days.

Thursday's and Monday's moisture gave farmers a bit of relief but more is needed, according to Frederick County Extension agent Kenneth Shifflet.

The dry April was far from normal and affected the growth of hay and other pasture crops, he said.

"The lack of topsoil moisture and cold nights are what's holding us up," Shifflet said. "So the farmers have to feed their livestock from stored or purchased feed. They can't turn animals onto pasture."

He said Frederick County is the leading hay producing county in Maryland, but its alfalfa is at only 50 percent of normal growth.

"Last year, they had to purchase feed because of the drought," Shifflet said. "They are worried that this year will be a repeat of 1977 — it's starting out the same way."

He said next month's weather will be crucial in determining whether farmers can plant and harvest enough hay to meet their needs.

In a related development, the Department of Agriculture said the weather has delayed its plans to conduct aerial spraying against gypsy moths in Frederick, Baltimore, Carroll and Harford counties.

Fire Convention Plans Topic Of Sunday Meeting

Plans for the annual convention sponsored by the Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association were the chief topic of discussion Sunday during a meeting at the Gorman fire hall.

The convention will be held Saturday, June 3, at Clarysville with the Clarysville fire department and its auxiliary serving as hosts.

Registration has been scheduled from 8:30 to 9 a.m. at the Clarysville Inn and a memorial service will be held at 9:30 a.m., also at the inn.

Meetings of association men and women will be held at the inn at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. respectively with lunch scheduled for noon and dinner at 5 p.m. at the fire hall.

Parade participants will form at 6 p.m. at the Eckhart Elementary School and will move an hour later to the Clarysville fire house where a carnival is scheduled to run the week of May 29 to June 3.

The Clarysville fire company is holding meetings every day at 7 p.m. until convention time.

In other business, it was announced that a total of 77 companies attended the regional fire school held last week at the Celanese and at the Allegany County Vocational Technical Center. A total of 123 firemen participated.

There were 40 fire companies from Allegany and Garrett counties at the school, while 28 companies from West Virginia and nine from Pennsylvania also took part.

Nominations were noted from Barton, Bedford Road, Bowling Green, Corriganville, Flintstone, Grantsville, Shaft and Potomac of Westernport for the "fireman of the year" award.

The award, which is presented annually by the independent insurance agents of Allegany and Garrett Counties, will be made at the convention and recognizes the fireman who does the most for his department.

William Miller, Barton company and president of the association, appointed William Smith, Luke; Charles Pattison, Bloomington, and Elmer Kitzmiller, McCoole, to a committee to select the winner.

Deadline for the James E. Lamberson fire prevention award is May 15 and entries should be forwarded to Willys Wilson, Route 3, Cumberland. That award will be presented at the county convention.

The deadline for submitting entries for the state's "fireman of the year" honors is August 1 with the award to be made October 28.

A total of 22 departments were represented at Sunday's session along with 12 past presidents. A dinner was served after the business session by the auxiliary of the Gorman company.

THE WHEELS OF MAN.
This is a moped. It's called a Puch (which rhymes with book).
And, if the guy who invented the wheel could see it we think he'd be mighty proud of what Puch's done with his handiwork.
The Puch has pedals like a bicycle and a motor like your motorboat. Which means it can whip you around town in great style without worrying about things like being out of breath, or cardiac arrest.
Remember the sports car you had? It's that kind of fun.
The upkeep is low. And if you ride it 1500 miles next year your fuel bill will be about $15!
Come on in, ride one, and see for yourself: it's been a long time since this much fun made this much sense.

Governor Urges Marylanders To Conserve Energy

Acting Governor Blair Lee has urged Marylanders to conserve energy voluntarily in order to "substantially reduce" dependence on foreign oil and "minimize the necessity for mandatory conservation regulations."

In a Sun Day proclamation, the Acting Governor noted that Maryland's energy conservation plan to save at least 5 per cent of its energy consumption by 1980 was being developed by the Energy Policy Office and the Energy and Coastal Zone Administration of the Department of Natural Resources.

He noted that the Energy Policy Office has information available to consumers on means to develop individual conservation plans.

The Almanac

Today is Wednesday, May 10, the 130th day of 1978 with 235 to follow. This is Confederate Memorial Day.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning star is Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

American actor-dancer Fred Astaire was born May 10, 1899.

On this day in history:

In 1865, Confederate President Jefferson Davis was captured as he fled Irwinville, Ga. He spent the next two years in a Union prison.

In 1871, the Treaty of Frankfort ended the Franco-Prussion War.

In 1940, Nazi Germany invaded the lowlands — Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands — with 89 army divisions.

In 1973, former Attorney General John Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans were indicted on perjury charges by a federal grand jury.

A thought for the day: American author H. L. Mencken said, "Conscience is the inner voice that warns us somebody may be looking."

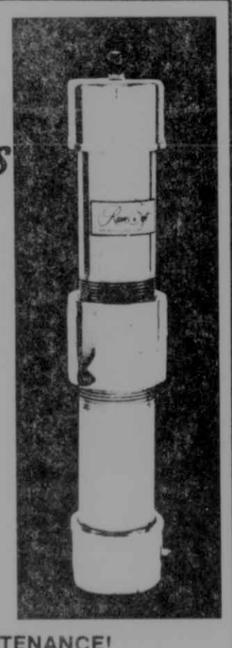
Premium Gasoline Sold By Just One Company In State

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced today that motorists whose automobiles require "premium" gasoline for efficient operation will have to start looking even harder to find the high octane fuel after May 15, 1978. Mobil Oil Corporation has joined other major gasoline suppliers in dropping its highest octane level, leaving only Sun Oil Company in the "premium" market in Maryland.

"Every major gasoline supplier except Sun Oil Company has advised our office that they will no longer offer a gasoline with an octane rating of 95.0, the level recognized as 'premium' in Maryland," Comptroller Goldstein said. Many oil companies have substituted words such as "super" or "extra" on their pumps, but such words do not mean a 95 octane fuel.

Approximately 162,000 automobiles registered in Maryland are believed to require "premium" gasoline for efficient operation. Drivers who are using a lower octane gasoline and detect a "knock" or "ping" may need to switch to a higher octane fuel.



"Our office has published a brochure which answers many questions about octane ratings and which outlines a simple test you can perform yourself to determine if your car actually requires 'premium' gasoline," Mr. Goldstein said. "These brochures are available to the public in most public libraries. Consumers wishing a copy may also write to the Public Information Office, State Treasury Building, Annapolis, Maryland 21401. Your brochure will be on its way faster if you include a stamped, self-addressed envelope."

Maryland Taxpayers Take Advantage Of Taxpayer Assistance

Maryland State income taxpayers took advantage of the taxpayer assistance offered them during the recent income tax filing period, according to State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

"Taxpayer service personnel in our offices answered 198,313 telephone inquiries from citizens with questions about their State income taxes and helped another 50,000 taxpayers who came to our various offices in person for help," Mr. Goldstein said. "In order to provide taxpayer assistance at hours convenient to the taxpayers, our employees also worked 2,637.8 man-hours on Saturday, holidays and evenings."

During the previous filing period, State income tax personnel handled 163,456 telephone calls and helped about 45,000 taxpayers in person.

Mr. Goldstein noted that his office distributed more than 3.1 million State income tax forms during the filing period ending April 17, 1978.

Aside from the main office in Annapolis, the State income tax offices generating the most activity were in Baltimore, Bladensburg, Suitland, Wheaton and Dundalk. Office locations in smaller cities tended to render a larger percentage of their assistance to taxpayers who came to the offices in person, while metropolitan area offices appeared to have a larger percentage of telephone inquiries.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q. We have heard that the interest rate on a new home is lower than on an older house. Is this true?

A. As a rule the answer is no, unless you are seeking a loan under some of the more flexible financing plans being offered.

Q. What are the current interest rates on home mortgages?

A. Currently the three dominant lenders in the Garrett County area are quoting as follows: First National Bank of Oakland 9½%; Garrett National Bank 9½%; First Federal Savings & Loan 9%.

The above rates apply to conventional loans on first homes (not vacation homes) where the cash down payment is between 20 to 30 percent. Don't overlook another source: new regulations permit Federal Credit Unions to make long term mortgage loans. There are 14 such credit unions in nearby Cumberland.

Coffee Break — The magical phrase that sends millions of Americans scurrying from their desks to the nearest caffeine center.

Here at my office we go out for coffee — and like clockwork our coffee break members race from all over Oakland to meet at the appointed spot.

The "appointed spot" shall go nameless, because my fellow members would never forgive me if I were to disclose to you their whereabouts at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

I would heartily recommend that the town of Oakland shut down between 10-10:15 a.m. and 3-3:15 p.m. For one thing, the coffee group at our table alone contains two pastors, one half of The Republican's news staff, an insurance broker, two funeral directors, a local radio personality, a haberdasher, three or four emergency medical technicians, four or five firemen, umpteen Masons, Rotarians and Meals on Wheels members, several kayak enthusiasts and a partridge in a pear tree. Just try and get ahold of one of us during our break.

Our waitress is a saint. She's the picture of prompt, courteous service and she even remembers our table's standing order. However, she just hasn't caught on to who gets what.

Sometimes we order doughnuts or English Muffins with our morning coffee. Generally you have to place your English Muffin order on Monday in order to receive it by Thursday. If it still doesn't arrive they'll put it on backorder. If it arrives burnt, you can register a grievance by filling out a Burnt English Muffin Form in triplicate and file it with the cook. Then at the next annual waitress meeting they will vote on your complaint and a new English Muffin order will be accepted.

As I mentioned before, one of our coffee break members is a haberdasher (a clothier). He comes for coffee wheeling a display rack across the street. Once inside the coffee shop he begins his sales pitch, "Have I got a shirt for you. It just came in and I swear the designer had you in mind — just look at this tailoring, trim fit, extra long tail, French stitching and reinforced armpits."

Then there's our insurance salesman who arrives with easel, graphs, illustrations and mortality tables. He then proceeds to give a five minute dissertation on the pros and cons of whole life versus term life insurance.

We keep our two clergy men at opposite ends of the table — otherwise they fight. It goes something like this. "Last Sunday we had 145 people at our worship service." "Oh yeah, well after our evening program we collected a $43 free will offering." "Well, we got five new choir members this week!" "I see — well, we don't have room for a choir. There are just too many people at our services — and after the orchestra is seated — there just isn't anywhere for them to stand."

Other than that, the conversation at our table covers a wide range of topics. For instance, the fire department, fire trucks, the fire station, fire equipment, firemen and fires. I keep praying that the fire whistle never goes off while we are at coffee. As a news reporter I'd have to cover the results which would probably read like this:

"— the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad was called to the scene of an accident yesterday. They found two local pastors unconscious and suffering from multiple English Muffins, an insurance salesman was discovered babbling incoherently about updated policies and claims, a haberdasher was hysterical in regards to a severe laceration of an Arrow shirt, a local funeral director had been stabbed with a butter knife, several doughnuts were fatally bruised and a waitress suffered first degree hot-chocolate burns."

THE SECORDS, a singing group from Culpeper, Va., will be performing at the Rocky Drean Assembly of God this Saturday evening, May 13, at 7:30 p.m. Rev. Robert Mayfield, pastor, invites the public to this event. The church is located on the Bray School Road, north of Oakland, between Mayhew Inn Road and Sang Run Road.

Salaries of some Garrett Co. Employees

ALSO SALARIES OF SOME ELECTED OFFICIALS

As provided by a law enacted this year by Delegate Bolden

Sheriff's Salary was increased from	$ 8,000 to $13,900	Plus fringe benefits
Chief Deputy Sheriff	$ 9,944 to $11,244	Merit System
Assistant Deputy	$ 9,944 to $11,244	Merit System
Seven Deputies	$ 8,776 to $ 9,876	Merit System
Secretary Matron	$ 7,628 to $ 8,548	Merit System
Jail Cook	$ 5,895 to $ 6,535	Merit System

Merit System employees reach the higher bracket in four steps

County Commissioners' salaries	$13,100 was $6,000	Plus $15,000 Expense
County Administrator	$16,237
Attorney to Commissioners	$12,000	$2,000 Expense account
Finance officer (new job)	$11,655 to $13,216	Merit System
Secretary	$ 8,192 to $ 9,192	Merit System
Commissioners' Clerk	$ 8,776 to $ 9,876	Merit System
State's Attorney salary increased to	$15,000 was $ 8,000
One Assistant	$ 5,000	Non Merit
Two Deputies, part time	$ 4,000	Non Merit
Investigator Attorney	$ 9,360 to $10,360	Merit System

We do not have information on number of clerks or their salaries

Solid Waste Supervisor	$12,825 to $13,940	Merit System
Clerk	$ 8,192 to $ 9,192	Merit System
Laborer	$ 7,828 to $ 8,548	Merit System
2 Equipment Operators	$ 8,776 to $ 9,876	Merit System
2 Semi Skilled	$ 8,192 to $ 9,192	Merit System
Planning and Zoning Director	$16,852 to $19,253	Merit System
Zoning Administrator	$12,260 to $13,940	Merit System

We have no information on number of clerks in this office, or their salaries.

Communications System. New Department Set up this year
Chief Radio Dispatcher	$ 8,760 to $10,560	Merit System
FOUR Radio Dispatchers	$ 7,642 to $ 9,192	Merit System
DOG WARDEN	$ 9,360 to $10,560	Merit System

Now that their salaries have been doubled the Fifteen Thousand Dollar expense account for the County Commissioners should be eliminated, or at least reduced to $5,000. We do not know how they spent the $15,000 per year during the past seven or eight years. Where did they travel to and for what purpose? Have they furnished vouchers to the Treasurer that will show to whom the money was paid and what for? It is public money and it ought to be accounted for.

The above salary list is not complete. We cannot afford the space to list all the employees that this Board of Commissioners have put on the county taxpayers. This list includes salaries only. The fringe benefits are not shown. They include hospitalization for the workers and their families, pensions upon retirement, days off for sickness and paid vacations, etc.

The hospitalization plan is most liberal: Room and board in hospital for 70 days at $40.00 per day. Miscellaneous allowances in hospital at $300.00 per day for 70 days. Maternity hospital allowances, full reimbursement for room and board, services and supplies, obstetrical fee, X-ray allowances, etc. Then, for long term illness in hospital the patient pays 20% of the first $2,500, or $500.00, and the county stands for all additional costs up to ONE MILLION DOLLARS. No private person could buy this much protection for $5,000, if at all. We believe that these benefits should be taken into account when fixing the salaries of county employees. Their salaries alone are above the average earnings of most of our citizens. There is no good reason why our hard working people should be forced to pay our public officials more than the average citizen can earn, Delegate Bolden and County Commissioners not withstanding. "The servant is not greater than the master." This is especially true when some of our highest paid officials are not needed, and their services are a hindrance to our progress.

by jim willis

Before recent laws restricting importation of parakeets, canaries and other foreign finches, these small birds were among the pets most commonly offered for sale. They are somewhat harder to obtain now, but just as popular.

Let's review some of the factors that constitute good bird care.

Before you buy a bird, consider its home — the cage. The cage size you need will obviously depend upon the type of bird you want. It should be big enough to allow the bird to jump and hop around, with perches of different diameters on different levels. A rough-surfaced perch or two will help keep the bird's nails short and scrape mineral deposits from the feet. Plan to put the cage in a draft-free spot that receives bright light rather than direct sun.

A caged bird is completely dependent upon you and will need a regular supply of clean water and fresh seed. The smaller birds do well with most packaged seed mixtures supplemented by pieces of apple, spinach or lettuce once a week. Parrots and other larger birds require a diet of cracked oats and corn, millet and other whole seeds, with some fresh fruit or vegetables.

Birds only eat as much as they need so you can keep several days' seed in the cage. Don't make the mistake of thinking that the seed cup is full of seeds when it contains only empty hulls. If you blow gently into the feeder, hulls will usually float away and let you see how much seed is left.

Birds have other dietary needs too. They do not have teeth and need fine gravel or grit to aid in grinding seed in the gizzard, a special part of the digestive tract. Since most seed mixtures are deficient in calcium, you should also put a whole cuttlefish bone in the cage or add finely crushed oyster shell to the seed. If you wish to breed your pet or "produce" an exceptional singer, your veterinarian may suggest special food supplements.

Finally, if your pet is not up to par, do not hesitate to seek professional attention. A veterinarian equipped with the special operating instruments and specially formulated drugs is the best person to treat a sick bird. The bird's size and specialized anatomy make it difficult to try to treat it with medicines prepared for humans or other pets.

If you have never owned a bird before, here are some early distress signals to watch for: prolonged molting or ruffled feathers, general listlessness, wheezing or heavy breathing, development of enlargements or growths, and changes in the character of the droppings. All are signs that your bird is ill and needs professional veterinary attention.

Deadline Nears Grain Program

The Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) is accepting applications for the 1978 Feed Grain and Wheat Programs. Farmers planting feed grain and/or wheat are eligible to participate in the voluntary program.

Paul A. Crowl, chairman of the Maryland State ASC Committee, said farmers who are still undecided about the program, should sign up because there is no penalty if they decide not to plant a program crop such as barley, wheat, corn, or grain sorghum. "By signing up, farmers who decide to plant the set-aside crops are assured of program benefits, which may include payment for setting aside acreage over and above the minimum of one acre for every 10 planted to barley, corn, or grain sorghum, and two acres for every 10 planted to wheat for grain," Crowl said. Program benefits include price support loans, target price and disaster payment protection. The maximum additional set-aside that can be offered by the farmer for payment is 10%.

For more details on the 1978 programs, contact the local ASCS offices. The sign-up period ends May 15.

Maryland—Sixth District

This column serves as another vehicle to keep in touch with my fellow residents of central and western Maryland. Send your questions or comments to me c/o U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. 20515. While I'll be unable to print all replies, I will answer each of you who contacts me.

The following questions were typical of the kind asked of me in recent weeks.

Please elaborate on the highway bill you recently introduced in Congress.

I have co-sponsored the Surface Transportation Assistance Act because 4,500 miles of Maryland interstate and federally-aided primary and secondary roads — as well as bridges — would be eligible for increased financial assistance. Most of the increases would be earmarked for resurfacing, restoration and rehabilitation. In general, the Federal share of funding under this proposal will be increased to 80 percent for highway construction programs with a 90 percent Federal match for bridge replacements and ARC projects. In short, this legislation gives greater flexibility to state and local officials to meet their transportation priorties, and it is my hope it will expedite work on projects affecting the safety and economic well-being of the citizens in Central and Western Maryland.

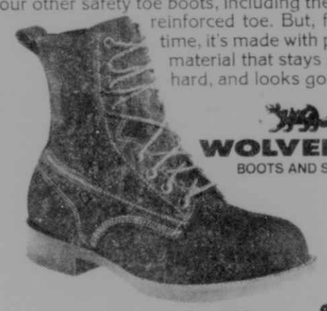
I am planning on building a house and would like to know if you have any information on solar heating?

If you would like to learn more about using the sun to heat your home, and find help to design or install a system, send for a copy of the booklet "Solar Energy and Your Home." It's a free publication from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Whatever happened to legislation allowing Senior Citizens to fly on airlines at lower prices?

A measure was recently signed into law authorizing reduced airfare transportation, on a space available basis, for retirees over 60 and all persons over the age of 65.

What can be done to make the Federal Government more responsive to consumer complaints?



I agree that the Federal Government must be more directly responsive to complaints and inquiries from individual citizens. As a result, I have introduced the Agency Responsiveness Act, which requires that each federal agency establish effective procedures to ensure that inquiries from citizens are responded to promptly. The bill also requires that citizen comments be given the fullest possible consideration by top agency officials when making policy and management decisions.

How will the Omnibus Parks Bill affect Central and Western Maryland?

The Omnibus Parks Bill is currently before the House Interior Committee of which I am a member. Under the measure, the Monocacy Battlefield Park will be doubled in size; restoration funds for the C&O Canal would be increased; and other park projects would also be affected. During hearings I also proposed construction of a footbridge connecting the C&O Canal with Harpers Ferry.

Wolverine boots took the comfort of pigskin. The toughness of solid steel. And made a safety toe boot called PigIron."

We now carry the new Wolverine PigIron boot. Developed to offer you protection and comfort at the same time. It combines all the safety features of our other safety toe boots, including the solid steel reinforced toe. But, for the first time, it's made with pigskin, the material that stays soft, works hard, and looks good.

State Preparing For New Right-Turn-On-Red Law

State and local transportation officials throughout Maryland are counting the weeks before motorists begin making right turns on red lights under a new state law, which takes effect July 1.

Maryland will become the 48th state to adopt a right-turn-on-red law, which was first enacted in California in 1947.

Transportation officials have been studying intersections, ordering hundreds of bright red and green signs and gearing up for a publicity campaign that will inform drivers they can legally make a right hand turn at a red light after making a full stop.

Motorists, however, must also yield the right of way to pedestrians and oncoming traffic.

Robert Shinham, chief of the State Highway Administration's Bureau of traffic projects, said the State Department of Transportation is taking a "conservative approach" in implementing the new law.

He said certain state signs, reading "No Turn on Red" and displaying a red colored disc, have been ordered for dangerous intersections in the Baltimore area and other large cities.

Shinham said those signs will be posted before July 1 along with the ones alerting motorists to the right-turn-on-red law.

Bruce Williams, a Transportation Department spokesman, said those intersections with the "No Turn" signs are those most frequently used by school children and large numbers of pedestrians, or intersections with poor visibility or unusual street configurations.

A spokesman for the Baltimore city Department of Transit and Traffic said about 1,500 right-turn-on-red signs will be posted "within a couple of weeks" throughout the city.

Assistant Commissioner Paul Burns said right turns on red, however, will remain illegal until the July 1 date.

He said motorists in the central business district will be prevented from making a right turn on red because of the heavy flow of pedestrian traffic and the great number of intersections.

Burns said the city fought the right-turn-on red law passed by the 1977 General Assembly because the department has been concerned "with local motorists who don't seem to have a high regard for pedestrians.

"We get a lot of complaints, even now, from pedestrians at certain locations," he said.

Shinham said a study by the Federal Highway Administration found there has been "no real change" in accidents involving pedestrians because of the right-turn signs.

The study, completed in 1976, found that there was a "freer traffic flow and less congestion at the intersections that were checked," according to Shinham.

Maryland Smokers Buy 562 Million Packs Last Year

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The average cigarette smoker in Maryland bought about 136 packs of cigarettes last year to feed his habit, according to an official of U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

John M. Pinney, chief of the department's new Office on Smoking and Health, said adult Maryland smokers bought 562 million packs of cigarettes in 1977 and "that's a massive environmental exposure."

Pinney, 34, who kicked the habit after smoking for 20 years, said Maryland is one of 20 states that doesn't have clean indoor air laws.

"Maybe that's because Maryland has such an interest in tobacco," he said.

Pinney, who was chosen to lead HEW's nationwide $30 million campaign against smoking, said "Fifty-three million lives are at stake. There are 53 million smokers today.

"This is pretty serious business, But, if I didn't think we could win, I wouldn't have taken the job," he said.

In his address to the American Lung Association of Maryland, Pinney said Thursday the national campaign is aimed at children.

"Our record with children has not been so good," he said. "The number of smokers aged 12 to 18 is increasing and the number of young women smoking has doubled.

"But, the last few years have not been such good years for teenagers," he said.

Pinney said some studies show the country is moving towards a more stable society that could result in a decline in the number of young smokers.

He said state and local governments, schools, teachers, nurses and physicians must band together to fight the problem.

FARM & HOME SAFETY

Hazard Warning!
Deadly Silo Gases

As the grass grows up around the state, farmers are beginning to think about filling the silo. Are you aware that a silo full of freshly chopped corn ensilage or grass is a potential death trap? The complex chemical reactions involved in the ensiling process give off lethal nitrogen gases and carbon dioxide.

Nitrogen gases have a disagreeable odor (sometimes described as bleach-like), and range in color from red through orange to dark brown. Because these gases are much heavier than air, fumes will naturally settle to the lowest level possible. Be especially cautious of this characteristic when working near the base of a tower silo during the first few weeks after filling. Also, remember that stables can become death traps for man and beast when nitrogen gases are present.

A person might work in the presence of silo gases for some time without feeling major discomfort, yet lung damage may result in death just a few hours later!

Deadly nitrogen gases are likely to pose the greatest threat in and around open-top concrete silos. No one should enter an oxygen-limiting silo, of course, because there is simply not enough oxygen present in these structures to support life!

Never assume you are safe simply because you haven't been affected by silo gases in the past. It is always best to error on the safe side.

Play it Safe with Silo Gases

1. Run the blower for 15 to 20 minutes before entering a partly filled silo. Keep the blower running while anyone is within the structure.
2. It's best to stay out of the silo for two weeks after filling. Never go into the silo unless someone else is nearby.
3. Leave the blower pipe close to the silage level to draw off gas.
4. At the slightest indication of coughing or throat irritation, get out of the silo and into the fresh air at once. Immediate medical attention will reduce lung damage and prevent development of pneumonia.
5. Keep children and animals away from the silo during the filling period and for at least one week thereafter.
6. The door between the silo room and the barn should be kept closed during the danger period to protect livestock.
7. Ventilate the silo room for at least two weeks after filling by opening any available outside doors and windows to carry away fumes. Removal of chute doors to the level of the settled silage will permit natural ventilation at the point where gas tends to be concentrated.

AURORA-EGLON NEWS

The annual Mother's Day Smorgasbord is being held May 14 in the Aurora Fire Hall with serving beginning at 12 noon and continuing until 4:00 p.m. Sponsored by the Aurora VFD Auxiliary, the dinner will be $3.00 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Mrs. Shirley Parsons was hostess to the Stemple Ridge Ladies Aid on Monday, April 30, in her home on Mt. Top. The 10 a.m. meeting was called to order by the new president, Mary Stemple. The devotions were conducted by the hostess.

Plans were made to meet May 11 at the church to clean the building and make flower beds. Donations to the Aurora Fire Department include flower vases for the tables, a flag pole, dish cloths and paring knives. The aid also has several pairs of embroidered pillowcases for sale at $5.00 per pair.

A flower and plant sale was held and the pig-in-a-poke was awarded to Maxine Hauser. The next meeting will be held June 5 at 10:00 in the home of Mrs. Edith Harsh.

Awarding of the rose quilt was made to Mrs. Charles (Sue) Grove, Aurora. The rose pillow went to Mrs. Sue Ann Myers, Cumberland. A pair of pillowcases was won by Arnie Cummings, Aurora.

The meeting closed and refreshments were served to nineteen members and seven children who were present.

Bobby Deakins, son of Bessie Deakins of Aurora and the late Hugh Deakins, died Monday evening, May 1, in the Monongalia General Hospital at Morgantown where he had been taken earlier in the day.

The Eglon Homemakers met in the home of Mrs. Rebecca Teets May 2 for their regular meeting. The hostess read Psalm 1 and the group joined in sentence prayers.

A donation of $20 is to be made to the Cheat Valley Arts Council to help to sponsor the Wheeling Symphony Orchestra to the Rowlesburg Park May 21. A work day was set for June 1 to make the flower bed and to work on the scrapbook. It was decided that the club would not work in the information booth at the Buckwheat Festival to sell car tickets.

The club will participate in the Sew Fair which is to be held May 23 in the Kingwood Mini-Mall. An exhibit is displayed this week in the window at the Fike's Store in celebration of National Homemakers' Week. Featured is the work of the various committees involved in the club work.

The lesson, "Richer Than You Think", was presented by Mrs. Ruth Teets who had handout sheets for each member concerning terms used in estate planning, goals for the estate, methods of transfer and ownership and other aids to help with estate planning. Mrs. Galen Fike presented several of the pitfalls that come about when a person has no will. Mrs. Teets demonstrated the use of a file box in which to keep important papers if a safety deposit box is not used.

Mrs. Ardis Teets reported on the recent Spring Conference at Jackson's Mill which she and her daughter, Nicole, attended. The members who had attended the county Crafts Day reported on that also. The hostess displayed a quilted picture and one done in crewel embroidery as her special feature. She also served refreshments at the close of the meeting to the fourteen members, one child and one new member, Mrs. Flocy (Wilma) Knapp.

The Homemakers' Clubs will be collecting in the Eglon and Aurora areas for the Cancer Fund. Be prepared with your gift.

TRUTH IN TAXATION

What, if anything, can the citizen do to control the property tax rate?

It is true that property assessments and property taxes have risen dramatically in recent years. Many homeowners caught in this squeeze have not known where to turn. But hope is on the horizon.

The Maryland legislature has passed an excellent law that has been given very little attention. This time the property taxpayer is the beneficiary. It was actually placed on the books last July, but its full impact has yet to be felt. When it is, the effect should be to help stabilize the tax rate, and result in welcome relief to the beleagured property owner.

The law provides for the establishment of a "constant yield tax rate" for ad valorem taxes in each taxing jurisdiction, and prescribes a procedure for the authority to raise that tax rate. It requires the assessments department to notify each taxing authority prior to January 15, of each year of the estimated total assessed value of real and personal property within its jurisdiction for the next taxable year. After excluding the vlaue of any new construction, improvements, and deletions, the assessments department must notify the taxing authority of the "constant yield tax rate," which will provide that taxing jurisdiction the same property tax revenue as was levied during the current taxable year. In other words, the department must tell the taxing authority, in effect, what the tax rate should be to raise the same revenue as the year before.

One of the greatest values of this law, which should guarantee greater public faith and participating in the system, is that it prohibits any taxing authority from increasing the tax rate unless it first advertises its intention to do so. The advertisement must be placed in a newspaper of general circulation within the jurisdiction, and it must be at least a quarter of a page in size. The law even specifies the smallest type that can be used in printing the advertisement, and it can not be buried in the same section where legal notices and classified advertisements appear. Thus, the notice should be given a prominent position in the newspaper and set in type large enough to be easily read. The notice must tell the taxpayer the date, time, and place of the meeting which must be approximately seven days after the date the advertisement is published. Instead of publishing the advertisement, the taxing authority can, at its option, mail a copy of the notice to each taxpayer.

This meeting is for the purpose of hearing comments regarding the contemplated tax rate increase, as well as to explain the reasons for any proposed increase. The meeting can be set so as to coincide with the meeting on the proposed budget. The hearing must be held in less than 14 days prior to the date that property tax rates are levied. This is a giant step which will, for the first time, enable property taxpayers to be heard before any final decision on increasing the tax rate is made. And, there is nothing in the law that prevents the taxing authority from reducing the tax rate.

The law also requires notifying the taxing jurisdiction of changes in the assessable base caused by actions of the Appeals Boards and Tax Court. A word of caution. Any increase in the tax rate above the "constant yield tax rate," which is required solely by a reduction of the assessment records, caused by actions of the Appeals Boards or the Tax Court can be adopted without further notice or following the hearing procedure.

In Florida, where a law something like this has been in effect for the past four years, local governments have been extremely reluctant to raise rates. In one instance where it did happen, the officials involved were not re-elected.

Q. My land assessment increased twenty percent this year. Under the fifteen percent limit, does this mean that I will receive a five percent credit?

A. Not necessarily. The law to which you allude and which expires this year unless extended, applies to owner-occupied dwellings. The credit is based on the total assessment of a residential property, including both land and buildings.

To show how the credit works, let us assume that the assessment of your dwelling last year was $24,000, with the value of the land set at $4,000 and that of the home set at $20,000. An overall assessment increase of twenty percent this year would raise the assessed value to $28,800. Since an increase of fifteen percent would have raised the value only to $27,600, you would be entitled to a tax credit for the amount of the tax that is based on the $1,200, the amount of the new valuation that exceeds the fifteen percent.

If, however, the assessment on your land increased by twenty percent, from $4,000 to $4,800, but the assessment on your home increased by only ten percent, from $20,000 to $22,000, then the combined percentage increase would be approximately twelve percent ($26,800); and as the total assessment would not exceed the fifteen percent limit ($27,600), you would not be entitled to a tax credit.

The total assessment — not the separate assessments for land and buildings — is the controlling factor.

Q. In 1962, my wife and I purchased a home with a $180 ground rent; the cost of the ground, of course, being $3,000. We are seriously considering purchasing the ground for the $3,000, since the property values in the area have increased tremendously. The current assessment for the land is now $7,800.

However, since 1962, we have been paying taxes on property that we do not even own. In the past several years, both the assessments and the taxes have increased appreciably.

My question is, are my wife and I responsible for paying the taxes on this land or are the actual owners of the land responsible?

A. You and your wife, the homeowners, are.

When someone purchases a leasehold property, the technical term for property with a ground rent, he accepts all recorded provisions that have been entered into the transaction. The lease which creates the ground rent for the use of the land upon which the building sits, includes a clause stipulating that the owner of the leasehold property should pay all public charges, taxes, and assessments. The practice of using ground rents, which is prevalent in Baltimore City, is primarily a financial arrangement that enables the purchaser to obtain housing with a lower down payment.

The rental assigned to the ground and ultimate redemption price have no specific relationship to the value of the land. The assessor must attempt to estimate the true market value of the land as well as any improvements to it.

You, as the leasehold property owners, have at least two advantages. You can purchase the ground for the original price even though its value has almost tripled and your ground rent is a legitimate income tax deduction.

Questions or letter of general interest on assessments and the property tax should be addressed to 'Assessment Answers — James Burley' in care of this newspaper. They will be answered through this column to the extent that space allows.

This column was written with the co-operation of the Maryland State Department of Assessments and Taxation.

PUBLIC NOTICES

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Mabel Friend, who passed away in May, 1977.
I've missed her since the day she left.
But time heals all sorrow
I keep telling myself.
Every time I mention her name,
The memories linger just the same.
I missed her with the falling snow.
I miss her when the cold wind blows.
I miss her when the skies are blue,
I miss her to tell my troubles to.
How much I've missed her,
God and I have only known,
Because this will be my first Mother's Day...
Without a mother of my own.

Sadly missed by
Daughter Pauline

C&P Braces For Mother's Day By Offering Advice

Millions of Maryland children, young and old, will want to telephone their mothers this Sunday and for C&P this means the busiest day of the entire year for long distance calling, according to Nancy Nemith, local C&P office manager.

Marylanders will make over 1 million interstate long distance calls, and several hundred thousand more long distance calls within Maryland. About 2100 calls will be made to relatives overseas. Nationwide, AT&T's Long Lines Department expects to complete 15.4 million interstate calls on this special day.

Mrs. Nemith said customers who plan to make long distance calls can save time and money by following these helpful hints:

— Call any time on Saturday, early Sunday morning, or Sunday afternoon between 1:30 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. Rates are at their lowest and circuits are usually not as busy during these periods.

— Persons calling the West Coast should try as early as possible, but remember that it's three hours earlier there.

— Florida attracts the most telephone traffic, so persons calling there should try to call the day before, or very early in the day.

— Persons should always dial the number themselves as operator-assisted calls cost more.

"One reason this is such a busy day for C&P is because customers change their calling patterns on Mother's Day," said Ed Broyles, Traffic Manager-Network Administration.

"On an average business day, the calls are pretty well spread throughout the day, and they're concentrated between Metropolitan areas where we have the most circuits."

But on Mother's Day, he said, the calls come in bunches, usually last longer, and, instead of being placed from business locations, they come from residences served by low volume routes.

"We can anticipate, for example, very heavy calling volumes following morning church services," he said. "Calling lessens somewhat in the afternoon and gets heavy again starting about 6 p.m. and continuing through the evening."

Broyles suggested that if a call fails to go through on the first attempt, the customer should wait a few minutes rather than try again immediately.

To meet the needs of callers on Mother's Day, a full staff of operators will be on duty and special circuits will be added.

Also, the flow of telephone traffic will be watched closely at C&P and at other Bell System network management centers throughout the country.

Shriners To Sponsor Annual Circus

Potentate Ivan A. Hall and General Circus Chairman Ronald A. Smith announced this week that the annual Shrine Circus will be held June 16 at the Wisp Ski area at McHenry.

The Shrine will again feature the Carson & Barnes 5-ring tent circus at three locations: Oakland in Garrett County; Cumberland in Allegany County; Boonsboro in Washington County.

Carson & Barnes features 22 elephants, a double menagerie featuring animals from all parts of the world, and all acts associated with a gigantic big top.

The Ali Ghan Shrine Temple has provided the circus for thousands of underprivileged children free through the Circus Daddy program sponsored by the Nobles of Ali Ghan. This year the Shrine will also provide free admission to all blind children in the area.

Local merchants support the effort of the Shrine Circus by advertising in the circus program. Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. gives out thousands of free children's tickets each year.

The Shrine also holds a coloring contest for kindergarten through grade 4 and awards free tickets to the best colored picture presented at each school in the area.

Advanced general admission tickets will soon be on sale at various locations to be announced by the Shrine. Ticket-prices are $1.50 for children and $3.00 for adults.

Maryland Children Still Read Below National Norm

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Remedial reading programs have helped some Maryland children catch up to their classmates but they still score below the national norm on standardized tests, according to a state Department of Education report.

The report said 67,000 first and second grade students enrolled in remedial reading programs throughout the state showed an 11 month gain on standardized test scores during the 1976-77 school year.

In 1974, the department reported that despite the reading programs, students still fell behind their grade levels.

The latest report said the children were still scoring below the national average, but that they were not falling further behind. There was not prediction that the children would continue to improve.

State School Superintendent David W. Hornbeck said the results were "particularly significant because the children served by Title I have traditionally fallen behind other children in elementary grades.

"We believe this is strong evidence that Title I is helping these children achieve like other children," Hornbeck said.

A student must live in a poor neighborhood and score poorly on standardized tests to be eligible for the program, which is funded under Title I of the federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

According to the report, 49 percent of second graders and 56 percent of third graders reached a 10 month gain during 10 months of instruction, the goal set by the department.

Maryland funnels most of its Title I money to programs for students in kindergarten through third grade. The program, which seeks to curb reading problems before they become acute, hires additional teachers and aides to help students.

It's Exciting . . .

We do indeed live in an exciting age, for many reasons.

The advancement of science and technology, especially over the past 80 years, has been literally mind boggling. There are millions of people living today who were born during the era of the horse and buggy and have witnessed, and been a part of, the coming of the automobile, air travel, open heart surgery, television, satellites, atomic power and integrated circuits. No one else in history has experienced such rapid and numerous advances as have occurred just in the 20th century. What will the future bring?

Besides the excitement of technology and of the future, one can always turn to the past for excitement. Fortunately, at least in this country, we have a government, numerous organizations and thousands of individuals who take great pains and spend much money to restore the past for the enjoyment of all of us. We have hundreds of museums, restored homes and towns (i.e. Williamsburg, Va.), thousands of books, legends and folklore. We have festivals and celebrations to commemorate events of the past.

The present is also exciting. It is important to enjoy and take advantage of the present. Constant living in the past and/or in the future makes appreciation of the present quite difficult. After all, the past is gone and tomorrow never really comes.

Some articles and pictures in today's issue can help illustrate the point of this writing.

Excitement filled the air in Oakland this week when a steam locomotive chugged through town. The past — it's exciting.

Hundreds of Garrett County students have a golden opportunity to study and enjoy the latest in technology and catch a real glimpse of the future at the planetarium (see article on Page 16). The future — it's also exciting.

A young man from Grantsville is taking delight in the present (see article on page 22). He is creating. He has no real need for the past and no need for the technology of the future in order to create. Yet, his marvelous works will still be around in the future, and thus, will eventually be a part of the past.

Despite all of the world's troubles, the 20th century is without question the most exciting and most interesting on record. It may never be matched.

Elkins Grand Jury Indicts County Firm For Fraud

A federal grand jury in Elkins, W. Va. has indicted a Friendsville firm and two of its top officers, along with a former Keyser bank employee.

According to United Press International, the Friendsville indictment was one of two returned by the jury in connection with an alleged fraud scheme against Weirton Steel Company of Hancock County.

The first indictment was handed down against Allied Lumber Co., Inc., its owner, Martin R. Lawson, 43, of Friendsville; and its vice president, Burgett Wayne Thomas, 36, also of Friendsville.

The 40-count indictment alleges that from February 1, 1975 to March 31, 1977, the U. S. Mails were used in a scheme where Weirton Steel was forced to pay about $125,000 for lumber which was never delivered.

The other indictment was returned against Justus E. McCaskey, 43, and Harry M. Israel, 39, both of Weirton and both employes of Weirton Steel.

The two are charged with maintaining false inventories between February 1, 1975 and March 31, 1977. The inventories also allegedly showed more lumber was received from Allied Lumber than was actually delivered. The men are also charged in the 40-count indictment with receiving kickbacks from Allied Lumber in connection with the scheme.

The jury indicted Ralph Michael Bailey, 33, former student loan officer at the National Bank of Keyser, on two counts charging him with embezzling more than $253,778 between September 27, 1973 and September 22, 1977.

STANDING STILL AS A STATUE — This young male Sparrow Hawk clings tenaciously to a driftwood perch, seemingly oblivious to our photographer. The bird already has several blue ribbons to his credit as a stunning example of his species. However, this bird has never eaten and will never be able to leave his perch. Board of Education Sets Calendar

The Garrett County Board of Education approved one of two proposed calendars for the 1978-79 school calendar at its May 11 meeting in Oakland.

The proposal approved would start school August 31 and would tentatively close for students June 15, 1979. Copies will be made available through the local schools and the public later in the year.

The Board also approved resolutions for New Programs, Transportation, Increased State Aid and Greater Equity in Current Expenses, and Involvement of Local Boards in the State Budgetary process, to be forwarded to the Resolutions Committee of the Maryland Association of Boards of Education.

The resolutions are designed to improve state funding in the critical areas of general funding and transportation.

The Board, in a statement made public this week, hopes that the initiation of the resolutions will assist in giving local boards greater opportunity to provide input into the state Department of Education and help relieve local Boards in funding many new programs.

The Board then asked Superintendent of Schools Dr. William Baser to inform Dr. Thomas Johnson and others that they would act on their request to hold public meetings in the evenings rather than in the afternoons at the July 13 organizational meeting of the Board. This will be the annual meeting at which the Board selects officers for the following year and considers their schedule of meetings.

After reports by Mrs. Charleen Thomas, Elementary Education Supervisor, and Albert Ringer, Assistant Superintendent in Curriculum and Instruction, on the Athey legislation, the Board approved Plan I as adopted by the staff to meet the intent of the Athey legislation for the coming school year.

The Board, in considering a policy on curricular, co-curricular and extra-curricular activities, heard comments from several persons in regard to specific aspects of the policy. The Board indicated these concerns would be reviewed by the committee as they re-work the policy for further consideration. Copies of the revised policy will be made available to those interested.

The Board then approved the special education program report for FY 79 with the deletions and additions as presented by Mrs. Sarah Wilson, coordinator of special education, and Mr. Ringer.

Mr. Ringer, Luther Parrack, principal of Southern High School, and Kenneth Bittinger, principal of Northern High School, presented a report to the Board on high school test results and how these are used to improve the program of students needing help in the basic skills areas.

George Brady, supervisor of Maintenance and Operations, reported that funds are available this summer to hire low income students for summer employment, but funds would not be available as in previous years for students whose families have slightly higher incomes.

Parents of children who will be eligible for kindergarten or first grade next fall may call the principal of their local schools to arrange registration times. The local Board of Education is urging parents to register children as early in the summer as possible.

PLANNING YOUR ESTATE?

How big a slice can you afford to lose?

Think of what you may risk with an unplanned or poorly planned estate:

- Debts
- Federal Estate Tax
- State Taxes
- Probate
- Home, Business, or Farm
- Bank Accounts
- Stocks or Bonds
- Life Insurance
- Investments
- Family Security
- Confidence and Peace of Mind

and much MORE!

The final value of your estate depends on how well-planned and protected it is today ... and more than ever before, you need to be concerned with the total picture ... with Estate, Federal Inheritance and State taxes, not to mention the problem of debts and probate costs.

You owe it to your family to develop a comprehensive plan for your estate, giving careful thought to your special needs.

We invite you and your attorney to discuss estate planning with the Garrett National Bank. Together we'll work to help you realize a bigger slice of the action.

Camp Scheduled

activities with trained counselors and aids. Senior Girl Scouts will have the opportunity to function as counselors in training for younger scouts and to choose and plan activities or be first aiders for the camp.

A lifeguard will be provided for daily swimming and interested people from the communities have volunteered to teach daily crafts. A clinic will be set up for physicals for swimming.

The camp planners are making an effort to seek out people in the county who have special interests and skills they would be willing to share with these girls. Those with interests such as outdoor carpentry, using herbs and wild plants, canoeing, old country songs, nature projects, Indians, whittling and carving, outdoor cookery (apple butter and sourdough bread), knot tying, or outdoor games, are invited to donate an hour or more of their time. To volunteer, contact Mrs. Susan Kibbey, director, 746-5226.

The girls will plan their own menus and new cooking methods will be taught, such as frying eggs in a paper sack and baking pizza in a cardboard oven.

At 7 p.m. May 24 in the Friendsville School, there will be a working meeting for all camp counselors (unit leaders) and those people willing to assist counselors. Counselors and the aids will have a chance to go over the daily schedule and examine the planned crafts. Troop leaders who have questions about the camp but who do not plan to be counselors are encouraged to call Mrs. Kibbey for information.

Mrs. Deanie Johnson, camp registrar, will receive the registration forms. Her address is Route 5, Box 268C, Oakland.

Letters to the Editor

REMINDER — Unsigned letters to the editor will NOT be printed under any circumstances. Letters exceeding 300 words will also not be printed.

Dear Sir:

Thank you for the very complete and fair news story about our public meeting in Crellin on May 4th. We wish only to re-emphasize two points for the record:

1. No final decisions have yet been made about the industrial park proposal. We will, as promised, hold another information meeting at Crellin to seek the community's views for guidance on these decisions.
2. As public agencies, all of our records are, and have always been, completely open for public inspection. We continue to welcome public interest and involvement in the operations of our respective agencies.

Sincerely,
Thomas D. Jones
Economic Devel. Director
Tim Dugan
County Planning Director

Dear Editor:

Recent articles in our newspaper protesting EPA regulations and talking to my friends seems convincing that we are still not fully aware of our obligations to each other and to people yet unborn.

Our society has made good progress in this direction. We do have a sense now of protecting the public, but is it good enough? Does it extend far enough? If we make a mistake can we rectify it later?

Have you traveled on U.S. route 48 west of Finzel recently? Here, in our county, is a dramatic demonstration of pollution damage by the exhaust of traffic, a young stand of white pine. Those trees nearest the road are brown instead of green. Those pollutants now in those brown needles will drop to the soil. What happens then? Where will those pollutants "go"?

Surely this demonstration by nature is more dramatic than usual, but it makes me wonder when applied to the tons of pollutants widely distributed from tall stacks over our land. Where does it "go"? Or does it "go"?

Any dimwit knows that it doesn't just "go".

Maryland's standards of air quality were set higher than Federal to protect the people of Baltimore and I think that what ain't good enough for Baltimore ain't good enough for Garrett County either.

Let us hope that those who protest EPA regulations will express some thoughts about others — including those people yet to come. Is this too much to ask?

Sincerely yours,
Pine Nut

Dear Sir:

Flowers and sunshine; loving and caring — four very closely related words that go together. May 14-21 is National Nursing Home Week, a very special time when we need to remember our neighbors in the nursing homes in our area. National Nursing Home Week should be a reminder to us that these patients worked hard, raising their children and doing their daily work without the conveniences we have today. They are all living human beings who need love, care, affection and people. They need someone to talk with, someone to laugh with and someone to lean on in times of loneliness and stress.

There is more to operating a nursing home than meets the eye. It takes an entire staff, from administration all the way down the totem pole. It takes a staff that knows how to love and care about someone else. It takes people who unselfishly give everything to make the lives of their patients meaningful and it takes people who look at love and care more than they look at the dollars in their pockets. It just takes the good old-fashioned ingredients of love and concern.

It is what we feed those ingredients which allows the love and concern to grow. If we feed it selfishness, we stunt the growth of the love and concern. If we nourish it in every way possible, then that love and concern nourishes the human spirit in a way that all the medicines in this world cannot.

Come see for yourself by visiting your local nursing home. Your visit will be like a beam of sunshine in the lives of many patients. Even if that beam touches one life — isn't it worth the visit?

Linda Haley

Dear Editor:

In reference to the "advertisement" appearing on Page 29 of the May 10, 1978 issue of The Republican by Hubert Friend, I wonder if Mr. Friend checked his information thoroughly for accuracy. A check in the Rules and Regulations Governing Classified Service Manual for Garrett County, shows nearly all of the figures presented by Mr. Friend to be exaggerated and incorrect.

If Hubert Friend and the Garrett County Taxpayers Association are going to "benefit" the taxpayers of Garrett County with such "advertisements," they should do so only after taking steps to insure the accuracy of their information.

D. W. Tucker
Deer, Park, Md.

Dear Sir:

I must comment on an advertisement printed last week by the Garrett County Taxpayers Association, in which Mr. Hubert Friend printed the salaries of some Garrett County employees. Mr. Friend requested salary information from me on November 3, 1977 and I submitted the information to him, as I would to any interested citizen. Mr. Friend chose to print this salary information in an effort to make a point that Garrett County employees were overpaid.

The information that the taxpayers association printed was different from the information that I submitted in November of 1977. Of all the Merit System salaries printed, only two were correct, and the salaries of most other positions were raised from $200 to $1400 above the actual level. I am submitting a copy of the information which I sent to Mr. Friend for your independent analysis. This information is available to any citizen who is interested in receiving the correct information.

Salary information like all financial information in a public institution is available to the public, but no member of the general public has the right to misrepresent this information to achieve his own ends.

Sincerely,
W. Marshall Rickert
County Administrator

Mr. Rickert,

Having compared the information which accompanied your letter with that which was in the ad, it seems that Mr. Friend's figures were indeed incorrect.

Editor

Dear Sir:

I hasten to write in protest to the wording (and attitude) in your May 10 editorial concerning former first lady Betty Ford.

Alcoholism is a disease, Sir, not a fault nor weakness. Fact: the human body cannot beat alcohol. It's archaic thinking like yours that keeps millions of alcoholics from seeking the help they so desperately need. True, people dislike admitting faults and weaknesses; so how many will admit to alcoholism when you and others splash it on the front page as a shortcoming or imperfection? You did more of a disservice to Mrs. Ford than to help her promote enlightened attitudes.

Drug addiction is neither fault nor weakness as well — it's also a physical condition. If you want to find fault in Mrs. Ford's case, blame the doctors who prescribed those drugs, knowing full well of potential dangers. What about those people whose doctors prescribe a drink or two in the evening in conjunction with the prescriptions? Granted, irresponsibility is everywhere, but you'll find at least one case like this in nearly every Alcoholics Anonymous chapter. It's abused as a "high" to some, and relief from pain or stress to others but in all cases it's a potentially lethal combination.

Betty Ford is indeed a great person; she's probably done more positive things for this country than her husband or any other recent president, for that matter. (Imagine what a woman could do if elected to the White House—certainly no worse than her predecessors! A woman's place is in the House...and Senate!) Be that as it may, I agree with your premise that Mrs. Ford's actions are more than praiseworthy. But if you must place blame or fault or weakness, please don't rest it on Mrs. Ford's shoulders.

Open Line — Garrett County Memorial Hospital

This new column is meant to provide communication between the public and Garrett County Memorial Hospital. It is a combined effort by The Republican news staff and the administration of the hospital. Persons having questions and comments, both negative and positive, may send them to The Republican office for publication. Questions concerning specific medical cases will not be accepted because of possible legal consequences.

1. How much of our County tax money goes into the Garrett County Memorial Hospital?
In the past, the Garrett County Memorial Hospital has received financial support from the County. December 1976 was the last time that any county tax money was used to finance any hospital operations. The hospital supports all activities through its rates and is totally self-sufficient.
2. How do the rates at Garrett County Memorial Hospital compare with rates over the rest of the state?
Overall, Garrett County Memorial Hospital rates are one of the lowest in the state. Our medical/surgical room rates are sixth lowest out of 52 hospitals. Our Obstetrical room rate is fourth lowest out of 40 and Pediatrics is second lowest out of 35. Our Emergency Room charge is the second lowest statewide.
It is important to note that rates must be compared in proper perspective. Since hospital income comes from rates charged, the only way to plan, develop and acquire new equipment, personnel and services is to increase rates. The Garrett County Memorial Hospital has done this very cautiously to strive towards providing more services and modern technology while at the same time attempting to keep our charges as low as possible.
3. Are any new doctors and/or specialists coming to Garrett County in the near future?
As of July 1, 1978, Garrett County will have two additional doctors. Dr. Paul Williams and Dr. William Fetty will both open up offices in the Garrett County Medical Center. Dr. Williams, a family practitioner, will also provide obstetrical care to the community, while Dr. Fetty, a surgeon, will bring with him a specialty of vascular surgery. Short-range plans over the next year also foresee additional physicians on our hospital staff from Eglon, West Virginia, and Accident, Maryland.

Kight; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eugene Nordeck; treasurer, Mrs. Robert Stanton; registrar, Mrs. Robert E. Proudfoot; historian, Mrs. Charles A. Thomas; librarian, Mrs. Paul T. Mr. Lipscomb taught penmanship for 42 years in grade schools, high schools and business colleges prior to his retirement. In addition to his penmanship, Mr. Lipscomb has been an avid painter since 1972 and took a second place ribbon in a recent Buckwheat Festival exhibition.

AMA HEALTH TIPS

Poison Ivy

Plants of the poison ivy family are likely the single most often encountered cause of painful, itchy skin rash in the United States today.

This family of plants can grow in the great variety of conditions of soil, water and sun present in all states of the nation. There are several varieties, all causing the same trouble.

Poison sumac is a shrub or small tree. The others are vines. Except for the sumac, all are marked by three leaflets arising from the node. Remember the old saw: "Leaflets three, let it be."

Washing with soap and water soon after exposure might help reduce the skin rash, the American Medical Association says. Cold water compresses will bring relief from itching and reduce inflammation. Calamine lotion will hasten drying of the blisters. Extensive and severely uncomfortable eruptions may require medications prescribed by a physician.

The only method for preventing poison ivy rash is avoiding the plants. There is no effective skin protectant or immunizing technique. The plants can be dug out, or destroyed by herbicides.

Actually, poison ivy is misnamed. It isn't really a poison. It is an allergen, which causes the body's defense mechanisms to over-react. First exposure might not produce a rash, but later exposures will trigger the reaction.

Temperatures averaged 5.[illegible] degrees below normal. Highs averaged 60.7 degrees or 9.[illegible] below normal. The high was 7[illegible] degrees last Friday with 73 the day before. The high the past few days has been only in the 50s. Lows averaged 42 degrees or 1.3 below normal. The coolest was last Thursday with 27 degrees. Since then readings have been in the 40s.

Vote On Health Systems Plan Scheduled Today In Hagerstown

A vote on a health systems plan for western Maryland is expected today when the governing body of the Health Systems Agency meets in Hagerstown.

Col. J. Haig Jackson, Oakland, chairman of the body, has predicted passage of the plan. He said there will probably be several changes made, including a "compromise" on language which could have resulted in a reduction of 80 hospital beds in Allegany County.

Carl V. Strayhorn, Jr., executive director of the Health Systems Agency of Western Maryland, said Tuesday governing body action on the plan is only one in a series of steps leading toward permanent designation of the HSA as the official health systems agency for Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Frederick counties.

He said the plan was to be acted upon today at 9 a.m. by the HSA's state-federal certification advisory committee and will then advance to the plan development and data collection advisory committee for action. At 1 p.m. the full governing body will get the plan and take a last vote. The meeting is being held at The Venice Inn in Hagerstown.

The plan is the main portion of an application the HSA will submit to the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare for designation of the HSA as the Western Maryland health systems agency for one full year.

The application deadline is July 2. On June 1 HSA will conduct a public hearing at 7 p.m. at Hood College, Frederick, regarding the application. Once approved, the application will be forwarded to HEW before the July deadline.

The final steps come when governor, State Health Coordinating Council, and Planning Department A-95 Clearinghouse all approve the plan and forward their endorsements to HEW before August 1. HEW then has until August 31 to name the HSA the designated Western Maryland health systems agency.

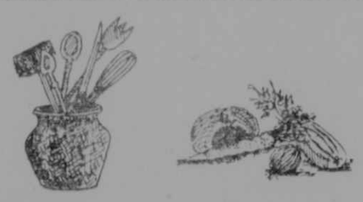
Col. Jackson indicated the plan has importance in a number of ways, especially because it must be followed by health agencies, hospitals and the like if federal or state funding is to be received for projects.

He continued, "It's needed so that someone doesn't build a Taj Mahal and find they do not have the clientele to fill up the thing, or that they do fill it up and another hospital goes bankrupt because it is not as modern."

Variety Of Cases Heard This Week

A variety of cases were heard in District Couty by Judge Lewis R. Jones during the week ending May 16.

Shirley Berg, Elk Garden, W. Va., pleaded not guilty of battery on Barbara Hartman in Oakland in April. Shirley Berg was found guilty and fined $50 and costs. A second similar charge was merged with the first.



Willard Frazee, Noah Friend Road, Friendsville, pleaded not guilty of violations of the Workmen's Compensation Law and the plea was upheld.

Otis Alfred Madden, Louisiana, Mo., pleaded guilty of possession of marijuana. He was placed on probation for one year on the 'first offense' provision.

Karl W. Wilson, Poplar Street, Oakland, pleaded guilty of three charges: battery on David Enlow in Oakland in February, also resisting arrest and disorderly conduct. He was given two concurrent 6-month sentences on the first two counts followed by 18 months probation. On the third count he was placed on probation before judgment.

Teddy A. Spessert, Jr., Church Street, Deer Park, pleaded guilty of false pretense by passing a worthless check in Mt. Lake Park last June and fined $25 and costs. A 10-day sentence was suspended and placed on probation and to make restitution of $45.

Curtice Richard Clary, Holly Lane, Mt. Lake Park, has been charged with forgery and uttering and the case is to be transferred to Circuit Court.

Cooking Corner

by Mariane

How long has it been since you last served turkey to your family? Although turkeys and turkey parts are now available year-round, a lot of people think of turkeys as something you roast at holiday time and serve with stuffing. Turkeys are priced quite reasonably, especially when you watch for and buy them at sale prices, and today's turkeys are more tender and meaty than ever before.

Sometime...someday, the sun will return to Garrett County. When the glorious warmth of sunshine returns, you'll probably want to run out, find the grill and barbecue something. Why not barbecue turkey for a change of pace? You'll need about one pound of turkey per person and the young, fryer-roaster turkeys (4-9 pounds) are ideal for cooking on the grill. They can be halved or quartered for barbecuing and cut to serving size pieces after cooking.

Prepare your coals so they are not too hot and place the turkey pieces on the grill about 8 to 12 inches above the coals. Start with the bone side down, barbecuing for about 15 minutes and then turn skin side to the fire. Keep turning at intervals of about 5 minutes until turkey is cooked through but not dry.

Use your favorite barbecue sauce to baste turkey while cooking or try the following recipe.

TURKEY BARBECUE SAUCE

2 tsp. corn oil
2 Tblsp. vinegar
½ cup water
1½ cup chili sauce
3 Tblsp. chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
¼ tsp. dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
2 Tbsp. brown sugar

Combine all ingredients and blend well. Cook over medium heat for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. You can baste turkey pieces with this sauce while barbecuing or you can add 3 cups cooked turkey to this sauce, heat through and serve on split and toasted buns.

LEFTOVER TURKEY IDEAS

Turkey Pot Pies
Creamed Turkey, Mushrooms and Peas on Hot Biscuits
Turkey Chop Suey with Chinese Noodles
Curried Turkey with Rice
Turkey Noodle Casserole (use favorite tuna noodle casserole recipe)
Turkey Submarines
Turkey Salad
Hot Turkey and Gravy Sandwiches
Turkey and Rice Soup

NUTRITION NOTE: You can make a nutritious and tasty soup stock by using turkey bones and small scraps of meat. Combine bones, small scraps of meat, 1 onion (chopped), 1carrot (sliced),several stalks of celery with tops (chopped) and, at least, 2 cups of water. Cook over medium to high heat for one hour. Remove from heat, strain the broth and add salt and pepper to taste. Use as base for any soup recipe.

TIP OF THE WEEK: Many people don't care for turkey because it is too dry for their tastes. Turkey need not be dry if cooked properly. Remember to cook turkey slowly at low heat to retain moisture. Also, be careful not to puncture skin so that juices escape.

Turkey Kill Down

Maryland hunters harvested a total of 106 gobblers in the recently completed spring gobbler season for 1978, according to Bernard Halla, Director of Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Administration.

The harvest was down 49 birds from last year's record 155 for several reasons. Spring was unusually late this year with cool weather continuing through the first week of the season. Gobbling activity is largely influenced by prevailing weather conditions and, as such, birds were not calling well until the latter part of the season. Hunting pressure was down in Frederick and Montgomery Counties which probably accounted for the drop in kill from a two-county total of 49 in 1977 to 22 in 1978.

Some population reduction apparently occurred in Garrett County where the severe winter was at its worst.

Kill by county was: Garrett, 17; Allegany, 39; Washington, 19; Frederick, 11; Montgomery, 11; Harford, 9; and Dorchester, 0.

The Northern High Huskies got a two-run single from Darrell Schrock in the second inning that led the team to a 5-1 victory over Salisbury, Thursday.

Phil Workman scattered five hits and opposing pitcher Jim Seibert also went the distance on a five-hitter but his team lacked defense allowing the Huskies to score three unearned runs in the sixth. Seibert drove in his team's only run with a triple in the bottom of the sixth.

Liller Named To Prep Yearbook

It was announced Monday by Coach Tom Woods in conjunction with Coach & Athlete magazine that Southern High School's Steve Liller will be included in the Prep All-America Football Yearbook, 1977-78.

The athletes who appear in this year's edition were nominated last winter and are representative of the most outstanding football players in their school and community.

Nominations for the Prep All-America Football Program are made each year by high school coaches, athletic directors, sportswriters and college recruiters across the country. Upon receipt of his athletic record, each nominee is included in the Prep Football yearbook and each senior nominee was considered by the judges for Coach & Athlete's Prep All-America Football 100 team. This national All-America team, as chosen by the Awards Selection Committee, will name the country's top 100 high school football players. Announcement of the All-America 100 Squad is made annually each March.

Criteria by which the local athletes were nominated for the program include athletic ability, statistics based on outstanding performance, sportsmanship and personal leadership displayed during the current season. The athletic achievements of the local nominees will be presented in the 1977-78 edition of the yearbook which will be published in June.

The purpose of the program is to promote and encourage sports achievements and individual athletic ability on the local level as well as on the national level.

Rams Split With Central Preston

Southern High School saw four hits go by the boards as they endured a 5-0 loss to Central Preston High School, Friday and then rebounded in the nightcap to capture a 6-3 victory at Southern.

Joey DiSimone allowed five hits in the first game, three of them coming in the third inning and all winding up singles. Several Rams made an unanswered effort to save the first game as Kenny Marks, Corky Sweitzer, Tom Cuppett and John Sanders each had a hit.

In the second game the visitors took an early advantage with a two-run first inning and Southern got its first run of the day in the second when Joe Patterson singled home Dave Sweitzer who had walked.

The Rams then moved up with a three-run third inning on run-producting hits by Corky Sweitzer and Tom Cuppett and a sacrifice fly by Craig Sullivan. Southern added two more in the fifth when Frank Lewis stole home on a double steal with Cuppett taking third. Cuppett later tallied on an error.

Garrett County's Planetarium—All This and Heaven Too!

"Are the stars out tonight," begins the recent Art Garfunkel hit song. For the answer to that question and anything else dealing with astronomy, just ask Jim Hart, director of the Garrett County Planetarium.

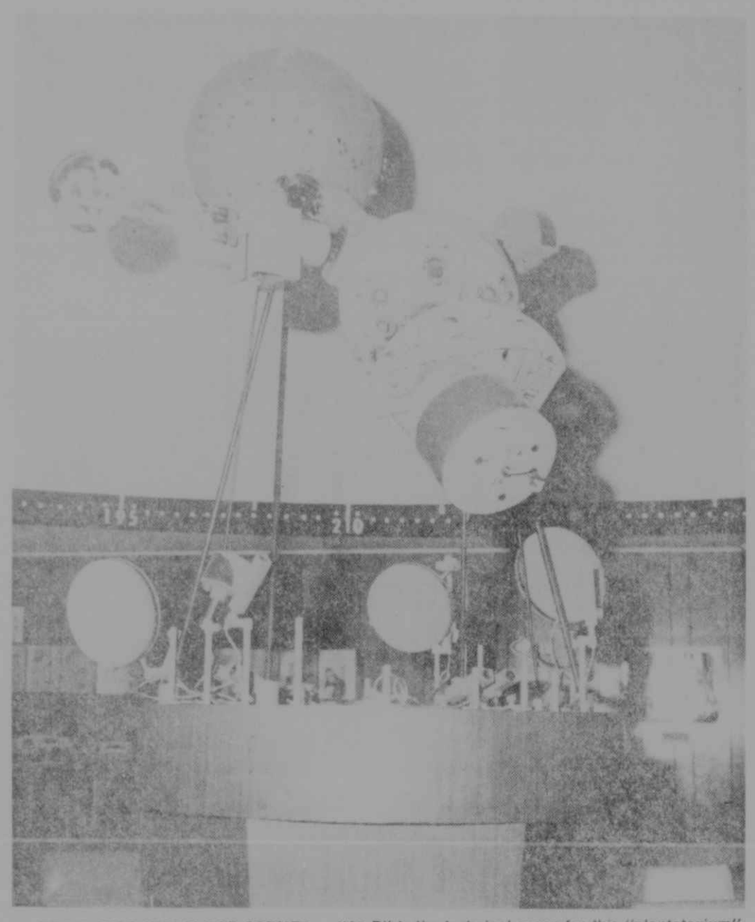
Jim, a member of the Middle Atlantic Planetarium Society, has been directing the county's planetarium for two years. Since his appointment to the position he has done much to add new curricula and implement those of Wes Lovelace and Paul Frank, who preceded him.

The planetarium features a technological marvel, a specialized projector which duplicates the heavens onto a dome constructed of perforated aluminum sheets. The projector, also called a planetarium, was manufactured by Spitz Space Systems, Inc. and was originally purchased a decade ago for around $35,000. The "planetarium" is known affectionately as A3-P and can project 1,352 stars from its starball. Unlike some later models it will only project those stars that can be seen with the naked eye. By using the nautical ephemirus, setting the dials for 39 degrees, 25 minutes north of the meridian, plotting several coordinates, projecting a month/date line and checking charts for moon phases, Jim Hart can show you how the sky will look on any given night in Garrett County. Sounds simple doesn't it?

The planetarium projector is so detailed that Jim found it necessary to study similar models at Spitz, Inc. in order to use it properly. A special three-week course was conducted at the institute which included a week of slide making processes and a week of "naked eye astronomy" as taught by well known astronomer, George Reed. The final week included hands-on training and covered special effects.

The planetarium projection room seats as many as 70 people, but Jim prefers to work with groups of 30 on a classroom level. Both strictly educational and slightly more entertaining sky-shows are presented. Several of the more elaborate shows that use a variety of slide and movie projectors and a complicated sound system are "The People Program," which deals with the American Indians' interpretation of the universe; "The Loneliness Factor," presents what it would be like to live on other planets in our universe and "The Legacy" provides a guided tour of outer space presenting past suppositions and future predictions. These sky-shows are leased or purchased from Hansen Planetarium in Salt Lake City, Utah.

The planetarium is also equipped for "home-made" sky-shows which require hours of film editing, tape splicing and synchronization. The talents of Gary "Dusty" Stanton, resource specialist for the Board of Education, have proved invaluable in this area. Gary helps in coordinating the complex equipment and has mastered the art of repairing the intricate mechanisms.



Jim Hart is constantly upgrading the quality and quantity of the planetarium's curricula. He has written a syllabus for county teachers that lists the available lessons. Teachers must then schedule their class visits several weeks in advance and in addition to the actual sky-show the students are often given a preliminary lesson in the planetarium's attached classroom.

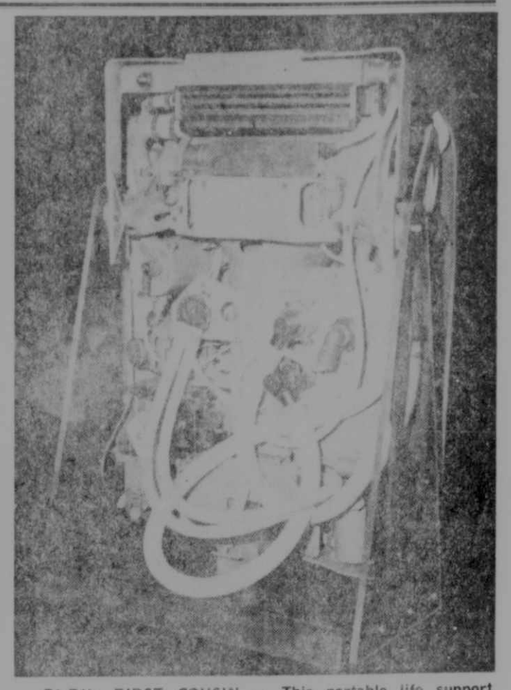
The planetarium hosted a special program last week for several classes from Northern and Southern High School, Dennett Road, Broad Ford, Loch Lynn, Accident, Southern Middle School and Red House schools. The program featured the Senior Experimental Engineer of Hamilton Standard, Division of United Technologies, Jim Morancey, as guest speaker.

Morancey's firm is under contract to NASA to construct specialized hardware and equipment for the space shuttle which is scheduled to leave early next summer. Hamilton Standard manufactured the portable life support systems (PLSS) that were used during the 1969 moonwalk.

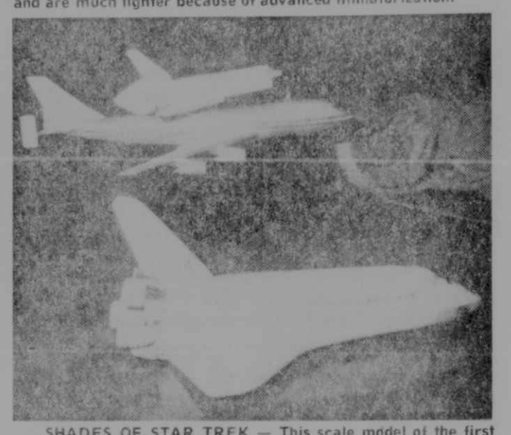
Hamilton recently developed five environmental control subsystems (ECS) for the space shuttle. Several examples of the representative equipment were on display and students had an opportunity to try on a helmet, gloves and the liquid cool garment that is worn under a space suit.

Morancey explained that the first space shuttle, called The Enterprise, and four other shuttle crafts are expected to be used almost weekly, sometime in the 1980s, for the round trip flights between Earth and the orbiting space lab. Because the shuttle will be rented to private enterprise and foreign governments for research purposes at an anticipated rate of $22 per pound they will pay for the initial investment with a fifteen dollar return per dollar of expenditure.

FROM STAR WARS' BAR SCENE? — "A3-P" is the technical name for this "plantetarium" or star projector. Its revolving star-ball projects 1,352 heavenly bodies on a specially constructed dome. Attachments such as a clear Earth globe give you a view of the heavens from the earth's core; the projector can also duplicate the star placement at any point in history, from any location on earth.



TWO ENTERPRISING TYPES — Jim Morancey, left, senior experimental engineer for Hamilton Standard, presents planetarium director, Jim Hart, with a painting of the first space shuttle, The Enterprise. Mr. Morancey conducted a program on man's recent and future conquests of our largest frontier, outer space. We're sure that when the shuttle begins taking reservations, these two will be the first to go.



READY FOR TAKE-OFF — Jim Hart, director of the Garrett County Planetarium gets ready for a presentation. The sky-shows require a vast array of slide and movie projectors, lights, recorders and a special planetarium projector. Jim must coordinate the components with the help of Dusty Stanton, resource specialist for the Board of Education.

LUKE SKYWALKER, LOOK OUT — Wally Isaacs, a student at Northern High School wears the latest thing in interplanetary undergarments. This Liquid Cool Garment is worn under the spacesuit and the plastic tubes circulate fluid to maintain a constant body temperature. Prior to the space age, people wondered what the Scotsmen wore under their kilts — now everyone wants to know what the Astronauts wear under their suits. The answer is diapers. Honest!

R2-D2's FIRST COUSIN — This portable life support system was developed by Hamilton Standard for an earlier NASA space program. It weighs nearly 125 pounds but is easily carried in the zero-gravity of outer space. It is already outdated and the new PLSS systems are self-contained in the space suit and are much lighter because of advanced miniaturization.

SHADES OF STAR TREK — This scale model of the first space shuttle, The Enterprise, was available for examination by area students during last week's special program at the planetarium.

Mankind is already reaping many benefits from the space program. Teflon, Velcro and high impact plastics are a direct result of space engineering technology. Now the advanced monitoring techniques used in the spacecrafts are also used to detect medical problems in premature infants. Future research conducted in the orbiting space lab is expected to provide countless benefits for "Earthlings."

Jim Hart hopes that programs similar to last week's will become a part of the planetarium program. As a member of the National Science Teachers Association, he is able to compare curricula notes with other teachers and exchange information. He stated that interest in the planetarium had increased and is expected to continue growing.

Jim believes that the Garrett County Planetarium is a valuable resource for the community and the county's educational system. "It's so easy to motivate the kids because of the projector and other equipment — the planetarium is invaluable because you can actually show them," he said.

Many groups such as the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, the Rotary Club and several out-of-state organizations and schools have expressed interest in the planetarium and have attended programs there. Plans are currently underway for a public showing and an announcement concerning the program is expected to be made at a later date.

Jim Hart's hard work and dedication to the Garrett County Planetarium are clearly evident, and the educational possibilities the facility provides are tremendous — in fact, they're astronomical.

One Injured In Car-Cycle Crash

A car-motorcycle collision at the intersection of Route 135 and Sand Flat Road Monday at 3 p.m. sent the operator of the cycle to the hospital for treatment.

David Lee Keplinger, 26, of Kitzmiller, is in satisfactory condition, suffering from a neck injury. Keplinger was transported to the hospital by members of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

According to the police report, Keplinger and a passenger on his 1973 Suzuki 750 were traveling on Route 135. A car operated by Nancy Lee Wakefield, 26, Route 1, Friendsville, approached the intersection from Sand Flat Road, and pulled into the path of the motorcycle. Ms. Wakefield has been charged with failing to yield the right of way.

Neither the driver of the car nor Darl Roderick, passenger on the cycle, were injured.

DOES IT COME IN NAVY BLUE? — Paul Adams, right, Northern High School's science teacher and several students inspect a space suit created by Hamilton Standard for NASA's space program. The new space shuttle suits were designed to reduce donning and doffing time, improve leakage integrity, reduce bulk and improve mobility, increase suit life, establish sizing systems, and improve reliability.

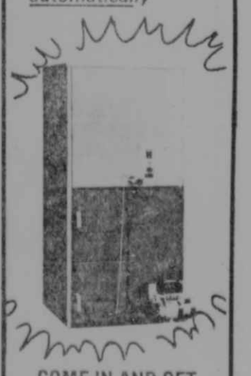
BY JIM WILLIS

Stephen King, author of Carrie and Salem's Lot, has another nationwide bestseller on his hands — The Shining.

Book reviewers all over the country are calling his newest, "spellbinding — enough horrors to have you jumping at shadows!" "be prepared to be scared out of your mind —" "harrowing and all but unbearable tension —" "will curl your hair and chill your blood!" and "deliciously shivery reading!" I think the reviewers are understating the fact.



The Shining is a modern horror story with all of the old world charm that makes a classic. King allows you to sympathize with the anti-hero, Jack Torrance a n'er-do-well misfit valiantly trying to hold on to himself and his family.

Torrance, an ex-alcoholic, fights a losing battle to stay "on the wagon" and in an act of desperation he accepts the job of winter caretaker of an isolated summer hotel — The Overlook. He is accompanied on the long winter sojourn by his pragmatic wife, Wendy and their five year-old, Danny.

Danny combines an amusing outlook on life, a childish innocence and extraordinary extra sensory perception. He also watches the faded, jaded memories of the Overlook become the frightening, dangerous present.

Few books maintain a constant charge of nervous energy and mounting terror from prologue to epilogue. The Shining does — so by all means read it — in a crowded room, with all of the lights on!

The U. S. is set to accept an additional 25,000 Indochinese refugees annually.

Grantsville Community Picnic Set

The Grantsville Community Business and Development Association announced that the first Annual Grantsville Community Picnic will be held on Saturday, June 24, at the new Grantsville Community Park.

The picnic is being held in conjunction with the 50th anniversary of the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department, which will be sponsoring a banquet on June 22 and a large parade on June 23 at 7:00 p.m. Following the parade there will be a battle of the barrel contest among participating fire companies.

The picnic will begin at 12:00 noon on June 24 with a Little League Baseball game between the Grantsville Rotary and the Grantsville Lions teams. Later in the afternoon the Grantsville Softball League will play a best-of-three game competition.

Registration for a horseshoe pitching tournament will begin at noon as well as registration for a basketball foul shooting contest. Trophies will be awarded to winners of both contests.

There will also be various other games for children and adults with prizes for the winners. Tennis players will be permitted to utilize the newly constructed tennis courts.

Many local organizations will sponsor booths and sell baked goods, handicrafts and other items. The Grantsville Lions Club will sponsor a chicken barbeque with all proceeds going to the community park. Other organizations wishing to participate should contact Gerry Beachy at 895-5177.

In the event of rain, the picnic will be held at the Grantsville Fire Hall.

The final planning meeting for the Community Picnic will be held Tuesday, June 6, at 8:00 p.m. in the United Church of Christ in Grantsville.

Faculty Forum

by Kristin Milne
GCTA Public Relations

Tension and stress have become such widespread problems in the teaching profession that increasing numbers of teachers, especially in urban areas, are either dropping out or seeking early retirement.

Disruptive students, fear of violence, large classes, negative student attitudes, unresponsive or incompetent administrators, mainstreamed pupils, and excessively heavy work loads were cited by teacher leaders and staff contacted in an NEA random telephone survey. "Many teachers see a salary increase more as compensation for their misery rather than as payment for professional services rendered," says Reggie Smith, Virginia Education Association director of leadership development and human relations.

In-service workshops have been developed to show teachers techniques of resolving conflict, managing anger and frustration, creative problem-solving, and time management.

In some parts of the country there is limited evidence that teachers are finding it necessary to seek professional help anonymously in order to cope. More are coming to the Association. "During the past several years, I can definitely say that I'm helping more teachers with mental stress caused by poor student attitude and lack of school discipline," says a Uniserv staff member located in the Northeast.

Frequently, however, teachers are leaving the profession. Turnover rates of 25 percent are not unusual in school districts where teachers receive no support from administrators or the community. Teachers are also clamoring for early retirement provisions. "No one wants to go to 65," says Tommy Fulton, NEA director for Oklahoma. Statistics from the NEA survey, Status of the American Public School Teacher, 1975-76, show that in 1961, 28 percent of teachers had 20 or more years of experience, in 1976 only 14 percent had 20-plus years of experience. The median age of teachers in 1976 was 33, the lowest ever.

Competency Movement

"This is the first major educational reform pushed into state policy by non-educators. You would be hard-pressed to find anything in the history of American education that duplicates the competency movement," says Chris Pipho, a research official at the Denver-based Education Commission of the States. Thirty-three states now have minimum standards and four more are expected to establish them by June.

Only about two-thirds of the states that have minimum standards have mandated a test, and the bulk of the states that do test have left the development and implementation of the test to local districts. In many cases, the tests are merely assessments of proficiency in reading, communications, and mathematics skills. In the most extreme cases, states require students to be found "functionally literate" by a state standardized exam and will only grant a certificate of attendance rather than a diploma to those who fail the test.

Florida is the only state so far that has administered a standardized functional literacy test to 11th graders as a requirement for graduation with a diploma. The test was developed last year by the state department of education in compliance with Florida law. Students had to prove proficiency in reading comprehension, communications, and mathematics skills in order to pass.

Controversy is raging around four points: 1) The test did not reflect the curriculum; 2) In many schools, students who passed are now being neglected since teachers have to spend most of their time teaching remedial classes for those who failed; 3) Since most of the students who failed the test are either black or hispanic, a re-segregation within Florida's schools has occurred; and 4) Certificates of attendance brand students as "dumb."

Florida has also initiated a basic skills test that 3rd, 5th, and 8th graders must pass to be promoted to the next grade, but this measure is locally enforced. Florida teachers must evaluate each of their students on 60 competencies each year as an accountability measure.

In Vermont, the Burlington Education Association has filed an unfair labor practice complaint against the city's school board claiming that the record-keeping connected with state basic competency requirements constitutes an additional work load and should be subject to its collective bargaining agreement.

The Vermont legislature mandated not only an adult proficiency test to be given to high school seniors no later than 1981, but required teachers to evaluate pupils in 26 competencies. Burlington's school board moved the test to 1979 and instructed teachers to begin the evaluations immediately. BEA teachers tried to bargain with the board for additional clerical help and teacher aids and when the board refused to re-open the contract, teachers filed the complaint.

Florida and Vermont are examples of the methods used, one has a state-developed standardized test, the other operates under state guidelines but local control. Each state is unique in what is required, what the penalties are, and how the tests are developed and administered. Dominican Troops Seize Headquarters

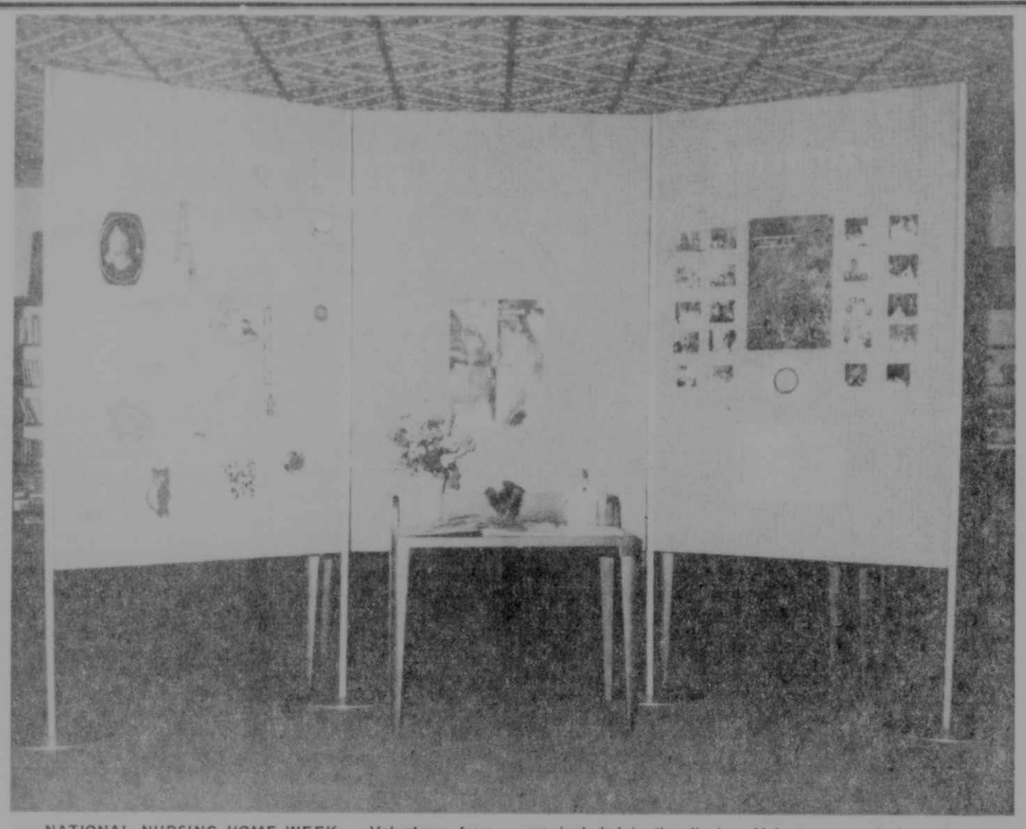
SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Dominican troops seized electoral commission headquarters in Santo Domingo today and there were widespread reports of a half-hearted military coup attempt to head off a victory by left-wing presidential candidate Antonio Guzman.

Lt. Gen. Juan Beauchamps Javier, minister of state for the Armed Forces, announced that the armed forces were not carrying out a coup with the apparent electoral defeat of incumbent President Joaquim Balaguer and said the military would not deviate from its institutional functions.



His terse announcement on a national network said the armed forces would limit themselves to maintaining order and preserving democracy. The first public reaction was one of skepticism due to the rupture of the electoral processes when the army halted ballot counting in the middle of the night.

The reports said there had been a coup attempt but that it was aborted when some strong military garrison commanders refused to go along with it. Balaguer had opposed any coup attempt and told UPI in an interview Monday the armed forces had pledged a peaceful transition if Guzman won the election.

Military leaders were meeting with Balaguer today and the outcome of any coup attempt was expected to depend on the outcome of that meeting.

National Police chief Gen. Neit Rafael Nivar Seijas was heard on the police radio band this morning convoking his section chiefs to headquarters and placing on an alert. This touched off reports here and abroad that Seijas was acting against Guzman, whose social reforms were an anathema to Seijas.

The troops acted as returns from Tuesday's presidential election showed Balaguer was falling farther and farther behind Guzman, a rich rancher from the Cibao who galvanized a middle class surge for change with promises to end corruption. He had a 2-1 lead when voting was halted.

All Americans In Zaire Evacuated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost all Americans trapped by fighting in Zaire have been evacuated by truck and helicopter, averting the need for evacuation by the 82nd Airborne Division, the State Department said today.

A spokesman said all but about 10 Americans have been evacuated by the Morrison-Knudsen Engineering Co. American workers and their dependents were involved with construction of a high voltage power transmission line near Kolwezi, the copper mining town in Shaba province where fighting between Zairean troops and rebels held virtual hostage some 3,000 foreigners.

A spokesman for the State Department task force on Zaire said about 78 Americans were moved to the town of Musonoy, 60 miles west of Kolwezi. There were no incidents reported during the evacaution.

The spokesman for the Task Force said that the remaining Americans are in the vicinity of the fighting in Kolwezi, and could not reach the trucks or helicopters to be evacuated.

The alert of one battalion of the 82d Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C., had been a precautionary move, officials said.

The president could have ordered American troops abroad for the evacuation, on the advice of the U.S. ambassador to Zaire, Walter Cutler.

"The principal aim is to get these folks out without injury, and as quickly as possible, and we felt that doing it by other means was best," one State Department official said.

A president has the authority to commit U.S. troops abroad if he notifies Congress of the action within 48 hours. The troops must be withdrawn within 60 days unless Congress authorizes a continued commitment, under the War Powers Act passed in 1973 over Richard Nixon's veto.

At Ft. Bragg, N.C., trucks and other equipment had been moved throughout the night to staging areas as units of the 82nd Airborne Division prepared for possible deployment to Zaire.

The division, the nation's crack strike force, last was put on alert during the 1973 Yom Kippur War in the Middle East.

The number troops that were to be used from the division's 17,000-member division was classified. Lt. Col. Ron David, public information officer at the facility in eastern North Carolina, said unit commanders had been briefed on their possible objective and that troops "were cleaning their weapons, reading books, and writing letters home."

A number of airlift planes were at nearby Pope Air Force Base for possible use, including C130 Turboprops and C141 jets.

Sale Of Warplanes To Israel Draws Mixed Reactions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House is sending mixed signals in the wake of its hard-won Senate approval of the sale of warplanes to Israel and two moderate Arab nations.

A senior U.S. official, deeply involved in the Middle East peace negotiations, said the sale should tell Israel it is in a new ballgame with new rules, as far as U.S. policy is concerned.

The official said the United States considers the next step toward peace is for Israel to respond to U.S. proposals concerning the future of the Gaza Strip and the occupied West Bank of the Jordan.

But in trying to combat any talk of a vendetta or anti-Semitism — terms used by White House press secretary Jody Powell — President Carter phoned 10 or 12 persons, both supporters and opponents of the sale, in and out of Congress.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale and other administration officials joined the effort, making between 25 and 50 calls altogether.

"This has been a sharp debate," Powell said, "and it is our hope that, to the extent possible, we can put that debate behind us and concentrate our attention now, all of us, on the search for a permanent and just peace."

"I noticed in a couple of reports implications that members of the White House staff were engaged in some sort of vendetta, that there was even a reference that anti-Semitism was involved," Powell said.

"To the extent it is possible through our public statements and through our private conversations, particularly with those who opposed us on this matter, we will attempt to lay those sorts of concerns to rest," he said.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, the unidentified senior official and Powell all affirmed the basic U.S. commitment to maintaining Israel's security.

The official, however, went further than Powell is defining the change toward giving the moderate Arabs the arms they want and demanding flexibility by Israel. Powell reaffirmed the U.S. promise to sell 20 additional F-15s to Israel.

On another arms matter, Carter told congressional leaders Tuesday his "hands were tied" in helping countries such as Zaire fight Communist-inspired insurgency. He hinted he may try to ease certain restraints on action by the White House.

Powell said a review was being conducted of foreign policy restrictions on the presidency, and recommendations will be made when it is completed.

He said the administration did not want to alter safeguards on deploying troops — which were adopted in the wake of the Vietnam war — but declined to talk about specifics.

Carter is prevented from sending arms to Zaire under legislation blocking military credits sales to any country which has not fully paid for previous sales. Zaire reportedly is $400,000 in arrears.

Law May Wipe Out Congressional "Double Standard"

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress may be faced with the prospect of living by the rules it sets for private employers.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., accused his colleagues of setting a "double standard" that separates congressional and private employees by exempting Congress from nine major laws covering civil, social, physical and financial rights.

Leahy introduced legislation in the Senate Tuesday to wipe out those exemptions and he warned that if Congress balked, he would attach the legislation piecemeal to other bills.

"The problem is that in enacting these measures, Congress proclaimed that what is good and fair for the country is not necessarily good and fair from Congress," he said. "Simple equity and fairness demand passage of this legislation."

Meanwhile, the House meets today to decide whether to accept President Carter's proposed $499 billion 1979 federal budget. The Senate quickly passed the version worked out by a congressional conference committee earlier this week, but it may not be as easy to get it through the House.

Carter needs the help of Republicans to get the budget passed, but House GOP Leader John Rhodes didn't hold out much hope of support.

"We will not accept the ball when it's on the one-yard line," he said, apparently referring to lack of a White House call for input from Republican leaders when the budget-drafting process began in January.

Later tonight, House Ethics Committee members will meet to work out the next moves in their investigation of South Korean lobbying. The meeting was requested by special counsel Leon Jaworski, who was rebuffed last week in his efforts to get the House to force testimony by a former Korean ambassador through a cutoff of U.S. agricultural aid to Korea.

In action Tuesday, the House decided it was tired of waiting around for the Consumer Product Safety Commission to act, and approved legislation setting safety standards for home insulation.

The measures would be temporary until the commission completes the process for setting its own standards.

A committee report noted that many homeowners have insulated their homes following the urging of Carter and his energy officials, but there are no federal safety standards for the material being used.

In committee action:

—The House Judiciary Committee approved a bill providing for the appointment of special prosecutors when needed to investigate charges against top government officials.

—Former CIA Director Richard Helms told the Senate Intelligence Committee that a charter being proposed for the agency would cripple its ability to carry out its intelligence operations.

Ethiopian Troops End Year's Siege

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Ethiopian troops backed by Cuban troops and Soviet advisers broke out of their encircled enclave of Asmara, using tanks, warplanes and artillery to smash the yearlong siege by Eritreans rebels.

A spokesman for the Eritrean Liberation Front, which has been fighting for independence for the former Italian colony for 17 years, said 20,000 Ethiopian troops moved south and southwest from Asmara in an apparent pincer movement designed to break the insurgents' hold around the northern province capital.

The Ethiopians, he said, "have penetrated the forward defense lines" of the guerrillas, which had successfully held off repeated attacks since the city was encircled last year.

The spokesman said the Ethiopians were using tanks, warplanes and artillery in their onslaught, decribed as the "largest offensive ever launched by the Ethiopians." A naval bombardment was reported near the Port of Assab on the strategic Red Sea coast.

Ethiopia disclosed Tuesday government forces had launched the long-expected counteroffensive in Eritrea and indicated that Cuban and Soviet forces were taking part in the battle.

"At this very hour and minute, the popular masses and the anti-people forces are falling on the battlefield in the Eritrean administrative region," Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam, Ethiopia's leader, told a mass rally in the city of Harar.

Mengistu said Ethiopia considers the Soviet Union, Cuba, South Yemen and East Germany as friends, adding, "They are living with us, dying with us and fighting with us, standing side by side with the broad masses of Ethiopia."

The estimated 1,000 Soviet advisers and 17,000 Cuban troops in Ethiopia played a key offensive role in helping the Ethiopians defeat a Somali-backed invasion in the southern Ogaden region in March.

Mengistu did not elaborate on the role of the Soviets and Cubans. There has been frequent speculation that the Soviets, who once supported the rebels, now seek base rights in an Eritrean port city following their expulsion from Somalia last year.

The Eritrean coastline is Ethiopia's only direct access to the sea and it lies a short distance from the coast of Saudi Arabia.

Because of its strategic considerations, the United States has expressed serious concern about Soviet and Cuban operations there and the conservative Arab countries have given extensive support to the rebels.

Before the Ethiopian drive began, the predominantly Moslem rebels controlled 95 percent of Eritrea and all the major towns except Asmara, Assab and another port, Massawa.

Seven Die In Tennessee Fire

JELLICO, Tenn. (UPI) — More than 60 days ago, state inspectors gave the owners of the old red-brick Jenkins Hotel in this Tennessee-Kentucky border town 30 days to correct a number of safety defects, including the lack of smoke detectors.

Tuesday, seven of the estimated 40 residents — many of them elderly and poor — were killed and 11 others injured in a pre-dawn fire that blocked their way out of the building, erected around the turn of the century.

Assistant Director Ed Puckett of the state's hotel and motel inspection divison said he did not know whether the defects found on March 3 had been corrected.

The Jenkins was given a maximum five-point deduction for defects in the "construction" category, and inspectors cited poorly designed doors and windows, junk in storage areas and rooms and furniture not in good repair.

"I hate to use the word 'fleabag,' but that's about what this hotel was," said Dr. Jessee Walker, deputy medical examiner. "It was a fire trap."

Authorities ruled out arson, but they said they were trying to pinpoint the cause of the fire that left only the outside walls of the three-story building standing.

Those who died ranged from 77-year-old Iva Brookman, originally of Hammond, Ind., to 3-year-old Jamie Miller. The child's father, James Miller, 22, who had recently moved from Kokomo, Ind., also was killed.

Other victims were J.T. "Hoppy" Hopkins, 57; O.L. Hampton, 62; Nancy Perry, 67, and Harry Earl Gilburth, 38, all of Jellico.

The 11 injured included Marty Burchett, 21, who was in critical condition from a jump from a third-story window.

"We just had moved in there," said Haskell Strong, 34, who escaped the burning structure with his wife and four stepchildren. "We knew it was a hazard. To me it wasn't safe. It wasn't safe for anybody really. The place should have been torn down years ago. It just wasn't safe."

John Cox, 58, said he was aroused by someone yelling fire. "I jumped up and opened my door and smoke hit me in the face. I jumped out the window and a rescue squad guy caught me. The hotel was unsafe. The wiring and plumbing was bad."

But 21-year-old Joe Dunaway, had mostly regrets.

"I opened the door and saw all the smoke," Dunaway said. "I hollered for everyone to get out. In some ways, I think I should have done more than I did, but one whiff of that smoke and you would have been gone."

He added: "I wish I could have got that poor old woman out who was in the room next to me."

It is said that two million trees are needed to replenish Maryland's Eastern Shore forests.

William Steinberg Dies In New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — William Steinberg, 78, music director of the Pittsburgh and Boston symphony orchestras, died Tuesday at Lenox Hill Hospital.

The German-born Steinberg, who fled the Nazis in 1936, and came to the United States in 1938, was hospitalized May 2, the day after he conducted the New York Philharmonic in a private concert.

He assumed directorship of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in 1952, developing it into a world-renowned ensemble.

He accepted the newly created post of principal guest conductor of the New York Philharmonic in 1964, sharing concerts in Philharmonic Hall at Lincoln Center with Leonard Bernstein.

He became music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 1969, remaining in the post for three seasons.

Steinberg, meanwhile, led the Pittsburgh orchestra until he resigned in 1976. Since then he continued to guest conduct in Pittsburgh every season, along with other major orchestras in the United States and Europe.

Steinberg, one of the principal directors of the Cologne Opera, before being dismissed by the Nazis in 1933, became active in Jewish community affairs in Germany before leaving in 1936 for Palestine. There he was a founder of the Palestine Orchestra, now the Israel Philharmonic.

Steinberg, who lived in Atherton, Calif., is survived by a son, Arthur, and a daughter, Mrs. Sylvia Tennenbaum.

Services will be private.

Lee Signs Mason's Health Insurance Bill

Acting Governor Blair Lee, III, yesterday signed into law a bill introduced by Senator Edward J. Mason (R.-Allegany-Garrett) that will make catastrophic health insurance available to Maryland Blue Cross-Blue Shield subscribers.

The new health insurance law is directed at preventing any person or any family from being financially ruined by paying for medical expenses resulting from a catastrophic illness.

The new law will require Maryland Blue Cross-Blue Shield to offer a catastrophic health insurance policy which will cover up to $1 million of health care. Such policy may provide for a deductible, which deductible can be satisfied by an individual's basic and/or major medical health coverage.

Maryland's catastrophic health insurance law will enable individuals to purchase for a reasonable price health care coverage to supplement their basic and major medical coverage and thus protect themselves from financial devastation resulting from an unforeseen catastrophic illness.

Senator Mason has been advised that the additional cost would be less than five dollars a month.

Charlie Chaplin's Body Recovered

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (UPI) — Charlie Chaplin's body and coffin, stolen 10 weeks ago, have been recovered and the graverobbers arrested, police said today.

A police spokesman said the theft was a "local affair," and the coffin with the remains of film's famed "little tramp" was discovered "not far away."

A police statement said only the robbery has been solved, the coffin and body revovered and the thieves arrested. Police said further details would be revealed at a news conference Thursday.

The theft constitutes a crime under Swiss law which prohibits "disturbance of the dead."

Chaplin, 88, died Christmas Day. He was buried Dec. 27 but the plain oak coffin and the actor's remains were stolen March 2 from Chaplin's estate in the village of Corsier above Lake Geneva.

The police spokesman said the coffin has not been returned to the grave because of legal procedures.

Information was also withheld on how many people were involved and their nationalities.

The police statement gave no indication of who was behind the theft or their motives for stealing the body of the comedian who made generations of Americans laugh by playing the perennial underdog and exiting at the end of his films with his famed shuffle.

When the body was stolen, Chaplin's widow Oona vowed she would never pay a ransom for the return of the coffin and the body. "Charlie would have found that ridiculous," she said.

No motive for the theft has been announced. After the robbery, Swiss police centered their attention on the possibility of a ransom.

But there was widespread speculation as to other motives, with some reports claiming the body was stolen so the actor's wish could be met to be buried in his home country of England.

One Hollywood report claimed the coffin was dug up because Chaplin was Jewish but was buried in a gentile cemetery.

Chaplin and Oona lived for 25 years in a large manor house in the village of Corsier, in the hills above Lake Geneva.

Oona, who inherited an estimated $25 million on her husband's death, still lives in the house, occupying 35 acres of ground.

Oona, daughter of playright Eugene O'Neill, decided on burial in the Corsier cemetery on legal advice. Lawyers said there could be complications over inheritance taxes if Chaplin had been buried in England.

Austrian Makes First Solo Climb Of Mt. Everest

KARMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — An Austrian mountain climber has reached the summit of Mount Everest in the first solo climb of the world's highest peak, the Foreign Ministry announced today.

Franz Oppurg, 26, made it to the summit of the the 29,028-foot mountain around noon on Sunday, the ministry said, quoting a message from base camp of the 11-member expedition.

Sir Edmund Hillary, the conqueror of Everest 25 years ago, was accompanied by a Sherpa guide, Kenzing Norgay.

Oppurg began his final assault from a fifth camp at 27,200 feet, accompanied by Joel Knoll, 54, another Austrian alpinist.

But Knoll, who would have been the oldest person to reach the top of Everest, had "problems with his oxygen regulator and was forced to return to camp — a few minutes after setting out," the announcement said.

The Austrians had earlier put other team members on the summit and scored another first when Peter Habeler, 35, and Reinhold Messner, 33, were the first persons to reach the top without oxygen equipment on May 8.

Wallace Ending Political Career

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Three-term Gov. George C. Wallace, who sought the presidency four times, apparently signaled the end of his political career in a stunning postscript to an otherwise routine speech Tuesday night.

Wallace, 58, paralyzed from the waist down from an assassination attempt during the 1972 presidential campaign, said Tuesday night he will not run for the U.S. Senate despite his certainty that he would win the race.

Wallace cannot succeed himself since Alabama law prohibits a governor from serving three consecutive terms, so his announcement means he is evidently retiring from elective politics.

The statement came at the end of Wallace's speech, and the governor was whisked away by aides without making further comment. The crowd of 1,000 sat silently for a moment, then gave him a standing ovation.

The announcement even stunned Wallace's press secretary and the chairman of his Senate campaign, Billy Joe Camp, who was reached later in Montgomery.

"This would be a surprise to me," said Camp. "I knew that he had been giving a lot of thought to it. I knew he needed to think about it. But we all assumed that it was kind of 100 percent across the board that he would run."

If he retires, Wallace could draw $18,000 a year as counselor to the governor. John Harbert, a Birmingham businessman, said recently he is trying to raise money for a permanent chair for Wallace at a state university.

When asked what the governor would do when he leaves office, Camp said, "He doesn't know himself. There will probably be numerous opportunities available to him."

Merchants Discuss Memorial Day

The Oakland Merchants Association met Tuesday, May 9, at Fireside Inn, with a chief topic the Memorial Day observances in the town.

Store owners agreed to observe Tuesday, May 30, as the holiday, with stores to close on that day.

The group agreed to ask agencies sponsoring the parade to begin at the new parking lot in Oakland, on Liberty Street.

Haig Jackson indicated that the Town Council is to get some outside advisors to visit Oakland to determine what improvements could be made. The Department of Economic and Community Development and the University of Maryland and State Planning would possibly be doing reports.

Various ideas were discussed for the Autumn Glory promotion, including again inviting the Cub Hill Cloggers to perform. Bob Rudy reported that the Oakland Volunteer fire department is planning an Oktoberfest for the Thursday evening during Autumn Glory week, after the firemen's parade.

Among other items discussed were the Christmas parade and annual Christmas shopping season, but no decisions were reached.

Mrs. Gonder served in similiar "Byron for Congress" posts during the incumbent's successful 1974 and 1976 re-election bids.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE CRITICS

Lesson for May 21, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 11
Devotional Reading: Ephesians 2:11-22

Someone once defined a drama critic as "a person who can neither act or write plays but criticizes those that do." That may not be an entirely fair definition, but I can't help thinking that there is more than just a little truth in it. In fact, this truth isn't limited just to drama, for we often find that the critics in almost any field are those who talk a far better game than play it—if indeed they can play at all.

Rev. Althouse

The circumcision party

I find this true in the field of religion, too. It often seems that we have far more self-appointed critics than we really need, people who devote themselves to telling everyone else what they are doing wrong. Of course, this is hardly a contemporary development, for the Bible indicates that we have always had an overabundance of critics in religion.

For example, in Acts 11 we find that, although the church is very, very young, some parties and factions had already sprung up within the church. Following his experience with Cornelius the Centurian at Caesarea, we are told that "when Peter went up to Jerusalem, the circumcision party criticized him" (11:2). "Why did you go to uncircumcised men and eat with them?" they demanded.

This party in the church held that all followers of Christ must be circumcised, law-abiding Jews, who would not associate with the "unclean" Gentiles. Substitute some other word for "uncircumcised" and their criticism of Peter sounds perfectly contemporary.

Withstanding God

These men were critics all right; they criticised Peter's association with the Gentiles, they criticised his preaching to them, and they were extremely critical of the implication that these Gentiles might have been treated and accepted as converts to Christ.

It is a disturbing picture that Luke paints for us in Acts 11. Some of these critics were undoubtedly men who had personally known Jesus in the days of his earthly ministry. They had heard his teachings and had seen his miracles. They had witnessed his sacrifice on Calvary, yet as we see them in Acts 11 they seem to have missed the whole meaning of the Good News. They still saw a wall—between Jew and Gentile—where in fact Christ had torn down a wall. They still saw a limited, parochial God where Jesus had pointed to a Heavenly Father for all people. They appear less as disciples than critics and the spirit in which they took Peter to task could hardly have reflected the spirit they had seen in the Master. How could they so have missed the boat?

How can we continue to miss it today?

SOME MORE FACTS ABOUT HYPERTENSION
High blood pressure is more common in women than in men. The average age of onset is about 35, although it is not unusual to find it in younger people. Onset after 55 years of age, however, is uncommon. Diabetics are at least twice as liable to develop high blood pressure as non-diabetics.
Also, it is generally accepted that heredity is of great importance in the developing of hypertension. A child whose parents both have high blood pressure has a greater chance of becoming hypertensive.

Mr. Green said that there may be more than one such seminar, depending on the level of interest. Persons wanting more information should contact Mr. Green.

Farm Insurance Plan Announced

Plans for a consolidated, all-risk farm insurance program were announced recently by the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service (ASCS) will help market the new insurance program.

"Under the program, each producer could choose from three levels of insurance coverage — 50, 70, and 90 percent of his normal crop production," James Voss, State Executive Director, Maryland State ASCS Office, said. The farmer would pay about half the actual cost of insurance for the minimum 50 percent protection. If he chooses 70 percent protection, he would pay for most of the cost of the additional 20 percent protection, and would pay all the cost for the final 20 percent of protection at the 90-percent level. These three levels might vary for different crops, Voss said.

"By using federal funds mainly to share premium costs for the first level of protection, with producers paying most of the premiums for higher levels of protection, a level of protection covering cost of production would be affordable to most producers."

Funded through USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation, the proposed program provides better protection to farmers than present disaster programs, at no additional cost to the government. "By utilizing the existing ASCS delivery system to sell the insurance, along with private insurance agents, we will be able to provide the type of service most familiar to farmers," Voss said.

The Farm Production Protection Act would consolidate four present disaster assistance programs into one, to insure crops against natural disasters and some other uncontrollable risks. The 1977 farm bill provides protection against economic disaster through loan and target price provisions. "The new insurance program complements that action by providing adequate protection for the farmer who has a bad crop or no crop at all," Voss said.

The first crop that could be covered would be 1980 winter crops planted in the fall of 1979, if the plan receives speedy Congressional consideration. Voss said the insurance plan is part of a comprehensive food and agriculture policy.

Mother's Day just passed, but that doesn't mean we shouldn't remember Mom all year long. Mothers deserve more than just yearly recognition. Do you know what they had to go through to endure motherhood?

First of all your mother had to carry you for nine months. Pregnancy cannot be pleasant. For one thing you repeatedly kicked your mother in the stomach, from the inside out! As if that wasn't enough you sent her running to the 24-hour market after every exotic food imaginable.

Then you couldn't wait to be born. Oh no, not you—there your poor mother was, sitting under a hair dryer at Mabel's Salon and you decided you couldn't wait — and you knew how she hated to go anywhere incurlers.

Of course, there was the delivery. You couldn't be like everyone else, you had to be born with your ankles wrapped behind your head. You caused quite a brawl in that delivery room. Whatever possessed you to slap the obstetrician back?

Now we can usually excuse an oral fixation in infants, but you were ridiculous. Gerbers wasn't good enough for you — you had to masticate a bar of Ivory soap, two diaper pins, the rabbit ears from the TV, the dog's tail and Aunt Emily's birthday corsage.

Then you came to the toddling stage, sometimes called the "terrible two's." Phoning your mother from the bus station and asking her to pick you up was not funny.

You had to have a chemistry set for your third birthday. Your poor mother also had to explain to the landlord about the roof — the one in the back yard.

At four you joined the preschool program and gave your teacher grey hair — she was 22. All during grade school you phoned in bomb threats whenever there was an arithmetic quiz scheduled.

In junior high you couldn't even beat the erasers without getting into trouble. It took Mary Ellen a full two hours to comb the chalk dust out of her hair.

High School was fun. Remember your first date? Yeah, well the girl is still in that convent. By the way, I was reading your yearbook and noticed that your senior class voted you Most Likely To Create A Disturbance.

So now you are a parent too. You work hard to support a wife and three kids. You're also taking a vacation next month — and leaving the kids with your mother for three weeks. Have a heart!

State Police Check Drug And Larceny Cases

Drug, breaking and entering and larceny cases are among those investigated by the Maryland State Police, Mc-Henry Detachment, recently.

An 18-year old Pennsylvania youth was stopped for speeding on U. S. 219 just south of U. S. 48 the evening of May 5. A young woman was said in the driver's seat at the time they were stopped and apparently had no license. The youth also had no license at the time. Upon further inspection by Sgt. H. W. Graham, various quantities of suspected marijuana were found in the car. Samples of the substance have been sent to the Maryland State Police laboratories for analysis. Mark Dennis Karnes, 18, McKeesport, Pa., has been charged with possession of marijuana.

The breaking and entering and larceny case occurred the latter part of April. Involved was an abandoned storage building at the top of Big Savage Mountain just off Rt. 40, belonging to Donald N. Shrader of Frostburg. A lock and hasp was broken off and an old electric refrigerator taken, together valued at about $75. There were no suspects in the incident investigated by Tfc. Robert Friend.

A 17-year-old juvenile was involved in the larceny of $2 worth of gasoline from Ford Country Exxon, RD 4, Grantsville, shortly before midnight May 7. The youth left without paying. Tfc. Gary Resh investigated the case. The youth was found and later released to the custody of his parents.

The larceny of $104.80 occurred at the National Hotel in Grantsville May 12. The money in the 'bank bag' was taken from the hotel office by what was described as a small, white male about 15 years old. He first appeared at the hotel about two weeks prior asking for a job and was told there was none at the time. When he appeared the day the money was taken, he was again told there was no work but he could do some chore to earn food. It is said he is a runaway headed for California. An attempt was made to locate the suspect by Tfc. Friend but with no apparent results at the time.

Tobacco Officials Discuss "Buttlegging"

Maryland continued its leadership in the fight against illegal cigarette "buttlegging" last week as it hosted the Eastern Regional Meeting of the National Tobacco Tax Association in Baltimore.

"Maryland hosted the very first interstate meeting on cigarette bootlegging, when I called the various states together in 1966. Unfortunately, 'buttlegging' remains a major problem for State Tax Administrators, and that is why meetings such as the one taking place continue to be important," State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said.

John F. Deinlein, of the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Enforcement Unit of the Maryland State Comptroller's Office and Regional Governor of the National Tobacco Tax Association, noted that agents and tax administrators from throughout the Northeast gathered in Baltimore to catch up on the latest enforcement techniques, exchange information about sources of illegal cigarettes and learn the latest developments about Federal legislation aimed at curbing the illegal buttlegging.

Comptroller Goldstein noted that he and other tax administrators have urged Congress to pass legislation making cigarette bootlegging a Federal crime. "This would provide tremendous aid to the States who are trying to fight this battle on their own, without the vast resources of the Federal government."

Mr. Goldstein predicted that 200,000 packs of "buttlegged" cigarettes would be confiscated in Maryland by the end of Fiscal Year 1978, a substantial increase over the past two years. "Our increased enforcement efforts are proving that the traffic is still flowing along Interstate Route 95, which I call 'buttleg highway.' Many of our stops are along the Washington Beltway, almost within sight of the National Capital."

4-H Camp Will Feature Studies Of Energy July 24-29

The 1978 Maryland 4-H and Youth Conservation Camp has been designed to offer youth 14 through 19 a chance to learn all about energy, its various forms and energy resources.

The camp will be held at the Western Maryland 4-H center on the shore of Cunningham Lake, south of Bittinger in Garrett County. Youngsters will have a chance to learn about the roles of energy in society and nature, in the natural surroundings of the western Maryland mountains.

Several recreational and nature study activities will be available, and professionals from the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service will staff the camp.

Cost of the camp, from July 24-29, will be $40.

A special feature available will be a day-long canoe trip on the Savage River Reservoir, or a raft trip down the Youghiogheny River. The raft trip, conducted under professional supervision, will cost an additional $20. Space on the raft trip is limited to the first 80 campers who register.

The canoe trip will cost an extra $5.

All young people interested in the 1978 Maryland 4-H and Youth Conservation Camp should contact the local Extension office, to obtain an application blank. Applicants should indicate whether they would like the canoe or raft trip.

One Millionth State Income Tax Refund Check Mailed

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced late last week that the one millionth State income tax refund check has been mailed and offered advice to those taxpayers who have not yet received their refund checks.

The average check today is $170.66, up more than 10 percent from the $154.95 average at this time last year. Approximately 200,000 additional refund checks will be in the mails to taxpayers by May 30th.

"If you are due a Maryland income tax refund and have not received your check by June 1st, you should send a copy of your Maryland income tax return to the Income Tax Division, Annapolis, Maryland 21401," Comptroller Goldstein said. "By sending a copy of your State tax return just after June 1st, as many as three or four days can be saved in processing your refund check.

"When our office receives a copy of your return, it automatically triggers a search for your original tax return. In most cases we find that, if a refund check has not been issued by May 30th, it is because the original Maryland income tax return was not received here in Annapolis," Mr. Goldstein said.

Since the State's computers will not process two identical income tax returns from the same taxpayer, the first return to complete the processing cycle will cause a refund check to be issued, and no delays will result.

Currently, $172,872,602 has been refunded to Maryland income taxpayers, almost $20 million more than at this time last year.

by jim willis

Your pet's skin is a sensitive organ that performs numerous functions important for its survival. Like any organ, it is susceptible to injury — cut, infection, and sometimes troublesome tumors.

A tumor is usually defined as an uncontrolled growth of tissue. Tumors can be benign or malignant. A benign tumor is usually slow-growing, round or oval in shape and generally does not interfere with the functioning of the pet's vital organs. In contrast, a malignant tumor often grows rapidly and destroys normal tissue. Cells from a malignant tumor can break off and travel through the bloodstream to other parts of the body.

The most common form of benign skin tumors in dogs are warts. Generally seen in older dogs, warts can appear singly or in groups. Warts pose no threat to the pet unless they are irritated by friction from a collar, the floor or other hard surface. In such cases, your veterinarian may recommend surgical removal of the wart so it does not become infected.

Of course, not all skin tumors appear as warts. Some tumors resemble festering sores or small growths under the skin that you feel rather than see. The tumor may be a firm, enclosed mass shifting under the pressure of your fingers or an inflamed fluid-filled cyst.

In female dogs, what appears to be a skin tumor on the underside of the body can be a breast tumor and should be examined by a veterinarian. As with other tumors in dogs, most are benign and can be readily removed.

The treatment recommended for skin tumors is not always surgery. Sometimes X-ray treatment is effective; often specific types of tumors disappear spontaneously over one to three months. But only your veterinarian should select the proper treatment.

Skin tumors are more serious when they occur in cats. In more than 50 percent of the cases, these tumors are malignant and should be surgically removed. Certain breeds seem especially prone to ulcerating growths along the tips of the ears — possibly as a result of too much sun.

Generally, there is no sure way for the average pet owner to distinguish a benign tumor from a malignant one. In fact, veterinary research has not identified all possible causes for tumors in pets. Viruses seem to be primary agents but parasites, bodily injury or exposure to certain chemicals also contribute to tumor growth. Any lump or growth on or under the skin is potentially serious. It's important to consult your veterinarian for diagnosis and treatment at the first sign of an unusual growth.

TAX TIP IF YOU SELL FOR A PROFIT

Normally, taxpayers who sell their home for a substantial profit face a heavy tax load, but this burden can be avoided. If you buy another home that costs as much or more than the sales price of the old one, within a specified time, the profit from the sale is not included in your taxable income.

The second home must be bought and occupied within a period ending 18 months after the sale. (This is a new change, previous time period was one year). A 2-year period is permitted when building a new home. This tax deferment applies only to the sale of a home which is the family's main residence. When figuring the amount of gain for which tax may be postponed you may deduct for "fix-up" expenses if they were accomplished within 90 days prior to the sale, and paid for no later than 30 days after the sale. Check with your accountant or the IRS on details if this matter affects you. It could be well worth your while.

SHA's Safety Efforts Paying Off

Maryland has one of the best highway safety records in the country.

In 1976, the most recent year for which the statistics are available, only the District of Columbia and three states, Connecticut, New Jersey, and Rhode Island, had lower accident death rates per 100 million miles of vehicle travel. The total number killed on Maryland highways has declined annually over the past four years, from 822 in 1973 to 669 in 1977.

Enforcement of the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit is generally credited with the decline of traffic deaths. But in every fatal accident, the driver, the vehicle, and the road play a part. During the past five years, the State Highway Administration has been engaged in an intensive effort to make Maryland roads safer.

"The efficiency of a highway is measured by its safety," says State Highway Administrator M. S. Caltrider. Just about every highway improvement the SHA now makes could be termed a safety improvement.

Much of the work underway or scheduled for the near future is a result of a policy adopted in 1973. A section of road to be resurfaced is examined to determine what other measures should be taken at the same time to make it safer.

Cable and wood post guardrail, which ripped tires and damaged vehicles, is being replaced. Eliminating the spearing effect of the old type, the new metal guardrail has depressed ends facing traffic and nudges vehicles back on the road. Drainage structures are made flush with the surrounding area. A lane may be added at an intersection.

Simply resurfacing a road and making it smoother may actually increase the number of accidents. Smooth roads encourage motorists to drive faster, and excessive speed is a leading cause of accidents.

In addition to this routine upgrading of roads, the SHA is eliminating the hazards at "High Accident Locations." These are spots at which the accident rate per 100 million miles of vehicle travel exceeds that for similar spots in Maryland over a three year period.

For each High Accident Location, the SHA seeks the answers to these questions:

Why is the accident rate high?

What can be done to lower it?

When, in relation to other improvements, should the work be done?

After completion, has the improvement been effective in lowering the accident rate?

In identifying High Accident Locations, the SHA relies on the Automated Accident Reporting System developed by the Maryland State Police in cooperation with other safety-oriented agencies.

Investigating officers note on a standard form the exact spot at which every accident occurs. They use a location system, developed by the Bureau of Accident Studies, which is based on the distance ("log mile") of the spot from a known point, such as an intersection or bridge.

Also recorded are road conditions, weather, time of day, and type of object involved (other vehicle, pedestrian, fixed object). The nature of the accident (head-on collision, side-swipe, car leaving highway); the type of control (pavement marking, traffic light, sign, etc.); and the condition of the driver (normal, ill, asleep, "had been drinking") are noted.

All this data is fed into a computer. A printout enables the SHA Bureau of Accident Studies to pinpoint High Accident Locations and High Accident Intersections along with the circumstances of each accident.

On the basis of this data, traffic engineers analyze each spot and decide what improvements should be made. It may be a left turn bay at an intersection, flattening or widening of pavement, illumination, or fencing.

This does not mean that the SHA must wait for three years to correct an obvious hazard. Traffic lights, stop signs, and other minor controls are installed as their need becomes evident.

The corrective measure for accidents in which a single vehicle strikes a fixed object may be more complex. Of the 375 fatal accidents recorded for 1976 on State-maintained roads, 118 involved fixed objects. Poles and trees or shrubbery were the objects most frequently hit.

Most utility poles are on highway rights of way, and the State has no legal authority to remove them. Although the SHA can remove trees from its right of way, it cannot force citizens to cut down those on their property, regardless of how close they are to the highway.

Still, the SHA has been successful in reducing the severity of single car accidents by installing metal guardrails and placing sand-filled plastic barrels in front of embankments, walls, bridge parapets, and other stationary objects. The barrels absorb the impact of the errant vehicle.

In addition, the SHA has adopted the use of "breakaway" poles for signs and lights bordering the highway. When struck by a speeding vehicle, the posts yield and swing out of the way, reducing the likelihood of injury or death.

Following the decision on the type of improvement to be installed at a High Accident Location, a priority is assigned for the implementation of the project. The priority is based on an analysis by computer of the cost effectiveness, that is, the cost of the improvement in relation to the benefits to be derived (the "cost" of the accidents it would prevent). This index figure is taken from a table based on nationwide experience. Accidents resulting in fatalities have the highest "cost," followed by injury and property damage accidents.

In determining the priority of the proposed improvement, its cost effectiveness is compared with that of the many other proposed projects.

As one of the most cost-effective types of highway improvement, the comparatively inexpensive process of marking edges and centers of pavement is assigned a high priority.

Although an expensive undertaking, adding lanes at a High Accident Location on a heavily traveled road might also be given an early priority. It may be recommended to prevent head-on collisions, which are often fatal and therefore rated high on the "accident cost" scale.

In addition to the cost effectiveness as determined by use of the computer, recommendations from citizens and experienced District SHA engineering personnel are considered in determining priority.

Improvements are listed in the Comprehensive Work Schedule of the Traffic Division's Special Projects.

After an improvement has been made at a High Accident Location, the SHA monitors accident reports to see whether the rate drops.

Sarbanes Urges Continued Service Of Shenandoah

Senator Paul Sarbanes late last week urged that service be continued on both the Blue Ridge and Shenandoah passenger trains, trains which the Secretary of Transportation has recommended be terminated by 1980.

In a letter to Brock Adams, Secretary of Transportation, Sarbanes said, "These trains provide vitally important transportation to areas heavily dependent on rail passenger service." He cited efforts by the State of Maryland to improve commuter train service to Western Maryland and told the Secretary that such trains as the Blue Ridge "provide a much needed additional long distance service between the eastern panhandle of West Virginia and the nation's capital. The extensive use of this train indicates clearly that it should be retained."

Sarbanes also expressed concern at the termination of The Shenandoah, which provides service in Cumberland and Oakland. Emphasizing that The Shenandoah "has never been given a fair test," Sarbanes urged the Secretary of Transportation to continue service on this train until such time as a fair test of ridership potential has been completed.

"I have always been a strong supporter of rail passenger service," Senator Sarbanes said.

Gary Yoder — Winging His Way to Fame...

by Jim Willis

WILL THE REAL SPARROW HAWK PLEASE STAND UP — It may be difficult to tell, but the one on the left is the real Sparrow Hawk. Gary is nursing the injured bird back to health before releasing it. On the right is Gary's carving of a Sparrow Hawk. The carving was his first entry in the professional category of the Salisbury show and earned an impressive first place and third best in show. The bird was carved from eight different pieces of basswood, then twelve individual tail feathers were carved and inserted into the body.

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST — Gary's carving of a Peregrine Falcon and its prey exemplifies Darwin's theory. The carving was done in 1976 while Gary was still exhibiting in the amateur class. Even then he was an award winner and earned a first place in the miniature category and second best in show.

God's eye may be on the sparrow, but Gary Yoder, 19 of Grantsville has his eye on the Sparrow Hawk. Gary is a son of Olen and Viola Yoder and has been carving birds since he was eleven years old and in recent years has won national acclaim for his work.

Many of his carvings take as long as a month to complete. Gary becomes so involved in his work that he's been known to spend 14 hours a day on one bird although he usually works on several birds simultaneously.

The carvings begin as detailed sketches and then a rough form is sawed from high quality basswood. Gary then begins carving the three dimensional outline of the bird.

The bird's head is usually constructed from another piece of wood so that it can be turned to the appropriate angle on the body piece. After suggesting the feathering with his knife, Gary spends hours meticulously burning the barbs of each individual feather into the wood.

Once the burning is completed the most tedious work begins; Gary must paint each feather with subtle colors of acrylic paint. The painting technique is recognized as being the most difficult step in producing a life-like carving.

To finish the bird, Gary adds realistic glass eyes and then constructs feet from wire, lead solder and epoxy resin which is then painted. The finished product is mounted on driftwood or other appropriate displays.

Gary has in previous years entered his work in the miniature division of bird-carving competitions. He was required to progress through the novice and amateur classes, but he recently began to exhibit in the professional category.

Gary placed first in the professional prey bird category in the World Championship Wildfowl Wood Carving contest held in Salisbury, Maryland, April 22 and 23. His carving, a life-size Sparrow Hawk, also took the third Best in Show prize among all professional life-size carvings.

The Salisbury show's professional category is considered to include the premier bird carvers in the United States and Canada. Competing against Yoder was William Schultz who had carved the 1977 World Championship carving and had earlier won the National Championship held in New York this March. Gary's Sparrow Hawk had finished third in the National show. He noted that he had "toned down the size of the feet" after bringing the carving back from New York, and that it was probably that change which enabled him to finish ahead of Schultz's piece in the International Show.

According to Glen Smart, one of the judges of the contest, Yoder's carving was one of the best Sparrow Hawks ever exhibited in Salisbury. He noted that "it had many subtle characteristics which made the bird grow on you the more it was studied."

Gary demonstrates carving and exhibits some of his work at Penn Alps in Grantsville during the summer months. He stated that he is presently negotiating with a museum in Denver, Colorado, and a private collector in New York to sell the Sparrow Hawk carving. He did not comment on any possible prices, but from talking with him I found that his prices were extremely reasonable. That, coupled with the fact that Gary is well on his way to becoming the world's finest bird-carver, could account for a three-year waiting list for his birds.

Gary's carvings had previously won in the Salisbury show, but they had all been in the miniature classes. In 1977, one of his carvings had taken a Best in Show among the miniatures. He stated that "the life size professional category offered the best competition in the world and my ambition has always been to compete successfully in that class."

Gary, who is confined to a wheelchair or crutches because of polio, assiduously studies live birds, stuffed birds, painting and photographs of birds. He prefers observing live birds at his backyard feeder. Each bird is unique — a peculiar man- carefully noted before a carving begins.

He had a living model for his Sparrow Hawk carving, an injured male that is being nursed back to recovery before being released. Gary is known for his patience and understanding with birds and he is primarily interested in the birds of prey. Often he has rescued injured birds and successfully returned them to health and freedom.

It was enjoyable spending several hours with Gary, learning the different techniques of his art. His patience, intelligence and talent are impressive....I couldn't help remembering something from Jonathan Livingston Seagull; in essence the author wrote, "some of us crawl, many walk and a few of us fly"....Gary Yoder soars.

JUST WADING AROUND — This miniature carving of a Heron is so lifelike you almost expect it to spear a fish out of the air. The bird is one of Gary Yoder's earlier carvings and was awarded a first place and third best in show in the Novice class of the 1973 Salisbury show. Gary values his earlier carvings because, in comparison to his later work, they are prime examples of the strides he has made in his art.

LESSER SANDPIPERS — The only thing "less' about these sandpipers is the fact that the one on the right lacks a leg. The carving is in the final stages of completion and Gary will be finishing the legs and feet with wire, lead solder and epoxy resin. This carving is a prime example of Gary's realistic painting technique that has drawn praise from judges. His Lesser Sandpipers seem destined for fame and recognition upon completion.

LETTING THE CHIPS FALL WHERE THEY MAY — Gary Yoder, 19, of Grantsville, sends the woodchips flying as he carefully carves the body section of a future masterpiece. Gary has been carving birds for eight years and has quite a collection of ribbons and awards for his work.

WATCH THE BIRDIE — When a carving is this realistic it pays to watch it carefully, you never know when it may take off. The carving is of a Sparrow Hawk done by Gary Yoder several years ago, and although it is life-like, compare it to the carving above, also of a Sparrow Hawk. Gary has made tremendous advances in his art and now uses difficult woodburning methods and "feather inserting" techniques.

FROM START TO FINISH — Amid the clutter of the artist's workbench, several bird carvings begin to take shape. Gary spends as long as a month on one bird, sometimes working 14 hours a day. He generally works on several birds simultaneously and the different steps of a carving are displayed on his workbench. From left to right they are: a rough outline of the bird is sawed from basswood; the body and head shapes are then carved separately; the head section is glued into place and the outlines of the primary feathers are carved; with a woodburning tool, Gary etches the shape of each feather and the individual barbs of the feather; the tedious process of painting the carving realistically begins; finally the feet and legs are constructed and the carving is mounted on a base.

PRESERVING A SPECIES — It's sad to realize that carvings like these of endangered birds may be the only examples our children will have of certain species. This Heron is another of Gary's earlier carvings and it won a first in category and second best in show at a Salisbury exhibit.

New Concept Is Added To Social Security Program

Recent legislation added a new concept — the year of retirement — to the Social Security program which will be important to workers who are now retiring and who will do so in the future, James E. Robertson, Social Security District Manager in Cumberland, said last week.

This new concept comes as part of the changes made in the annual test of earnings, the measure used to decide if a person receiving social security benefits can continue to get them while working, Mr. Robertson continued.

The new test provides that, except in the year of retirement, a person's social security benefit will be reduced $1 for each $2 of earnings above the annual limit. The 1978 annual limit is $4,000 for people 65 and over, and $3,240 for people under 65.

Because it would be unfair to workers retiring in the middle of the year to apply only the annual test of earnings, the year of retirement was adopted, Mr. Robertson said.

The year of retirement is the first year during which there is a month the person is both eligible for monthly benefits and neither earns more than the monthly limit in wages nor performs substantial services in self-employment. The 1978 monthly limit is $334 for people 65 and over, and $270 for people under 65.

During the year of retirement, a person can receive benefits based on the monthly measure, Mr. Robertson stated. After the year of retirement, benefit payments will be based only on annual earnings.

Those interested can get more information about the annual earnings test, or any other Social Security program, at the Cumberland Social Security Office, located at 316 Paca Street. The office is open Monday through Friday, except National Holidays, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., and the telephone number is 724-0970.

Bible Film Slated

The public is urged to attend. There is no charge for admission, but a freewill offering will be received.

Mathias Says Electric Utilities Should Give Immediate Rebates

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) this week said Western Marylanders should receive immediate rebates with interest if they were overcharged by electric utilities during last winter's coal strike.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission yesterday in a preliminary report of wholesale power transactions during the period said that some utilities may have collected revenues "in excess of a just and reasonable rate."

Last March Mathias called for the special audit of the way utilities purchased power from electric interconnections during the midwinter energy crisis which caused soaring electric bills in many communities.

The Commission said it plans to expand its investigation.

"I welcome and fully support the FERC's decision to widen the investigation," Mathias said. "The facts developed so far appear to indicate that we need a full field investigation into the power transactions. We also need recommendations for establishing an early warning system to avoid a recurrence of the kind of crisis which hit many Western Maryland families in the dead of winter."

In an order authorizing the follow-up investigation, FERC Secretary Kenneth F. Plumb said the audit will determine whether:

1. extraordinary operating and billing practices that occurred during the strike were proper and in the public interest.
2. the selling, purchasing and transmitting utilities used appropriate filed rate schedules in rendering service.
3. the companies properly used their filed and effective fuel adjustment clauses to bill costs related to the transactions.

Comptroller Says That Construction Is Growing In Maryland

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein told the Maryland Associated Builders' and Contractors' convention meeting in Hershey, Pennsylvania, on May 12 that the State is committed to spending millions of dollars on construction projects in the coming fiscal year, continuing many projects such as the Washington area Metro System, the Baltimore Subway and Convention Center, improvements to the Baltimore and Washington Beltways, Baltimore-Washington International Airport and the Port of Baltimore.

The Comptroller also announced a State General Obligation Bond Sale for June 21, 1978 when $115,350,000 in bonds will be sold by competitive bids to finance school construction, water and sewer projects, general State construction and the third payment on the Baltimore Convention Center.

"The 1978 session of the Maryland General Assembly approved $190.9 million in bond bills, which are awaiting action by Acting Governor Lee. In addition, the Maryland Department of Transportation will be spending approximately $220 million on various construction projects during Fiscal Year 1979," Mr. Goldstein told the builders.

The State Comptroller also told the group that one billion, fifty-three million dollars in State public school construction contracts have been approved since the program began in 1971.

"These are just some of the ways Maryland is building today to meet the needs of tomorrow," Mr. Goldstein said. "But there is another benefit. The jobs created when you are busy turn 'tax-eaters' into 'taxpayers.' The money generated through your activities ripples throughout our State's economy."

The State Comptroller noted that private sector construction is an equally important contributor to Maryland's economic future. He pointed to a record increase in housing starts during March and a resurgence in construction in the Washington, D. C. area, noting that a recent national survey determined that to be the second most desirable location in America in which to open a business.

Comptroller Goldstein predicted a healthy economic future for Maryland because the State offers two attractions necessary for life and commercial activity, energy and water. "From the Mettiki coal mine in Garrett County to the Calvert Cliffs nuclear power plant and the Columbia liquified natural gas facility in Calvert County, Maryland has future sources of energy," he said.

Mr. Goldstein noted that Robert E. Kirby, Chairman of the Board of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation which is a major private employer in Maryland, has predicted that employment at Westinghouse facilities in the State would increase at a rate of 500 - 1,000 jobs per year for the near future.

"This is one example of private industry making a substantial contribution here in Maryland, so perhaps the outlook isn't as bleak as we have been led to believe," Mr. Goldstein said.

Graduates Honored By Church Group

The gift table was decorated with blue and gold. A large sheet cake was used as the centerpiece, and was a gift from the church. Decorations were in charge of Mrs. Zeola Robeson.

the ROCKPILE

by Cathy Helbig

An honest-to-goodness medicine man could be found in Oakland in 1908 as mentioned in this news item: "If you are sick or afflicted you should drop in and see the medicine man at his office in the Opera House building from 9 a.m. till 4 p.m. all this week. Consultation is free and they say he knows his business."

"Last Saturday night a gang of drunks congregated in one of the saloons of Oakland where trouble was started. Later the proprietor of the place fired them and they then met on the tracks of the Baltimore & Ohio Rail-Road Co. near the water station where the trouble was renewed and a free-for-all fight ensued in which ballast was used in lieu of more effective weapons. The noise became so great that passersby on Oak Street noticed it and Sheriff Brown was notified. He hurriedly dressed and went to the track where he succeeded in arresting four of the dozen or more men engaged in the conflict, the rest departing by various ways, some swimming the Little Yough, others by wading through the slimy waters of the dead pond and yet others by sprinting eastward up the railway track.

The four men arrested were given a trial by Justice Gonder, three of them being fined and one discharged. The men hailed from Mt. Lake Park, Swanton and Terra Alta, the majority of them being employed by the B&O."

Almost 70 years ago, May 28, 1908, the Court House was under construction, as it is now; "Work on the new Court House in Oakland has been greatly delayed this week owing to the non-arrival of a car of stone which must be placed in the walls of the building before further brick laying can be done. The stone is expected here every day, having been shipped a month ago from the quarries in Indiana."

1908 brought some recognition to one Postal Worker in Grantsville; "As mailcarrier to Grantsville, Frank Plaff is 3 years old, and some friends who understand multiplication figured out the other day that he has in that time traveled 25,850 miles, or several miles more than around the world at its biggest circumference."

This was the year of an abrupt occupational change for an Oakland clerk after an encounter with a "special" customer; "A young lady of this city went into a dry goods store the other day and blushingly asked the head clerk if he had any of those elastic bands capable of being elongated and adjusted at pleasure, and used by the feminine portion of mankind for putting around the lower extremities of their locomotive members to keep in the proper position and the required altitude halilaments of their tibias.'

The clerk is now on a sheep ranch."

Seven Die On State Highways

Seven persons lost their lives on Maryland Highways according to the weekly news release compiled by 2nd Lt. M. I. Morgan of the Maryland State Police. Of those killed, four were drivers, two were passengers and one was a pedestrian.

Persons killed through May 14, 1977 totaled 220; 200 lost their lives in the same months in 1978.

Task Force To Check Guidance And Counseling

Are students in Maryland schools getting the kinds of guidance and counseling they need?

The State Board of Education suspects not. It has appointed a 21-member task force headed by Albertine T. Lancaster, state board member from St. Mary's County, to look into the matter.

"At this early stage in our work," said Mrs. Lancaster, "I think we need to focus on the needs of students and the role of the counselor. Does he or she serve all students through all grades? Is the counselor's professional time diluted by too many non-professional assignments? Are counseling services available to all children equally?"

Mrs. Lancaster said this task force will also probably want to examine the general competency of counselors. "Can counselors serve students' needs for skills in self-management, interpersonal relations, and decision making? Are they as well equipped to provide career advice to the job-bound high school graduate as they are the college-bound? Can they help classroom teachers to whom students often come for counseling?"

"And finally we need to find out whether schools can reach out to community resources to supplement the services of the counselor," Mrs. Lancaster said.

The state board member said that special training opportunities for counselors may be recommended if they are found to need new skills.

The task force is scheduled to report to the Board before the end of 1978.

THE WHEELS OF MAN.

This is a moped. It's called a Puch (which rhymes with book).

And, if the guy who invented the wheel could see it we think he'd be mighty proud of what Puch's done with his handiwork.

The Puch has pedals like a bicycle and a motor like your motorboat. Which means it can whip you around town in great style without worrying about things like being out of breath, or cardiac arrest.

Remember the sports car you had? It's that kind of fun.

The upkeep is low. And if you ride it 1500 miles next year your fuel bill will be about $15!

Come on in, ride one, and see for yourself: it's been a long time since this much fun made this much sense.

Tilt, Wobble, Orbital Changes

Milankovitch's theory concerning the astronomical causes of glaciation involves changes in the tilt of the earth's axis, the wobble of the earth's axis and the earth's orbit. These changes combine to cause variations in the amount of energy received on earth from the sun. When the energy received is less than average, glaciation occurs as the ice and snow build up because they do not completely melt during the summer. The theory has been substantiated ecologically by paleontological studies of ocean-bed cores, and by examination of sea shells containing a heavy isotope of oxygen.

Police To Unveil Operation CARE

State Police and Highway Patrols from Maine to Florida have joined together in a unified effort to save lives and energy.

Called "Operation Care" which stands for combined accident reduction effort, state enforcement officers will be paying special attention to speeders and other traffic law violators on Interstate 95 and other selected routes this summer.

Police officers will concentrate their efforts during the three major summer holiday weekends when statistics show that an unusually large number of motorists will be killed and injured in traffic accidents.

This first coordinated East Coast enforcement effort will be conducted during the long Memorial Day weekend and has drawn the support of both the U. S. Department of Transportation and the U. S. Department of Energy.

Studies have shown that where motorists obey the 55 mph speed limit there are fewer fatal accidents and there is the greatest energy savings. Although the National Maximum 55 mph Speed Limit was enacted in 1974 as an energy conservation measure, it has also resulted in the dramatic saving of lives on the nation's highways.

Along with increased enforcement, the State Police and Highway Patrol agencies will be taking their message to the public through the use of the mass media. With the assistance of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, enforcement officers from Maine to Florida gathered in Baltimore on May 10, to produce a series of television and radio announcements.

These media materials will be duplicated and distributed throughout the entire East Coast in an effort to gain the voluntary cooperation of the motoring public.

According to Maryland State Police Superintendent Thomas S. Smith, who is heading this multi-state campaign, "We hope we don't have to issue a lot of traffic tickets to get people to slow down and obey the law. We want people to understand the benefits of driving within the speed limit. Besides saving lives and energy, it will save them from getting a ticket."

An East Coast trend during the past few years has been the increasing number of out-of-state motorists who are being nabbed for speeding. In Maryland, for example, 31 percent of the speeders who were cited by State Police in 1974 were out-of-state drivers. This figure climbed to almost 40 percent last year.

These long distance drivers are creating a speed control problem by letting their speeds creep well above the 55 mph limit. Traffic officials observe that these violators tend to attract a following cluster of vehicles as they drive down the highway.

Police officers hope that "Operation Care" will make these target offenders more responsible in their driving and thus set a better pace for others to follow.

The idea for this special enforcement and public information program was developed by the Maryland State Police following a traffic safety education workshop in Washington, D. C. in January 1978. At that meeting, a presentation on a New England enforcement effort sparked the imagination of a Maryland participant to explore the possibility of a Maine to Florida cooperative campaign.

Colonel Thomas S. Smith hosted a day-long feasibility meeting the following month in Washington, where regional representatives from the East Coast joined together to develop the unified concept. Regional meetings were held during March and April and a special public information materials development session was conducted in Raleigh, North Carolina.

Saddle Tramp 4-H Club To Travel To Williamsport

The Saddle Tramps 4-H Club is sponsoring a Quarter Horse Judging trip to kick off the spring season of Equine events. The group will leave Mrs. Joanna Harvey's residence on the Glendale Road near Deep Creek Lake on Saturday, May 20, at 6:30 a.m. The group will travel via a car caravan to Williamsport where they will evaluate one class of Quarter Horses at Steve Hockenberry's. The 4-H'ers will eat lunch and proceed to Billy Coleman's where participants will have an opportunity to judge a class of Quarter Horse Mares and a set of Geldings. The group will arrive back in Garrett County at approximately 8:00 p.m.

Extension agent, Lawrence Little said this is a "once-in-a-life-time opportunity to see some of the finest Quarter Horses in Maryland."

Interested persons should call Mrs. Jean Wright at 387-6370 to arrange transportation. Persons who would like to drive and would have room for additional youth to accompany them are also urged to contact Mrs. Wright or the Extension Office at 334-2145.

FARM & HOME SAFETY

PREPARED BY SAFETY SPECIALISTS — AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT — UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND COLLEGE PARK, MD 20742

Look At It This Way — It's A Cutting Machine

This is the time of year hospitals all across the nation begin setting up special wards to handle the high number of special accident cases that occur this time of year every year.

What kind of accidents? Accidents involving lawn mowers.

The U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that more than 50,000 injuries serious enough to be treated in hospital emergency rooms are suffered each year by individuals in accidents involving power lawn mowers.

Some of the major contributing factors include carelessness and unsafe work habits.

Especially susceptible to injury are the operators who mow their lawns when tired, upset or in a hurry. By following the recommendations below, you will be less likely to become one of the above statistics.

Before Beginning to Mow

1. Clear the yard of stones and other debris.
2. Put on sturdy shoes and close-fitting slacks.
3. Check to be sure the grass is not wet.
4. Be sure everyone is clear of the area.
5. Always start the mower outdoors.

While Mowing

1. Never adjust or leave the machine without stopping the mower and disconnecting the spark plug wire.
2. Always watch your footing.
3. Steer hand mowers across slopes.
4. Riding mowers should be driven up and down slopes, and not across, for stability.
5. Keep the mower flat on the ground; never lift, tilt, or pull it towards yourself.
6. Keep children and pets at a safe distance, don't let them sneak up behind you.
7. Don't fuel the mower while it's hot.

New Program To Help Provide Care For Mentally Handicapped

The Maryland Mental Retardation Administration is now making available home care services especially for mentally handicapped persons of Garrett County. Better known as respite care, the new program will provide short term in-home care when families must be away from home.

Statistics show that one out of ten families has a physically handicapped, mentally retarded, or otherwise disabled family member. A problem faced by many families is the lack of respite care, competent and empathetic care for disabled individuals, while family members are away. Home care services hopes to help alleviate this situation within Garrett County.

Persons in Garrett County who wish to become caregivers in this program are invited to attend a training workshop on June 3 at the Garrett Community College — Oakland Center. Professionals in the Health Field will be prestent to talk about the care and the needs of the handicapped. At the completion of the program, applications will be provided to those who wish to become caregivers. There will be the opportunity to talk with the program coordinator, in an individual interview to be scheduled shortly after the all-day workshop.

Families with mentally handicapped family members may obtain the services of a caregiver by contacting New Directions Center at 689-8879. The cost for service is based on an hourly rate of $1.50, however, the Mental Retardation Administration has made financial assistance available to families based upon family income.

Homemakers Plan Mini-Fair May 25

The Garrett County Homemakers will sponsor a Mini-Fair May 25 at the McHenry Fire Hall from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., with a wide variety of goods on display as well as on sale.

By
Maryland—Sixth District

This regular column serves as another vehicle to keep in touch with the citizens of Central and Western Maryland. You may send your questions to me, in care of the U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515. While space is obviously limited for printing all replies, I will answer each of you who writes. The following questions are typical of those asked of me in recent weeks:

What is your reaction to the Department of Transportation proposal to eliminate Amtrak passenger service in western Maryland?

I am strongly opposed to the Transportation Department's recommendation that Amtrak service be eliminated through Brunswick, Cumberland and Oakland. The cutback can only aggravate the fragile economic development of Western Maryland; discourage industry from locating to our area; and further hamper efforts to relieve chronic unemployment. Abolishment of the Washington Cincinnati route also isolates many individuals who have no access to other means of travel. In short, the DOT proposal can only hurt Western Maryland. The train, however, cannot be dropped without congressional approval and I will join Congressman Harley Staggers in vigorously fighting any plan to eliminate the Shenandoah line passenger service. This looks like the same old DOT proposal that has been defeated before and we will make every effort to defeat it again.

What Legislative measures have you supported to reduce unemployment?

Last year I co-sponsored the Local Public Works Employment Act which has created nearly one million new jobs and will leave a legacy of improved public facilities, such as sewers, courthouses, fire stations, streets and sidewalks. Governments in Western Maryland, including Garrett, Allegany and Washington Counties—as well as the Towns of Cumberland, Westernport, Clear Spring and Williamsport—received more than $8 million from this program. I have also supported special anti-recession fiscal assistance payments to local governments in areas of high unemployment. This has helped many communities in Western Maryland avoid increased taxes and layoffs of public employees. Finally, I have voted for other employment programs to provide job training and job experiences to the unemployed.

Where can I find out about surplus government property?

Citizens interesed in finding out more about surplus government property—types of items for sale, where and how they are sold—should order a copy of the free government publication "Buying Government Surplus Personal Property". The leaflet is available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

How do you feel about the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission decision to examine the Emergency Purchases of Power during the coal strike?

It is quite properly a matter of federal jurisdiction to conduct such a review and we have an obligation to citizens to ensure that the public interest is protected when such large amounts of electricity are exchanged. Utilities dependent on coal were forced to make extensive purchases of electricity from other power systems in order to avoid curtailing service to customers and the regulatory structure of States—such as Maryland—permitting the pass through of these increased purchasing costs to consumers. Testifying before a congressional subcommittee last week I cited the staggering fuel bills experienced by citizens in Central and Western Maryland noting that many of the bills exceeded $500 for a two-month usage period in short, the procedures governing the wholesale purchase of electricity on an emergency basis should be reviewed to lessen the impact on consumers when such purchases are made.

Straight Talk About Aging

HOW TO FIND A NURSING HOME

By Dr. Matthew Tayback, State Director on Aging

Finding a nursing home that will provide your elderly relative with the services and the atmosphere he or she needs and prefers takes an enormous amount of time—time spent gathering information, gathering information, and then gathering more information.

The effort will be worth it. After all, the home you choose will become not only your loved one's place of residence; it will be his or her community, his or her very world.

Of course, not all older impaired people need the kind of care that nursing homes provide. Other forms of care such as home health care, day care, or sheltered housing may meet the needs of many.

If, though, such programs cannot provide the degree of care your relative requires, discuss the matter with your family's physician. If he concurs, your careful search for the proper facility should begin.

At this point, you should be advised not to wait until your relative's condition becomes so critical that a hasty choice must be made. Adequate planning time must be allowed if you are to avoid the many pitfalls of a rushed decision.

At the outset, your discussions with your physician will have helped you determine what broad category of nursing home your relative will need.

There are two such categories: intermediate care facilities and skilled nursing facilities. Very generally, the former provide their residents with some nursing assistance and with day-to-day supervision. The latter are designed to meet the needs of the more severely disabled patient by providing intensive medical and nursing care—nursing care that includes around-the-clock availability of licensed nurses.

Once you have agreed on the category of home needed, your search must take a more specific focus. It should consist of two major steps. First, make a thorough list of homes that, for one reason or another, appeal to you. Proximity to your own home should be an important factor. You might also wish to consider religious or fraternal affiliation. Your reasons will quite naturally be subjective.

The second step in your search will consist of personal inspection of the "finalists" on your list. But first, let's discuss how to compile that list.

There are a number of sources from which you can draw candidates. Maryland's local health and social services departments are two. The American Homes for the Aged (non-profit, church-sponsored homes) has a registry of its members. So does the Maryland Health Facilities Association, which is composed of proprietary homes. Advertisements, of course, should also be considered. To pare your list to manageable length, you may wish to consult your rabbi, minister or priest.

By all means, consult with your relative. Involving him or her in the process of selection can go a long way toward easing the shock of transition once a home is finally chosen.

It should go without saying that you will not consider a home that is not licensed or certified for Medicare-Medicaid participation. Licenses or certification, while no guarantee of excellence, do at least signify that certain minimum standards are being met in the basic areas of cleanliness, safety, nutrition and in the qualifications of the home's administrator.

Once your original list has been reduced to sensible size, you will be ready to schedule your inspection visits. On them, overlook nothing, not the smallest detail.

First and foremost, look for the intangible, what Dr. Karl Menninger has called "the spirit of the place."

Do the patients seem happy and busy? Does the staff treat them with kindness and respect? Are there opportunities for patient self-expression? Are the residents encouraged to furnish or decorate their own areas with some of their favorite belongings? Are they dressed in neat, clean clothes—or is everyone in anonymous hospital gowns?

Check the physical plant carefully. Ask yourself if you would be comfortable in the surroundings you see.

Food—its lack of quality or variety—is one of the things residents of nursing homes complain about most frequently. Ask to see representative menus. Schedule your visit at mealtime and sample the food yourself. Inspect the kitchen. Is it clean? Are the workers clean?

In any nursing home, a schedule of varied activities is essential to reduce patient's feelings of isolation. Find out precisely what programs are offered and match them to your loved one's likes and dislikes.

The list of things you should examine is almost endless — certainly much too long to be presented fully here. Fortunately, there is a helpful checklist you can order from the State Office on Aging. Write to the Maryland Office on Aging, ATTN.: Mrs. Dorothy Doyle, Rm. 1004, 301 W. Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201.

The checklist is a helpful guide which you can take with you on your visits of prospective homes.

Don't hesitate to use it. Any competent nursing home administrator will welcome your questions. If he doesn't, keep looking.

I feel it's important to repeat one thing: Try to involve your relative in the selection process to as great a degree as possible. He or she might be able to accompany you on your inspectional visits once you have made preliminary eliminations. Or, at the other extreme, your relative may only be able to help select the clothing and other personal articles to be taken along.

Just remember that the greater the role your relative is given to play in these decisions, the more easily he or she will adjust to life in his new home.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear mothers, Pauline N. Paugh and Homa A. Sweitzer, on Mother's Day.
No one knows how much we miss you.
No one knows the bitter pain;
We have suffered since we lost you,
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers, sweetly, tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear Mother, that we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by Harvey and Alberta Sweitzer and family

Young Americans For Freedom Elect

Garrett County Young Americans for Freedom, the conservative political activist youth group, held its annual business meeting in Mt. Lake Park on Tuesday, April 18, with twenty people attending.

Young Americans for Freedom, whose national headquarters is located in Sterling, Virginia, is a nation-wide young people's movement dedicated to the American principles of individual liberty, the free enterprise economic system, and the concept of a limited federal government as prescribed by the U. S. Constitution. The patriotic YAF, which was founded in 1960 under the inspiration of Senator Barry Goldwater, has been active on the local political scene since 1973.

At the annual business meeting, Garrett County YAF decided to renew their charter with the national headquarters and ratified their board of officers for the coming year. Charles Trautwein III of Oakland was chosen to serve as chairman of the group. Elwood Groves of Mt. Lake Park will be executive director and David Trail Wise of Frostburg will serve as secretary.

Garrett County YAF, which is planning to participate in this year's elections, endorsed its first candidate by unanimous resolution to support Dan Devine for the Republican nomination for Governor of Maryland. Devine, who is a professor of political science at the University of Maryland, has served as a YAF leader and advisor since the early 1960's.

The local chapter also resolved to assist interested patriotic youth of Mt. Top Christian Academy to organize a high school YAF chapter at the private Christian school located near Mt. Lake Park.

Garrett County Young Americans for Freedom also voted unanimously to condemn Senator Charles Mathias and Senator Paul Sarbanes for voting in favor of giving away the Panama Canal.

Scouts In Action

Mrs. Schwing Honored

Mrs. Sally Schwing, Accident, who had served as field assistant for the Girl Scouts of Garrett County for three years, was guest of honor at an appreciation dinner at the Deer Park fire hall recently.

Mrs. Schwing had resigned her position after serving for three years. During her term as field assistant, registration increased from 196 members to 450 members.

Many leaders were present to give Mrs. Schwing farewell gifts, cards and wishes from their troops.

Mrs. Deanie Johnson, Oakland, is asking all leaders to return petitions concerning the closing of Camp Tioga to her by Friday, May 19. The petitions will be presented to the Board of Directors of the Shawnee Girl Scout Council Sunday, May 21, by Rodney Johnson.

The Swanton Brownie Troop 111 and Girl Scout Troop 183 participated in the National Nursing Home Week celebration held Monday at the Cappett-Weeks Nursing Home.

After a program and slide show by Linda Haley, Activities Director for the home, the girls visited the patients and decided to start an Adopt-A-Grandparent Program. The girls and their leaders, Deanie Johnson and Beverly Thrasher, also decided to conduct a monthly social tea for the patients in the dining room and they are looking forward to planting pansies near the entrance of the home for the patients to enjoy this summer.

The girls who will be starting on the activities are, Carrie Johnson, Peyton Llewellyn, Chris Teets, Bonnie Lobe, Amy Gonnell, Joy Thrasher, Cindy Edwards, Teresa Livingood, Teresa Helbig, Wendy Johnson, Tammy Friend, Trina Braz, Michele Proudfoot and Robin Johnson.

Four from SHS Cited for High PSAT Scores

Four juniors from Southern High School were recently cited for their scores in the top five percent of all PSAT /Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/ scores. Paul Ammann, Lois Filemyr, Clifford Graham, and Ann Leighton are being considered on the basis of their PSAT scores for recognition in the 1979 National Merit Scholarship Program. Each student can ask that two colleges of his choice be informed of his high scores.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation will announce in the fall how the four students scores compare to other scores in the country. If the student becomes a semi-finalist, he/she will take another test. All of the students will be commended for their high scores.

Paul is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Ammann of Deer Park. Lois is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Filemyr of Mt. Lake Park. Clifford is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Graham, Oakland and Ann is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Leighton, Oakland.

County May Get Municipal Coordinator

A municipal assistance coordinator, who would lend his expertise to helping communities who otherwise couldn't afford a town manager, may become a reality in Garrett County if the mayors of the towns and several federal agencies approve.

Depending upon simultaneous allocation of funds, the coordinator, or MAC, would be a traveling town manager, a kind of circuit rider, serving the seven towns of the county which do not have full-time staffs.

The MAC, according to a spokesman for the Tri-County Council, could be employed to help Accident (population 237); Deer Park (310), Friendsville, (366), Grantsville (517), Kitzmiller (443) and Mt. Lake Park (1,263). Population figures were taken from the 1970 census.

The plan would call for the person hired to maintain an office in Accident, which is centrally located in respect to the other communities.

The MAC would be employed by the Tri-County Council and be under the direct supervision of the TCC executive director insofar as overall guidance is concerned and from the participating communities relative to daily duties.

Primary areas of assistance would be in the areas of grant assistance application, budgeting, coordinating with other agencies and representing the communities at important meetings.

The proposal will be one of the topics discussed at the annual TCC meeting scheduled today and tomorrow at Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

"SAM" Flights Are Rotary Topic

The Grantsville Rotary Club held its Ladies' Night on Wednesday, May 10 at Little Henry's Restaurant in Accident. In charge of the program was Carl T. Resnick, who introduced Major Mike Leonard, a pilot with the 89th Military Airlift Group, located at Andrews AFB, Washington, D. C.

Major Leonard presented a viewing of slides which explained the operational and functional duties of the 89th Military Airlift Group. SAM, as Major Leonard stated, is short for "Special Air Missions" which serves the President of the United States with Air Force One, the Vice President, Congressional and Senatorial members of the government with other varied types of aircraft. Other duties of the unit include the training of pilots and crewmembers from other buses in the Military Airlife command.

Since the formation of the unit in 1948, they have never had an aircraft accident. "This achievement has been accomplished by the constant training and professionalism of the unit," stated Major Leonard.

In concluding the program, Major Leonard presented Carl T. Resnick, owner and operator of Little Henry's Restaurant, with a plaque for previous service with the 89th Military Airlift Wing, as a Flight Steward on VC137 aircraft, from October 1969 to June 1970.

Not Just A Day Off . . .

Memorial Day is a day for a variety of feelings and emotions. Primarily, it is a day of memories or remembrance of those persons who are now gone from this life. Receiving special recognition are those people who sacrificed their lives for the future and the freedom of America. Our recognition should reach back, not just to those who died in the Vietnam, Korean and World conflicts, but all the way back to those who died in the days of the Revolutionary War.

Memorial Day is also a day of thanksgiving. We do not just remember the dead, but we give thanks to them, we honor them, for their supreme efforts in making life so great for us today.

Memorial Day is a day of caring. Even though many persons dear to us have passed on, our caring and our love for them is still just as strong as it was when they were among us. On this day we take a break from the rapid pace of every-day life to visit the cemetery and share some personal moments with those who lie there.

Finally, Memorial Day is a day of hope. As long as people are willing to risk their lives in order to protect and preserve this country and what it stands for, we surely should have great hope for our children and grandchildren.

It is indeed heartwarming to see so many communities, no matter how small, planning Memorial Day ceremonies. It is far more than just a day off from work.

Commissioners Budget $744,128 Federal Revenue Sharing Funds

Garrett County should receive $744,128 as next year's portion of federal revenue sharing funds, according to information divulged at Monday's meeting of the Garrett County Commissioners.

The Board plans to budget most of the funds for capital improvements, aside from $187,000 to the roads department to assist in operating expenses.

Capital projects the Commissioners will fund include $32,000 to the Election Board for new voting machines; $439,000 in federal revenue sharing funds to be applied to the Courthouse project to defray the county's share of construction; $16,000 to the sheriff's department for three replacement vehicles; and $56,000 to the Board of Education.

The amount allocated for the Board of Education would be earmarked for such capital improvements as Northern Middle School, a new school site in Accident, and improvement of the athletic facilities at the two county high schools.

A total of $20,000 would be earmarked for Garrett Community College as the county share of funding for the coal technology building, which is being funded mainly through the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The Commissioners conducted the hearing for general revenue sharing funds for next year's budget Monday, one of a series required by federal law during county budget deliberations.

Commissioners Will Fund Half Of School Board's Requested Increase

Members of the Garrett County Board of Education were told during Monday's meeting with the County Commissioners that only approximately half of the requested increase in local funds for the coming year would be funded by the Commissioners.

The Board had requested an increase in local funds of approximately $900,000 over last year's level of $3.2 million.

The Commissioners advised Herbert Harman, chairman of the Board; Dr. William Buser and Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, from the Board of Education staff, that they intend to increase the school board budget by $400,000 from local funds, supplemented by an additional $56,000 from federal revenue sharing funds, provided for capital improvements.

The Commissioners then advised the School Board that with other increases in state aid as well as the local increase of $400,000, all negotiated salary increases could be funded; that Northern Middle School could be opened and that all requested funds for new and replacement textbooks could be supplied.

The Board of Education would have to allocate funds among other priorities in order to achieve necessary budget cuts, advised the Commissioners.

The Board of Education representatives agreed to submit a proposed final budget to the Commissioners at next month's meeting, reflecting final budgeted figures.

In other business Monday, the Commissioners unanimously voted to reappoint Ernest Spoerlein, Mrs. Frances Riley, both of Oakland, and Miss Debora Jo Marrero, Deer Park, to second three-year terms with the Commission on Aging.

Fresh Air Program Seeking Vacation Homes For Children

Garrett County families will once again be participating in the summer Fresh Air program providing vacations for children from inner New York City.

Children will arrive this year July 11 and return to their homes July 28. Additional information may be obtained from Mrs. Oren Bender, Accident.

Host families are again being sought locally for the children who have registered in all five boroughs of New York City. Youngsters range in age from 5 to 12, and up to 16 for those who return to the same family each year. The Fresh Air Fund arranges round-trip transportation and provides liability and medical coverage. Each child is certified in good health before being accepted.

The Fresh Air Fund is a 100-year-old, New York City-based non-profit organization. There are 342 Friendly Towns welcoming children in 12 states. Each summer between 12,000-15,000 children participate, thanks to a young minister, Rev. Willard Parsons, who preached a sermon on the plight of the children in New York in June 1877. His parishioners invited the youngsters into their homes in rural Pennsylvania, and the program has expanded ever since that time.

Trailer Home Is Destroyed by Fire Early Thursday

A trailer home on the Crellin Underwood Road was totally destroyed by fire early Thursday morning.

Oakland firefighters were called to the residence of Billy G. Ashby at about one minute after midnight Thursday morning and found the entire south end of the trailer involved in flames. Mr. and Mrs. Ashby and their four children narrowly escaped from the structure by exiting through a window on the north side.

Firefighters contained the fire in the kitchen, living room and bathroom, however the heat and smoke was so intense that the remainder of the trailer and all its contents were destroyed. Damage was set at several thousand dollars.

Deputy State Fire Marshal, Robert Shimer, was called to the scene and later determined that the fire apparently originated at the furnace.

The Oakland Fire Department responded to the scene with two pumpers and a tanker. Firefighters left the scene at approximately 2:10 a.m. There were no injuries.

Oakland firefighters were called out again on Monday afternoon to the home of Joseph and Lucille Shorb at 723 East Oak Street after a pan of food on the stove overheated and filled the house with smoke. Firefighters remained at the scene for about 15 minutes. There was only minor damage.

Mt. Lake Park Ordered To Pay $74,049 To Sanitary District

The town of Mt. Lake Park has been ordered to pay $74,049 for sewage disposal costs at the Trout Run facility through June 30, 1977 to the Garrett County Sanitary District, Inc.

The decision was rendered Monday in Circuit Court by Judge Fred A. Thayer, who also allocated a rate to be charged by the Sanitary Commission for service from July 1, 1977 until the present time, or until the rate is changed by due process of the Garrett County Sanitary District, Inc. After testimony from Ernst and Ernst, the consulting firm hired by the Sanitary District last year by order of the court, the rate for sewage disposal usage would be $1.7142 per one thousand gallons of water consumption.

Monday's decision come in the wake of debate which has centered on the sewage disposal system since its inception and construction.

At the original hearing June 24, 1977 the Sanitary District alleged that the parties had entered into an agreement for sewage disposal and treatment facilities to be constructed and operated by the Sanitary District for the town of Mt. Lake Park and the town of Loch Lynn Heights.

The charges alleged that pursuant to the agreement, the sewage treatment facilities were constructed and placed into operation; but that the defendant (Mt. Lake) has consistently refused to pay for either its share of the construction costs or the operation of the facilities since its inception.

At the date of the initial hearing June 24, 1977, the plaintiff claimed the sum of $86,462.64.

Dear Sir:

Taxation Without Representation!

The American Revolution was based partly on the subject of taxation without representation. The people did not like to pay taxes and not have a voice in government.

Well, history repeats itself again. This time in the United States Senate. Senators who have been elected and paid to represent their constituents, but who deliberately defy the voice of the public.

The majority of the American people were against the Panama Canal treaties, but that wasn't good enough for the senators. They were placed into office to serve and represent the American people, not to disregard them and go against them. They did it again, as they have done in the past and will probably do so again, with the American people coming out on the short end of the stick.

We were told that the passage of the treaties was a victory for President Carter. What it really was, was a severe and damaging loss for America and the American people.

I hope the voters of this land will remember who the senators are who voted for the treaties and vote them out of office.

Sincerely,
T. L. Stanton

Dear Sir:

This in in reply to a letter in last week's paper by Mr. Rickert wherein he charges that we didn't publish exact salary figures for certain Merit System employees that he mailed us in November of 1977. Of course we didn't, because those figures were outdated. Instead, we used figures in the next higher bracket contained in his statement which we thought would be the correct salary amounts, effective after January 1, 1978. He marked the columns, inserting a statement between "20 cents per hour increase."

I was in Mr. Rickert's office five weeks ago, asking him if the 20 cents per hour increase became effective January 1. I did not then know, and he didn't tell me, that they'd adopted a new salary schedule as of January 1, 1978. Now I've learned just today that a new and higher Merit System schedule is in effect.

The new schedule provides for 20 cents per hour increases starting January 1 and additional 20 cents per hour increases starting July 1 and running until December 31. Twenty-cents per hour increases compounded semi-annually will mount up fast.

After studying the new schedule, we've concluded that the best way to arrive at the true salaries is to request a statement that will show exact salaries of all those listed in our advertisement, from July 1 to January 1, 1979.

We're trying to find out the salaries going into effect on July 1 and future salaries, because we're interested in finding out just where these semi-annual increases are going to lead in future years.

This important question is apt to be in the minds of our thoughtful taxpayers and citizens.

We trust Mr. Rickert will find time to provide the information that we've requested here within the next two weeks.

Clifford Friend,
Accident

Dear Editor,

As an observer of the recent Garrett County Special Olympics, I would like to relate a story of a young handicapped wheelchair bound boy who was caused to suffer a great disappointment through the poor planning of non-handicapped adults. He departed from the already late arriving bus anticipating a rare opportunity to demonstrate his limited athletic abilities.

During the morning events, he wheeled himself or was wheeled about in severe unseasonable weather, to observe and cheer on participants in competition of skills that he himself could not demonstrate. Through lunch, he eagerly looked forward to the indoor afternoon program in which he would be allowed to compete in the wheelchair events. After placing in this sought-after competition, he anxiously awaited being awarded his olympic medal. However, midway through the award's ceremony, the announcement was made that all of the riders on his bus would have to immediately leave due to a time schedule, and that he and the other recipients would be given their medals at another time. While he was being wheeled out of the gym, the officials continued to announce winners in an abrupt and haphazard fashion, and as he was lifted onto the bus, he was overheard to say, "Where is my medal; I won a medal". This young man received an uncertain reply as to whether or not he had won a medal, where the medal was, and when he would receive it.

It is unfortunate to witness the cynicism and frustration dealt to these participants at such an early age due to the insensitivity of those assuming responsibility for the services they failed to deliver.

Concerned observer

Dear Concerned,

Perhaps you shouldn't make such a general, negative judgement after this one particular incident. There are many dedicated persons who work with this program.

Mt. Lake Park

acknowledged liability to the plaintiff but based its defense on the following reasons: that the Sanitary District incurred costs in the construction of the sewerage facilities in excess of the original engineering estimate; that the Sanitary District permitted faulty construction of the sewerage facilities which subsequently increased the operational costs; and that the Sanitary District predicated its allocation for the defendant's share of the costs of construction and operation of the sewerage facilities on an improper statutory rate basis.

Lengthy testimony was given, detailing the construction costs of the sewerage facilities, the operational costs from October 1975, the effective date at which the town began to receive chargeable services, and the apportionment rate for determining the basis of these charges between the towns of Mt. Lake and Loch Lynn.

On June 29, the court ordered, in an interlocutory decree, that the Sanitary District retain the services of a consulting firm to apportion the capital costs and operating expenses of the sewerage facilities.

The recessed hearing was resumed May 5 of this year and after additional lengthy testimony and exhibits, the Judge found that the town knowledgeably continued to accept the services of the Sanitary District without filing breach of contract charges, regardless of the initial cost, the alleged faulty construction and inflated operating costs.

The Judge also decreed that the costs of the case are to be paid by the town of Mt. Lake Park.

The installation of newly-elected officers of the Civic Club of Oakland followed a luncheon at the Will o' the Wisp yesterday. Oakland Youth Injured In Crash On Route 135

A young man from Oakland was placed in the intensive care unit of Sacred Heart Hospital Saturday following a one-car crash on State Route 135 between McCoole and Westernport.

Michael Robert Reams, 18, Route 5, Oakland, suffered leg and abdominal injuries and was first listed in serious condition at the hospital.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Raymond Carl Helmick, Jr., 17, of Route 4, Oakland. Helmick was listed in stable condition at Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser.

State police said the car was traveling westbound at a high rate of speed when it went out of control, struck a guardrail on the right side of the road and wrecked, breaking in half and throwing out both the driver and the passenger.

The accident took place about 1:15 a.m. a mile and a half east of Westernport.

The two were first taken by an ambulance to Potomac Valley and Reams was later transferred to Sacred Heart.

Helmick has been charged by state police with driving while intoxicated or impaired and negligent driving.

Construction Begins On Bloomington Dam

Workmen from the Perini Construction Company, Framingham, Mass., diverted the North Branch of the Potomac River into the outlet tunnel located on the West Virginia side of the Bloomington dam project Monday.

The diversion marked the start of construction of the dam, which will be 296 feet high, 1,640 feet wide at the base and 2,130 feet wide at the top.

It will take 9,875,000 cubic yards of earth and rock fill to build the dam. The earthen material will be transported by conveyors connecting with quarries on the mountain on the West Virginia side, and then by trucks to the base.

Scott Glotfelty Is Scholarship Winner

Scott A. Glotfelty, son of Mrs. Ruth M. Glotfelty, Route 1, Accident, and the late Robert O. Glotfelty, was recently named a Dresser Harbison Foundation Scholarship winner, one of 30 children of Dresser employes to receive the 1978 awards.

Scott, who hopes to pursue a career as a veterinarian, developed an interest in animal welfare from working on his parents' farm. Vice president of the Bittinger 4-H club and representative of the Garrett County 4-H club, he spends his summers judging dairy cattle, poultry and horses on the county judging teams, and served on the Maryland State Horse Judging team. His work for the 4-H club merited him a Citizenship award.

Ranking first in his graduating class of 131 from Northern High School, Scott took active part in speech contests and dramatic events, placing second in the 4-H Voice of Democracy script contest during his senior year. Other school and community activities included managing the school newspaper, playing trombone in the school band, and serving as president of his church's youth group.

Scott was among the 274 sons and daughters of Dresser employes who applied for the 1978 Foundation grants. He plans to use his four-year scholarship to study zoology at the University of Maryland.

His mother is an employe of the New Savage plant of Dresser.

The Foundation's program, launched three years ago, now helps pay college costs for 89 children of Dresser employes with grants to the winners' chosen schools totaling $68,000.

Thirty winners for this year were notified in March by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which selects the awardees on the basis of academic records, leadership and significant extracurricular accomplishments.

The four year scholarships range from $250 to $1,500 per year for each student, depending on the winner's financial need and the cost of attending his or her chosen college.

Byron Bill Would Encourage Industry

Legislation encouraging industry to locate or expand in labor surplus areas has been co-sponsored by Rep. Goodloe Byron. Labor Department definition of such areas means businesses in Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Carroll, Baltimore and Howard Counties would be eligible for special tax incentives under the proposed measure.

"Incentives include an additional 10% investment tax credit, accelerated depreciation allowances, and double deduction of state and local real property taxes applying to newly acquired property to be used for manufacturing purposes," Byron said.

The Sixth District Congressman believes the bill has a "good chance" for passage.

"Keying the tax incentives to pre-defined labor surplus areas means that we can generally target aid toward areas of greatest need," he said.

"For our area it could well mean a beginning to the end of chronic unemployment problems because industry and business would be encouraged to develop and grow in Central and Western Maryland," Byron concluded.

GARRETT COUNTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

This new column is meant to provide communication between the public and Garrett County Memorial Hospital. It is a combined effort by The Republican news staff and the administration of the hospital. Persons having questions and comments, both negative and positive, may send them to The Republican office for publication. Questions concerning specific medical cases will not be accepted because of possible legal consequences.

1. Can just any doctor come into the county and serve on staff at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital?

There are several steps that any physician desiring staff privileges at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital must go through before they are granted. First, the doctor must formally complete a detailed application reporting information including his training and experience, past staff privileges, board certifications and eligibilities as well as privileges desired. In addition, references as to the doctors character and ability are provided and investigated. Once the application is complete then it goes to the Credentials Committee of the Medical Staff (composed of doctors and/or dentists) for their review. From the Credentials Committee a recommendation goes to the Executive Committee of the Medical and Dental staff and finally to the full Medical and Dental staff.

From here the application is reviewed by the Joint Conference Committee of the Board of Governors (3 Board members, 3 physicians and/or dentists) and then finally to the full Board of Governors.

No physician or dentist may practice at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital until they go through this process and get final approval by the full Board of Governors.

2. Is there a Medical Review Board at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital? If so, who serves on it?

There are several review Boards at different levels in the hospital structure.

First, there is a Utilization Review Committee composed of physicians and hospital staff that review routinely patients diagnosis and how they relate to average lengths of stay for that illness. The patients stay at the hospital is evaluated as to the necessity for admission, justification for the number of days admitted and the criteria for discharge.

Second is a Medical and Surgical Review Committee made up of all physicians and dentists that review any case of interest to any member of the staff.

Third, is the Joint Conference Committee of the Board of Governors which has three Board members and three physicians/dentists established as a liaison between the Board of Governors and the Medical and Dental Staff.

3. Is it true that all Bibles have been removed from the rooms at Garrett County Memorial Hospital?

There is no truth to this at all. Every room at the hospital has at least one Bible — some have more. There has never been any discussion or thought to the contrary.

A hike in oil prices has been ruled out this year.

Steel Industry Warning Price Increase Likely

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blaming the federal government for much of the domestic steel industry's financial woes, Big Steel executives are hinting another round of price increases may be on the way.

"This industry is in trouble," U.S. Steel Chairman Edgar B. Speer warned at a Tuesday news briefing preceding the annual conference of the industry's trade association, the American Iron and Steel Institute.

Speer and other executives insisted the Carter administration must raise trigger prices for imports, change tax laws to encourage capital formation and reduce federal spending to fight inflation — rather than blaming inflation on the industry.

In interviews, Inland Steel Chairman Frederick G. Jaicks and National Steel President George A. Stinson singled out rising energy and transportation costs as pressures for a third round of price hikes in 1978.

So far, the industry has raised prices 7 percent in 1978.

"They're up quite a bit," Jaicks said of energy and transportation costs.

"I have heard a lot of talk" throughout the industry that those specific costs are making inadequate the $5.50-a-ton hike implemented in April, Stinson said.

The industry submitted to administration pressure and limited the April hike, but warned the increase would only cover the immediately identifiable costs of the new United Mine Workers contract.

Although Stinson denied the purpose of a new industry-commissioned study of imports also was to justify a new price hike, complaints about the industry's poor profitability and financial health dominated the briefing.

"For a number of years, the steel industry has not achieved sufficient profitability to meet all of the investment demands on it," said Republic Steel President William J. De Lancey.

"To a considerable extent, this state of affairs is attributable to federal policies and regulations," he said.

Armco President Harry Holiday said studies have shown the United States needs an additional 30 million tons of raw-steel capacity by 1985 at a cost of $18 billion.

But Armco Chairman C.W. Verity Jr. said: "I can't bring myself to predict the kinds of conditions which will make possible the building of greenfield (new) steelmaking plants in this country anytime soon."

Discussing the imports study, Stinson said the original trigger prices to prevent dumping of foreign steel were "clearly in error" and should be increased.

Under the trigger price system, minimum prices were set on imports based on the production and transportation costs of the most efficient producers, the Japanese. The system is designed to accelerate antidumping action against foreign steelmakers selling below those costs in the United States.

The study, Stinson said, "verifies massive dumping of steel in the American market (had the result of) depriving the American steel industry of $4.1 billion ... (in) 1976 and 1977."

Nelson Will Not Die For Murder Of Six Children

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UPI) — Simon Peter Nelson, a 46-year-old employment counselor convicted of killing his six children while they slept in the family home, will not be sentenced to die.

The same jury that convicted Nelson of six counts of murder could not reach a decision Tuesday on whether Nelson should receive the death penalty.

Under Illinois' death penalty law, a defendant cannot be sentenced to die if the jury decides against execution or cannot reach a decision. The judge presiding over the trial must then sentence the defendant, but he cannot impose the death penalty.

The eight-man, four-woman jury deliberated more than three hours before declaring itself deadlocked. Winnebago County Circuit Judge John Ghent said he would hold a status hearing Friday to decide when to pronounce sentence.

During a hearing Tuesday, Prosecutor Dan Doyle told jurors Nelson, 46, deserved to be sentenced to death because of the nature of the crime, evidence that he abused his children prior to their slayings and his attitude during the trial.

Nelson's attorney, public defender Craig Petersen, told the jurors, "You have to remember that the decision you make today is one you will have to live with for the rest of your life.

"If electrocuting Simon Peter Nelson will bring back the children, then do it. Or will it be more cruel to make Nelson think about every second, every minute, every hour, every day, every month and every year for the rest of his life what he did? Yesterday I wouldn't ask for mercy. Today I do."

The children, aged 3 to 12, were beaten, mutilated and stabbed to death Jan. 7 in their home in Illinois' second largest city. Their skulls had been crushed with a mallet and their throats slit.

The jury deliberated less than two hours Monday before returning its guilty verdict. Nelson had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

Nelson broke down and wept several times during the week-long trial. When he testified in his own defense, Nelson told the jury he was beaten repeatedly by his father as a child. He said he was in a trancelike state the night his children were killed and that he believed he had taken on the personality of his father, who committed suicide when Nelson was a boy.

Prosecutors argued Nelson was sane and killed the children to "get even" with his wife, who was planning to divorce him.

AT THE END OF THEIR ROPE — Broad Ford Elementary School students under the direction of physical education teacher, Phil Caruso (above) completed a special segment of a unique program this week. The tug-of-war ended the team events which also included punchball, wallball, kickball and dodgeball. Other segments were individual events including the 50-yard dash, 200-yard relay, low and high hurdles, foul shooting and the obstacle course; the students were also involved in progressive games which taught eye-hand coordination. Following the team events the children practiced the ceremonial handshake used in the Olympic games. The events were preliminary training for the school's Superstars Day competition against Dennett Road School.

School Enrollment Down in 36 States

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government says public school enrollment declined in 36 states — including Pennsylvania and West Virginia — between 1971 and 1976 but the cost of school operations rose sharply, as much as 95 percent in some states.

According to a 466-page report issued by the National Institute of Education, the average cost of educating youngsters from kindergarten through high school shot up 56 percent while average enrollment went down 2.3 percent in the five years covered.

School attendance increased in only 14 states: Alaska, Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Massahusetts, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Texas, Utah and Virginia.

In Pennsylvania, school attendance dropped 6.5 percent while spending rose 60.5 percent. West Virginia recorded a 0.5 percent decline in attendance and a 57.5 percent increase in spending.

New Jersey's attendance was down 1.5 percent and spending was up 60.3 percent. Ohio had a 6.4 percent drop in attendance and a 60.5 percent increase in spending.

The institute, an arm of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said some enrollment declines were due to population shifts, but the drop was caused chiefly by a decline in America's birth rate.

The alarming part of the report notes major cost increases in all 50 states, ranging from 16.4 percent in Hawaii to 95.2 percent in Alabama.

In 43 states, it cost at least 49 percent more to operate primary and secondary schools in 1976 than it did in 1971. The increase was more than 80 percent in Alabama, Arizona, Massachusetts, Montana, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

The report, "Declining Enrollment: The Challenge of the Coming Decade," says the greater cost of educating fewer children has thus far had little or no effect on the quality of education.

But it also reported the subject is already a major topic of discussion by education officials, parent-teacher associations and taxpayer groups, who must come to grips through better planning and cost control.

Bethlehem Steel To Reopen Foundry

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UPI) — The Bethlehem Steel Corp. has rehired some of its 35 employees to help reopen an iron foundry, closed since November 1977 while undergoing an $8 million overall.

The employees were among 140 workers furloughed last fall when the foundry was closed for modernization as part of a continuing program to upgrade plant and facilities.

The foundry, located along the Lehigh River in Bethlehem, has had new moulding facilities installed, including up-to-date stationary and moveable shakeout stations for mould separations, hot metal reladeling systems with relocated pouring pits, new conveyor systems, recycling station for sand and storage silos.

It produces miscellaneous iron casting mainly for internal use and ingot moulds.

Plant general manager Fred Harvey said the modernization program was significant as part of the general upturn in industry fortunes and was the largest current capital improvement expenditure at the local plant.

"Even more significant," said a company spokesman, "is the recall of 750 workers since March first."

The latest group of recalled workers will be used for the shakedown of the plant which begins June 12. The spokesman said it was not known how long it will take to get the operation running smoothly.

In 1977, Bethlehem suffered massive losses, including $477 million in one quarter. It laid off thousands of workers and shut down plants in order to protect future profitability.

In the first quarter results for 1978, Bethlehem reported a reversal of the slide, with a slim $1.1 million pretax net income, compared to a $53.2 milion pretax loss in the first quarter of 1977.

U. S. oil exports dropped 14.3 percent the first quarter of 1978.

Foreign Legion Pursuing Rebels In Zaire Province

KOLWEZI, Zaire (UPI) — Four hundred French foreign legionnaires pursued retreating rebel forces into the rolling bushland of Zaire's southern Shaba province today in their search for some 70 French hostages believed held by the insurgents.

Western diplomatic sources in Kinshasa, the capital of the former Belgian Congo, said the Foreign Legion is likely to try to head the column off.

One diplomat said, "we fear the worst" for the fate of the hostages.

The sources said the hostages were taken from Kolwezi by one of two rebels of Shaba from Angola via Zambia in the night of May 11.

"The hostages are clearly an insurance against attack by the legionnaires," a diplomat said. "But once the rebels reach the border, the whites will be a burden and they'll have no further need for them."

French officials said one legionnaire was killed and four wounded Tuesday in a skirmish at a locality called Louis-Lou, about 5 miles outside the copper and cobalt mining town of Kolwezi.

Five rebels were killed in the action, French officers said.

French officials announced the death of another legionnaire in Kolwezi, bringing total French casualties to 4 killed and 18 wounded.

Western diplomats said "at least" 200 whites and about 300 blacks died in Kolwezi during the rebels' nine-day occupation and the Foreign Legion's drive to regain it.

They said about 200 rebels were killed in skirmishes with French paratroopers in Kolwezi and about 100 — "possibly more" — in the French followup operation in the surrounding countryside.

Contrary to earlier reports, French officials said isolated rebel snipers are still operating sporadically in Kolwezi and said they were surprised at the rebels' tenacity.

They said Zairean forces skirmished with a rebel convoy west of the important rail center of Mutshatsha Tuesday, but said they had no details.

News Summary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., chairman of the Senate ethics committee, said Tuesday press reports that Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., during his 31 years in public office had accepted "small gifts of cash" from friends and supporters to cover thousands of dollars in personal expenditures will be investigated by his panel.

The committee will examine the reports and decide what — if any — further steps might be warranted. Talmadge, who chairs the Senate Agriculture Committee, said last week in an interview with the Washington Star he also had received free clothing and frequently enjoyed free lodging during trips to his home state.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Vice President Walter Mondale's speech today was expected to highlight the second day of the U.N. General Assembly's special session on disar-

The five-week session was opened Tuesday, in a sober atmosphere, by Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, who offered several relatively modest proposals to begin the "enormous challenge" of reversing the escalation of world arms spending.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ronald Schultz, 18, of Toledo, Ohio, who was in Chicago for a bowling competition went for a walk Tuesday and got lost in a predominantly black high-crime area. Today he was listed in fair condition at Northwestern Memorial Hospital and is paralyzed from the waist down.

Police said Schultz was surrounded and taunted by a group of blacks, then was shot. After the shooting several persons robbed him and fled. Clifford Finley, a black youth has been charged with attempted murder, aggravated battery, armed violence and attempted armed robbery. "They went at him like piranhas," an investigator said.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — As onlookers stood in the rain covering their ears to shut out Ralph Winner's piercing screams, Winner had his leg amputated by Dr. Joseph Young after a girder had snapped and pinned him to a beam on Brady Street Bridge.

Although Winner, 48, was given morphine during the operation, he remained conscious throughout. He was one of six men preparing the 100-year-old bridge for demolition, when the accident occurred. After he was freed Winner was taken to Presbyterian University Hospital, where he is listed in fair condition.

Bomb Carrying Man Captured In Moscow Office

MOSCOW (UPI) — A man armed with a bomb and shotgun took over a Finnair office in downtown Moscow today, seized two hostages and demanded a ticket to take him out of the Soviet Union. But the hostages escaped and the man was captured by Soviet militiamen firing teargas.

The man walked into the Finnair office, about a half-mile from Red Square, at 12:45 p.m. (5:45 a.m. EDT) and demanded a plane to take him out of the Soviet Union. He carried a bomb and the shotgun, according to a Finnish Embassy spokesman.

Finnair station manager Pertti Koljonens said the man fired a shotgun blast through the office window and the two Soviet finnair employes, a man and a woman, escaped as he was reloading the gun. Police then fired teargas into the Finnair office to force him out.

The manager said no one was injured in the incident, and a KGB plainclothes policemen at the scene, who confiscated television tape taken by CBS news, said everything went "just excellently." He said Soviet law forbade filming of crowds.

According to the Finnish embassy, the man had the bomb and the gun in his hands when he entered the office and demanded a flight out of the country. The embassy had constant contact with the office by telephone.

Early in the incident, a woman who answered the telephone at the office said the man identified himself as a "member of the Russian liberation army," but the Finnish Embassy spokesman could not confirm that.

Several hundred people stood along the small street where the incident occurred. There were dozens of Soviet militiamen at the scene, along with representatives of the Finnish embassy.

One of the large picture windows on the front of the building was smashed, and what appeared to be a bullet hole — or perhaps a hole caused by the tear gas grenades fired into the building — marked the other window. The glass of one door was also broken.

After the Soviet militia had captured the man, who was apparently taken away for arrest and questioning, they put up barriers directly in front of the Finnair office and told people to move along.

The KGB man at the scene told Western reporters that nothing had happened and everything was calm. Then he confiscated CBS correspondent Bernard Redmont's film.

Scientists Say Children May Inherit Phobias

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Persons who fear riding in elevators or driving, panic when crossing a bridge or can't face going through a tunnel may have inherited their phobias, a Johns Hopkins University professor said recently.

Dr. Rudolf Hoehn-Saric, an associate professor of psychiatry at Hopkins' medical school, said he has been treating and studying outpatients who suffer from anxiety in order to understand the relationship between personality traits and symptoms.

"Certain tendencies to be anxious might be inherited," Hoehn-Saric said. "Certainly in animals there is some evidence of a tendency that anxieties might be inherited."

Hoehn-Saric said the patients experience dizziness, heart palpitations, shortness of breath and butterflies.

"We are trying to get people who are suffering from long term anxiety, anxiety states, phobias or obsessive compulsions to come to the clinic so that we can try and find out which people are prone to certain anxiety states," he said in a telephone interview.

The specialized clinic has been treating 10 outpatients on a regular basis with drugs and psychotherapy for several weeks.

He said early interaction between parents and children can strengthen or weaken a tendency toward anxiety.

"Many times you see a mother pulling her child into school. The child is suffering from what we call 'school phobia.' If children are left alone at a certain age, they tend to show what we call 'a separation anxiety,' which usually results in the school phobia."

He also said many people who have a tendency toward anxiety had disruptions in early childhood or showed disturbances in their learning behavior in school.

He said that children are not afraid of going to school as much as they fear returning home and not finding their mother.

Many people suffering from anxiety have been successfully treated with drugs.

Treating patients with "beta" drugs — drugs which block the beta receptors of sympathetic nervous systems which affects heart rate — can relieve heart pounding which some anxiety patients experience.

"If you take this medication, you won't get the physical manifestation. We are also treating patients with various types of drugs to determine which ones affect the anxiety patient's symptons."

He said he hopes to conduct controlled studies of the anxiety patients in the future.

He said anxiety symptons usually decrease during middle age after a person feels they have accomplished something.

"Teen-agers are more often anxious because they feel insecure in their relationship to the world and the demands put on them."

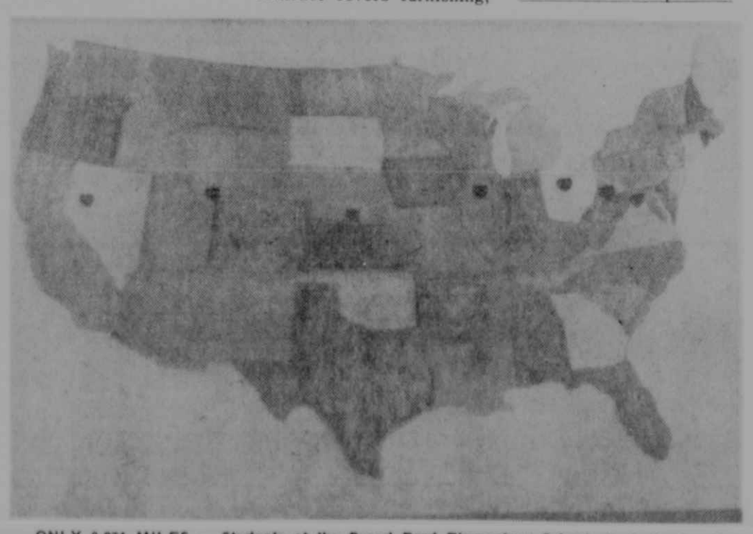
Routes 40, 546 To Be Resurfaced



The widening and resurfacing of sections of U. S. Route 40 and Maryland Route 546 (Finzel Road) in Garrett County is scheduled to begin in the near future, the State Highway Administration has announced. The project, which also includes resurfacing of shoulders, is expected to take from four to five months.

State Highway Administrator M. S. Caltrider said the $826,424 contract was awarded to the Interstate Amiesite Corporation, Concordville, Pa. The section of U. S. Route 40 extends from east of Piney Run Road to the Allegany County line. Maryland Route 546 will be improved from U. S. Route 40 north to the Pennsylvania State line. Total distance of the two projects is approximately five miles.

The Geg Seeding Company, Confluence, Pa., has received a $21,300 contract for landscaping the Youghiogheny Scenic Overlook on the eastbound National Freeway (U.S. Route 48) east of Friendsville. The contract covers furnishing, planting, and caring for trees and selective thinning.

John D. Bushby, District Engineer for Allegany, Garrett, and Washington Counties, will supervise the projects.

ONLY 2,974 MILES — Students at the Broad Ford Elementary School physical education program began their jogging program Monday. They will be running from Baltimore to San Fransisco! Actually they will be logging the equivalent of 2,974 miles by running a one-half mile metric track plotted by fifth grade teacher, Les McDaniels. The idea of "running" from city to city was developed by Dr. Allan Cononaco, supervisor of physical education programs for W. Va. The program will continue next year on an individual basis. Pictured above is a map with the route from Baltimore to San Fransisco. Students will also learn about cities on the route and the geography of states they will be "running" through.

WIN A TEDDY BEAR — Helene McCauley, member of the Southern Middle School PTA, gives young Jeff Spencer a shot at knocking down the milk bottles at a fun carnival held last Friday evening at the school. The event was sponsored by the PTA and the proceeds are to go towards the purchase of new lockers (complete with locks) for the students of Southern Middle. At right, Jeff demonstrates his skill. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Spencer, Oakland.

The day the armistice was signed in 1918, Miss Hannah Turner of Massachusetts finished her one hundredth sweater for the Navy. She began knitting in December, 1917, which means that she produced one sweater every three days. "When she notified Boston that she had completed her eightieth sweater she was told she had beaten any knitter in the United States. In her spare moments she had also made one or two mufflers and some wristlets. She had never done any knitting before she undertook this wartime work."

In April of 1919, many boys were returning home after serving in battle: "During the past few days hundreds of returned overseas soldiers, both white and colored, have passed thru Oakland over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, all bound for camps in the west where they will receive their final discharges and return to civil life. Almost without exception the men were in happy moods and expressed great pleasure at being back in their home country."

We sometimes fail to recognize one of our local communities, Kitzmiller. But in May of 1919 this name was on the lips of many Garrett County residents: "Kitzmiller is the largest coal producing town in Garrett County and it will likewise produce the largest County Athletic Meet ever held in Garrett County. Do not neglect to attend it." "Physical education is coming to front as one of the most important phases of the training of our boys and girls. Go to Kitzmiller and learn how this phase of the work is carried on in our great County educational system." "Kitzmiller has an elementary school next to Oakland; Kitzmiller has an enrollment of about 250 and Oakland has an enrollment of about 290; Kitzmiller feels that it will soon have in its elementary school 290 children or more; Kitzmiller also feels that it will provide a day of royal sport in the County Athletic Meet."

That summer, Mary Miller, her father Wilson Miller and their neighbor, George Lowrey all living 6 miles west of Frostburg, were sent to the Pasteur Institute for treatment in Philadelphia, after being attacked by a "mad dog" that was found in the Millers barnyard. The dog was shot three times to no avail and was finally killed by Mr. Lowrey, using his penknife.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

PRESCRIPTION FOR INSOMNIA

Lesson for May 28, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 12.
Devotional Reading: 2 Corinthians 4:7-18.

Let's get the picture of a very tense situation.

Herod the King had begun a violent persecution of Christians in his kingdom. James the brother of John was killed outright. Simon Peter, the chief Apostle, was arrested and thrown into prison under heavy guard and it seemed likely that Herod would have him killed also in order to please the Jewish trouble-makers who were daily increasing their complaints against the church.

Rev. Althouse

Behold an angel

If you had been Simon Peter, how would you have felt? It seemed everything was crashing down about him and he could hardly have forgotten how he had denied his Master three times on a similar night of great crisis. So how do we find him? Luke tells us: "The very night when Herod was about to bring him out, Peter was sleeping ..."!

A valued associate senselessly slain, the church under persecution, the faith endangered, himself likely to lose his life ... and Peter was sleeping!

What was his secret prescription for finding sleep on a night when any other man would have become an insomniac? Perhaps part of the prescription is found in Luke's assurance that "earnest prayer for him was made to God by the church" (11:5). There was comfort in knowing that he was not facing this ordeal alone, but was sharing it with his friends and co-workers who helped to bear his burden with their earnest prayers. Simon Peter had already seen what prayer by these people could accomplish, although we suspect he was looking, not so much for release from jail, as help to come through this ordeal with his loyalty to Christ intact.

Now I am sure

There had been another night when Peter's loyalty had not fared so well. That night, knowing his Master was imprisoned and likely to be executed, Peter had felt frightened and alone. Yet, after Christ had been resurrected, Peter realized that he had not been alone that night and he need not have feared. For when God's enemies had done their worst, Christ was raised up and vindicated.

So, as Peter sat in Herod's dungeon, he knew that he was not alone, that even if he was killed, the power of the resurrected Christ would be more than enough to vindicate him and save him from extinction. Let Herod do his worst, it would not matter.

That Peter was not really anticipating escape is evident in his assumption that the appearance of the angel is really a dream. He knew that God would win in this situation, but he did not realize that God's victory would mean his escape from Herod's clutches. It didn't matter how God won his victory to Peter, for either way Peter knew that he was securely in God's keeping.

This, then, was the prescription of faith and loyalty that allowed Peter to sleep on a night that should have kept him awake.

Broad Ford Park — Recreation For The Entire Family

Broad Ford Recreational Park, which offers swimming, fishing, sailing, sunbathing and picnicking, will officially open this Saturday. The L&R Corporation, comprised of members of the Oakland Rotary Club and the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions Club, will operate the concession stand once again this year. All proceeds will go back to the park. The present goal of L&R is to earn enough money to construct a pavillion. Some longer ranged possibilities include completion of a ball field, construction of tennis courts, a basketball court and perhaps an ice skating rink. Other possible projects being discussed include night swimming, jogging and cross country trails and the purchase of some paddle boats.

The sandy beach at Broad Ford has been picked clean and the grass has been mowed by Oakland Town employees in preparation for the onslaught of sun bathers and swimmers. The structure at the left is a combination bath house and concession stand which will be operated by the L&R (Lions and Rotary) Corporation. The park will officially open this Saturday.

NICE CATCH — Jack Michaels prepares to unhook a nice rainbow trout which was pulled out of Broad Ford Lake Sunday afternoon by his wife, Nancy. Also pictured is Ron Michaels.

These three youngsters utilize the boat launching ramp at Broad Ford as a warm seat for fishing. The ramp is located at the end of the center parking lot and may be used by any interested fisherman.

John, Jack, Nancy and Ron Michaels enjoyed a successful day of trout fishing at Broad Ford Park Sunday afternoon.

For those who take pleasure in picnicking and charcoal grilled steaks, hamburgers and hot dogs, Broad Ford Park is equipped with dozens of charcoal grills and picnic tables, all located in one of Garrett County's newest and most scenic recreational areas. These young folks have already taken advantage of the park this year. All are students at Southern Middle School. Pictured above are, left to right, Susie Devlin, Kathy Ryscavage, Angie Liller, T. J. Thomas. Pictured at right are, seated left, Andrew Orr, Patty Roberts and Mary Mateer. Standing are Mark Proulx and Gary Heginbotham. Seated right are T. J. Thomas and Dani Hartman.

Students of Dennett Road Elementary School treated parents and faculty to a special band and choral presentation under the direction of Harold Hudnall. The chorus sang several numbers including, "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," "Oh What A Beautiful Morning," "I'd Like To Teach The World To Sing," and "You Light Up My Life." The band concert included "Rock Around The Clock," "Theme from Star Wars," "Mickey Mouse March," and a selection of original compositions by the students.

Extension aids Bill Knepp, Barry Glotfelty, Scott Glotfelty, Carol Glotfelty and Lynn Robeson of the University of Maryland and Dale Sue Ream of Salem College will present judging information and establish future practice sessions.

Extension agent Alice Hevner, who will supervise the workshop, advises 4-Hers to attend.

Four Sentenced For Burning NHS Football Booth

Four juveniles were sentenced last Wednesday in connection with burning of the ticket booth at Northern High School several weeks ago.

Judge Fred A. Thayer found all four youths to be delinquent. He further ruled that all four must give a full personal apology before the entire student body and faculty at Northern, which was given Monday.

In addition, each of the four students must devote fifty hours of labor to the maintenance and beautification of the Northern High School grounds, to include work on the reconstruction of the ticket booth, and each must contribute one-fourth of the cost of the materials needed.

Driving privileges, except for transportation to and from work, were suspended for six months.

Southern Middle Chorus Schedules Spring Concert

The Southern Middle School Chorus will present its first annual spring concert on Thursday, June 1, at 7 p.m.

Highlights of the event will be solos performed by Tom Parrack, Mike Crawford, Reid Bailey and Brenda Martin. A choreographed version of the popular movie "Star Wars" will be presented by sixth graders.

Other selections will include spirituals, songs from current movies, Broadway shows, and popular television series. A special tribute will be given to the Beatles and John Denver.

At the conclusion of the program, awards will be presented to graduating eighth graders and outstanding seventh and sixth grade members.

The program is under the direction of Patti McLaughlin. There is no admission fee.

The space station, Skylab, has been started up again to change its position.

TUNES by jim willis

First albums, like first novels, usually pass by unnoticed. Warren Zevon's "Excitable Boy," (1978 Elektra/Asylum Records) is an exception.

Zevon's first album is "arty"...it wasn't written for the masses. He seems destined for a cult following that may equal Little Feat.

Commercial success could ruin Zevon's style; the top 40 stations have grabbed one of the numbers from the album and managed to hold on to it. Thus, Zevon's only unimaginative cut, both lyrically and musically, is a howl punctuated tune called "Werewolves of London." So much for en masse tastes.

The remainder of the cuts are innovative and the title track has a hint of Andrew Gould. The album features Waddy Wachtel, Jennifer Warnes, Linda Rondstadt, John McVie, Mick Fleetwood and Karla Bonoff.

State Department Of Education Surveys School Principals

Which skills do school principals need to function more effectively in their jobs?

To get answers to that question the Maryland State Department of Education decided to ask the principals themselves — all 1,300 of them in public schools across the state — plus school superintendents and other educators.

In one category of choices — staff development activities — the principals' high priorities went to supervising the instructional program, analyzing teacher behavior, and advising teachers about their teaching effectiveness.

The purpose of the survey, which is the first of its kind in the state and possibly in the nation — is to develop curriculum for regional "academies" for school principals next July to be developed by the new Maryland Professional Development Academy of the state department of education.

We want to help principals in their role as instructional leaders; said state school superintendent David W. Hornbeck. "An important starting point is to ask them what they need."

The state superintendent added that the principal is facing heavier responsibilities as instructional leader. "Each of us in our jobs must keep up to date. That is also true of principals and teachers as we seek to help youngsters learn. Thus, in addition, to the principal's duties in problems of student discipline, personnel management, budget, community relations, scheduling, business and plant management, he or she is faced with a growing need to emphasize instructional leadership."

Hornbeck added that full appreciation of the role principals can play in student learning has been slow in coming and that as a result staff training dollars have tended to go elsewhere. "Our objective now is to work with local school systems to give the principal as much support as resources permit," Hornbeck said. "There is no single position in the educational community more important than that of the principal."

In a second category of the survey — curriculum — the principals had four special concerns: gifted and talented education, competency based education, measurement of instructional outcomes, and special education.

The survey, plus planning sessions among participating principals, will determine the topics for inquiry at the four summer academy programs to be sponsored by the Maryland State Department of Education.

Fourteen More Die On State Highways

Fourteen persons lost their lives on Maryland Highways according to the Weekly News Release compiled by 2nd Lt. M. I. Morgan of the Maryland State Police. Of those killed, ten were drivers, three were passengers and one a pedestrian.

Persons killed through May 21 total 213, compared to 230 for the same period last year.

Larceny, Fraud Cases Investigated

Cases of larceny and fraud were investigated by the Maryland State Police recently.

The larceny of 16 rolls of roofing from the property of Marland Beckman, RD 1, Swanton, occurred sometime between 8 p.m. May 18 and 9:30 the next morning. The roofing was apparently loaded on a heavy type truck, by the tire tracks. Total value was set at $192. There are no suspects in the incident investigated by Tfc. Dale Williams.

A suspect has been named in a fraud case occurring at Grantsville recently. A man left his car to be serviced and rented a car from the same place and left for Cumberland. Action is being delayed pending positive identification. Tfc. D. H. Riggleman investigated.

INTEREST DOWN - COST UP

Are you waiting until interest rates drop before you buy a home? Do you think that this will save you money? The home you have your eye on will cost you more in monthly payments one year from now - even if the interest rate drops one percent.

For example, take a home that costs $50,000. With a 20% down payment and financed with a 25 year, 9% mortgage, the monthly payment would be $336.00. But one year from now, if prices keep rising at the average rate, the now $50,000 home would likely cost $55,000. If the interest rate decreased to 8%, not only would the down payment be $1,000 more, but the monthly payment would increase to $339.68. If the interest rate stayed at 9%, the payment would come to $369.60.

So, it's obvious that the overall value of the home - not the interest rate - makes the biggest impact on your monthly payment. Since there is no indication of property values decreasing, the moral of the story is - buy now or pay more later.

This past Saturday, the Garrett County 4-Hers kicked off their schedule of horse judging events by traveling to Sharpsburg to visit two Quarter Horse farms, one owned by Billy Coleman and the other by Tom Bussard. Straight Talk About Aging

HEARING LOSS

Hearing is important to living life to its fullest. Yet millions of Americans hear only the sounds of silence. They suffer from uncorrected hearing loss.

Hearing loss is invisible. It isn't fatal. It is usually painless. It is always silent. But it is our nation's number one handicapping disability. And it can affect anyone, at any time. No one is immune — your neighbors, friends, your family — not even you.

Statistics on hearing loss are impressive. More people suffer from hearing handicaps than from heart disease, blindness, cancer, tuberculosis, venereal disease and multiple sclerosis combined. According to a U. S. Public Health survey, 14.5 million Americans — that is one out of every 15 of us — suffer from some degree of hearing loss. Almost half of all those needing help are over 65.

The number of hearing impaired has increased as a result of longevity, recent German measle epidemics and powerful drug usage to combat other illnesses. Increasing noise pollution, however, is believed to be a major cause of hearing loss.

To understand hearing loss, it helps first to know how the ear works and how we hear. The outer ear channels sound waves from the air around you inward through the external auditory canal. The auditory canal ends at a tightly stretched membrane, the eardrum.

Beyond the eardrum, in the middle ear chamber, are three tiny, linked bones called the malleus (hammer), incus (anvil), and stapes (stirrup). The outer bone, the malleus, is attached to the eardrum. The inner bone, the stapes, ends in a footplate which fits onto the oval window, an opening in the wall of the bone housing the inner ear. The center bone, the incus, connects the malleus and the stapes so that when one moves they all move.

Your inner ear is filled with fluid, and the lower portion terminates in a delicate, spiral structure that is shaped like a snail. It is called the cochlea.

Inside the cochlea is an arrangement of thousands of tiny specialized cells, each of which is equipped with many microscopic hairs. These hairs are immersed in the fluid which fills the cochlea.

The movement of the fluid causes the hairs immersed in it to move. The movement stimulates the attached cell to send a tiny impulse along the fibers of the auditory nerve to the brain. In the brain, the impulse is translated into the sensation you know as sound.

Generally, there are two types of hearing loss. In a conductive hearing loss, the problem lies in the outer or inner ear. Conductive hearing problems can be caused by a number of things: wax may be blocking the ear canal; the tissue lining the middle ear may be infected; the eardrum may be punctured; or the tiny bones in the middle of the ear may not move properly. Fortunately, many conductive hearing problems can often be treated successfully by medical or surgical measures.

"Nerve" hearing loss is generally not correctable and hence is the type most commonly offset by use of a hearing aid. Here the problem is in the inner ear and is the result of damage to the hair cells, nerve fibers, or both. There are many causes of nerve hearing loss including illnesses accompanied by high fever, birth defects, drugs, long-term exposure to noise, head injuries and the aging process itself.

Some warning signs of hearing loss are: (1) shouting in conversation, (2) turning the radio or television on too loud, (3) asking people to repeat, (4) favoring one ear, (5) withdrawing from social contact, (6) straining to hear, (7) misunderstanding conversations, (8) ignoring sounds if not facing their source, (9) slurring your speech, and (10) ringing or buzzing in the ear.

If you suspect a hearing loss, the first step is to consult your family physician. If your family doctor cannot help you with your hearing problem, he may refer you to an ear specialist. The ear specialist, called an otologist or otolaryngologist, is a physician who specializes in the diagnosis and treatment of hearing problems. He will seek to determine the cause of your hearing problem and may be able to help you through medical or surgical treatment.

Your doctor or the ear specialist might also refer you to an audiologist. The audiologist is trained to measure hearing and to help rehabilitate and counsel people with a hearing loss. If the audiologist's tests indicate that a hearing aid may benefit you, he may help you select the type of aid you need.

Remember, medical evaluation of your hearing should always be the first step in selecting and purchasing a hearing aid.

Signup Deadline Is Extended For Farm Programs

Maryland farmers have been given an additional two weeks to sign up for the 1978 wheat, feed grain and cotton programs, Paul A. Crowl, Chairperson of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation ASC Committee, reported. The May 15 deadline has been extended through May 31, 1978.

"The additional time should be helpful to farmers whose busy schedules may have prevented them from visiting the County Office, and also to those who may still be undecided about participating," Crowl said. He explained that there is no penalty if set-aside participants decide not to plant a program crop such as barley, wheat, corn or grain sorghum, and that they should sign up to assure themselves of program benefits.

Farmers who sign up will be eligible for price support loans, target price and disaster payments for barley, corn, grain sorghum, and wheat on the participating farm, and eligible for loans on any other normal crop acreage grown on the farm. Farmers must also sign up by May 31 to qualify for barley, corn, and grain sorghum voluntary diversion payments.

Crowl said that the Department extended the signup period because of late changes made in the program, such as voluntary diversion feed grain acreage for payment, wheat grazing and hay payments, and also increase in target price for 1978 crop wheat to $3.40 per bushel.

For more information on the 1978 farm programs, contact the local County ASCS Office.

Goldstein Urges Bankers Support For Economic Future

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein recently challenged the members of the Maryland Bankers' Association to help make available the money that will be needed to meet the future economic development needs of the State. Addressing the annual convention of the Maryland Bankers at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, Mr. Goldstein related instances of his personal involvement in bringing business to Maryland and called for recognition and individual development of Maryland's four distinct economic regions.

Mr. Goldstein noted that, while Maryland was part of a nationwide trend away from a manufacturing employment base, the State has experienced an increase in manufacturing employment in the last two years. He also noted that the Chairman of the Board of Westinghouse Electric Corporation, Maryland's second largest private employer, had recently announced an expansion of employment by 500 to 1,000 jobs per year in the next several years.

The State Comptroller told the bankers that per capita income in Maryland continues to grow at a larger dollar rate than the U.S. as a whole and noted that State revenues continue to be strong and Maryland's general obligation bond rating continues to be Triple A.

Mr. Goldstein told the Maryland Bankers' Association that deposits in State and national banks, building, and savings and loans in Maryland are nearly three times as great as they were at the end of 1970.

Relating his personal economic development philosophy, Mr. Goldstein said that Maryland is actually four regions with separate goals and separate problems. "I believe each separate area of Maryland must be examined for its strengths and weaknesses; its needs and the desires of its citizens."

Citing recent controversy, Mr. Goldstein stated that manufacturing and heavy industry are unwanted by citizens of the Eastern Shore and Southern Maryland, where life revolves around the land and water.

The Comptroller urged separate consideration for Western Maryland, the Washington, D.C. area and the Baltimore area, saying that Baltimore is vastly different from Washington, D.C.

Endorsing the concept of an independent Economic Council of government, business, labor and industry, Mr. Goldstein noted that Maryland could offer energy and potable water in future economic development efforts.

"We must put our advantages in banner headlines — our unique location, our trained labor pool, and our equitable business tax system," he said.

Mathias Is Named Representative To Disarmament Session

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr., (R-Md.) has accepted an appointment by President Carter to the United States Delegation to the United Nations Special Session on Disarmament.

Delegations from the 149 United Nations member states will meet in New York from May 23 to June 28, 1978. Senator Mathias will be an alternate representative.

It will be the first time virtually all nations of the world will convene to discuss arms control and disarmament since the 1932 General Disarmament Conference.

The U. S. opposes a world disarmament conference as being premature, but accepted the proposal for a special U.N. session because it will adopt only recommendations and a program of action.

It is expected that virtually every aspect of arms control will be debated at the session, including questions relating to the negotiations between the Soviet Union and the U.S. on the limitation of nuclear weapons.

Senator Mathias was appointed a Congressional Advisor to the S.A.L.T. delegation by Vice President Mondale in 1977, and participated in negotiations in Geneva.

He will be present at the New York session for the formal presentation of the American position on May 2 and as often as his Senate duties permit.

Garrett County is lucky to have a nightlife. Many communities larger than ours are without clubs, dance halls or bars. The only problem is, it would be unfair to patronize just one of the establishments so you usually try and hit them all in one night. That's a mistake — I know.

The first stop of the evening is hard to miss. It's the one with cars parked in front a mile in each direction on both sides of the road. I always carry my own fire extinguisher into this place because I have a fear of burning buildings. This is the night-spot for non-dancers. You simply have to stand in the middle of the dance floor and the surging crowd will just carry you along.

I was standing too close to the dance floor the other evening, watching this 300 lb. lug and his four-foot girlfriend "disco-ing." They were doing these elaborate turns and twists when he accidentally grabbed my wrist instead of hers — I landed somewhere in the drum section. I never did find my drink.

Down the road a piece is your next stop. They serve delicious sandwiches and frosty pitchers of "suds." Our entire office was out there last week; one of our staffmembers was leaving and we gave her a going-away party. After a few pitchers we also entertained half of Oakland. Our advertising manager was directing the band, the typesetters were imitating the Lennon Sisters, the assistant editor was gurgling in her mug and several employees were hugging bathroom fixtures.

Half of our group left and traveled a little farther down the road to another watering hole. This place is unique. Because of the dense cigarette smoke they've installed fool-proof smoke detectors. If you spot a fire, simply stand on top of your table and press the detector's little red button.

I saw a whole line of guys dancing around with crossed eyes and legs, grimacing. We figured it was the latest dance and started to imitate them. Much to our chagrin, we discovered we were in the men's room waiting line.

I think I'll stay home tonight.

Noise Heats Sun

The outer layers of the sun's atmosphere, the chromosphere and the corona, are hotter than the visible surface of the sun, the photosphere. Scientists know that radiation from the photosphere cannot be the source of heat causing this phenomenon. It is possible that the chromosphere is heated by noise waves generated in the bubbling, violent photosphere, and that the corona is heated by magnetic energy generated by other aspects of the solar structure. In order to completely understand the outer layers of the sun, the cause of their heating must be understood. This is a major research area of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Moon

Sunday at 11:30 p.m., the moon passes through its Last Quarter phase. At this time the moon will be 90 degrees west of the sun as seen from earth. Moonrise today will be at 10:50 p.m. At the end of the week it will be at 2:26 a.m.

Tonight at midnight, the moon will be closer to earth than at any other time this month. This perigee will be at 360,950 kilometers (224,330 miles) from earth.

Visible Planets

Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn are easily seen in the night sky this week. Venus, the brighter, and Jupiter are moving past one another in the western sky within two hours of sunset, as the week passes. These planets are among the stars of Gemini. Mars and Saturn are also moving closer together. They are among the stars of Leo, and will pass each other next week.

Increasing Daylight

Nine minutes more daylight will be available next Tuesday. Sunrise was at 5:56 a.m. this morning. Next Tuesday the sun will rise at 5:52 a.m. The sun will set at 8:37 p.m. at the end of the week.

Maryland Farmers To Take Cropland Out Of Production

Maryland farmers have agreed to take more than 32,000 acres of cropland out of production this year in exchange for federal price support benefits, a state agricultural official said Monday.

James Voss, state executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said more than 2,500 farms have signed up on the federal program.

The set-aside program is aimed at reducing a further buildup of crop surpluses that bring down market prices for the products.

If the average market price falls below target prices set by the government, the government pays the farmer the difference.

Voss said Maryland farmers have enrolled 21,751 acres of wheat with 4,000 acres set aside, 168,000 acres of corn with 25,000 acres idled and 30,000 acres of barley with 3,000 set aside.

The sign-up period was scheduled to expire last Monday but was extended after President Carter signed an emergency farm bill to boost the 1978 wheat target price from $3 to $3.40 a bushel.

Farmers have until the end of the month to enroll. Voss said there has been "considerable sign-up activity since May 11."

Although the acreage control programs are voluntary, farmers must participate in them to be eligible for the target price payments, loans and other benefits.

Voss said 88 percent of the administration's national goal of setting aside 22 million acres of cropland has been achieved.

Nationwide, 956,311 farms have been enrolled, representing nearly 42 percent of the almost 2.3 million eligible to participate, Voss said.

Cyclists Cautioned About New Right-Turn-On-Red Law

Now is the time for bicycle drivers to start practicing extra caution at intersections in preparation for Maryland's new right-turn-on-red law which becomes effective July 1, warns the Safety Council of Maryland.

Target audience of the accident prevention campaign is the large teenage and adult bike population which "drives" on public highways for recreational and practical transportation purposes, according to Vice President Mose Ottenheimer, 2nd, of the council's traffic division.

"In a nutshell," Ottenheimer said, "the new law will threaten bike drivers who habitually breeze through green lights and ignore the possibility of a motor vehicle turning right on red. The results could be deadly."

"Therefore, we are urging bicyclists to start looking to their right and pay attention to cross traffic stopped at red lights, because on July 1 some of those motorists may illegally turn in front of you," he added.

Maryland's RTOR law, passed a year ago by the General Assembly, will permit drivers to make a "universal" right turn on red after stopping at most signalized intersections. RTOR will be banned by posted signs, however, at some busy locations considered too dangerous by traffic engineers for safe practice of RTOR.

Many motorists display a "mental blindness' towards bicyclists, according to Ottenheimer. This means they have a tendency to look only for other cars and trucks.

"The potential hazard is also compounded by the fact that most bicyclists ride to the extreme right of their lane or even on the shoulder," the safety official said. "This means that the motor vehicle operator trying to observe traffic to his left may not see the bicyclist approaching until it's too late."

1. Stop first. The law requires a complete stop before proceeding. Do not "roll" through the intersection.
2. Look both ways. If cross traffic is two-directional, the primary concern is on the left, but look right also because of possible jaywalkers and bicyclists in the wrong lane.
3. Yield the right-of-way. Do not violate rights of others such as pedestrians, and vehicles turning left on an advance green light from the opposite direction.
4. Do not be pressured. Lead motorists do not have to turn right and should not be pressured into a dangerous maneuver by the cacophony of blaring horns.

New Traffic Sign Will Soon Appear On State Highways

"No turn on Red" is the new traffic sign motorists will be seeing soon at many intersections throughout Maryland.

In June, the State Highway Administration will begin installing the new signs in preparation for Maryland's "Right-Turn-on-Red-After-Stop" law (RTORAS), which takes effect July 1.

Baltimore City and some other local jurisdictions have already begun installing their "No-Turn-on-Red" signs.

NEW LOOK FOR MEMORIAL DAY WEEKEND — State Trooper James L. Ballard puts an "Operation Care" decal on his patrol car in preparation for the Memorial Day weekend. All marked State Police cars working the interstate highway system in Maryland will display these stickers to remind motorists to drive carefully during this dangerous weekend. State police and highway patrols from Maine to Florida will be paying special attention to speeders and other traffic law violators on Interstate 95 and other selected routes in an attempt to save lives and energy. Maryland Troopers will be aided by the use of radar, VASCAR, helicopters and unmarked vehicles. "Operation Care" stands for combined accident reduction effort. (State Police Photo by Bill Clark.)

On Saturday, July 1, Maryland will become the 48th state to allow RTORAS at most intersections. Between 20 and 30 percent of the state's signalized intersections will be signed to prohibit movement through a red light. These intersections will be posted with the "No-Turn-on-Red" signs. Turning right a red light will be prohibited because of poor visibility, too much pedestrian traffic, tight turns, or a high accident rate at the intersection.

"Canine Heartworm Disease" will be a major topic for discussion at the annual Summer Meeting of the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association to be held at the Sheraton-Fontainebleau Inn, Ocean City, June 25-27.

Presenting a paper on the disease which is becoming more common in Maryland and which sometimes is fatal to dogs will be Dr. Gilbert F. Otto, president of the American Heartworm Society. Dr. Otto is adjunct professor of zoology at the University of Maryland in College Park.

His paper will focus on problems faced by the veterinary practitioner when he sees a dog with heartworms for the first time. Discussion will include spread of the infection in the United States and Canada, clinical observations and laboratory findings and some consideration of heartworms in cats.

Veterinarians in large animal practice will attend a seminar on "Equine Laminitis: Theoretical and Practical Considerations," presented by Dr. Stephen G. Soule, of the Delaware Equine Center, Cochranville, Pennsylvania.

Other sessions will include presentations from six pharmaceutical companies on the latest products and drugs for veterinary medical use, including a new oral contraceptive for dogs, and fifteen "practice tips" by practitioners.

Dentist's Mailbox

Q. My gums under my dentures are red and often feel irritated. The dentist says I could be allergic to the denture material, but I've never had this trouble before. Why now?

A. It is quite possible to become allergic to a material, any material or drug, that one has been using for many years. It may seem sudden on its onset, but the use through the years sensitizes the person to the materials. The allergic response may thus be slow developing until it suddenly becomes noticeable.

If you leave your dentures out completely and the redness goes away only to recur after wearing them again, then you could be allergic to the denture material. A skin test would determine if you are allergic.

Wearing the same dentures for a long time without having them relined or remade can also cause your symptoms. The ridges under the dentures gradually shrink (resorb) and thus dentures should be relined every 25 years and remade every 8 to 10 years for most people.

Wearing the dentures constantly can also create problems. Most denture wearers should leave their dentures out 6 to 8 hours a day. The ridges and apalate should also be cleaned daily with a soft tooth brush or wash cloth.

Some medical conditions can make your mouth tissues susceptible to irritations that might not be otherwise noticeable. Such conditions include: diabetes, alcoholism, vitamin and/or protein deficiency, and leukemia, to name only a few. Even the very best possible denture is at least a little irritating to the gum tissues.

The ability of humans to adjust to the wearing of dentures is an amazing feat of nature.

Q. I only have 6 teeth left and they need attention badly. But I can't afford a dentist. What do I do?

A. First, you do not know for sure that the care of a private-practicing dentist is beyond your means until you check. My recommendation is to consult a dentist and get some idea as to what treatment is needed and its cost. The dentist may be willing to and able to provide the needed care in a way that you can pay for it.

Most dentists will provide care for some needy persons at a reduced fee and some dental societies have a specific reduced fee program. But, you must be candid with the dentist that you consult.

You may be eligible for care through your local health department. Call and ask about dental services there.

The University of Maryland School of Dentistry has a program that tries to provide care for persons who cannot afford the usual fees. For more information, you may wish to call them at 528-7460.

If those six remaining teeth are lower teeth, I would advise you not have them removed unless absolutely necessary. For most people, a complete lower denture is often very difficult to wear.

Q. Should Everyone Have Their Wisdom Teeth Removed?

A. If the third molars, (wisdom teeth) have sufficient room to erupt (come into the mouth) in good useable position, and if they can be kept reasonable free of plaque, tartar, and decay without creating additional problems, then they should not be removed.

On the other hand, they should be removed if they are: tilted, rotated, not in an upright vertical position, impacted, or have insufficient space. Also, if they are in the mouth in such a poor position that they are creating gum problems, or are decayed because it is not possible to keep them clean, then they should be removed.

Q. I babysit for a child who eats candy and sweets all day long and whose teeth look terrible. The mother pays no attention to the child's toothaches. What can I do?

A. You are in a difficult situation. You can mention your concern to the child's parent. Your own regular family dentist may have pamphlets or booklets on dental health that he can give you. You may leave them where the child's parents will see them and hopefully get the message.

If the parents have a regular dentist, he can ask them about having the child's teeth checked if you will tell the dentist that they have a child who may need dental care. He does not have to mention that you brought the subject of the child's teeth to his attention.

Do you know someone else in the family or friend, or clergyman that the parents would listen to? If so, they may be willing to notice the child's teeth and make appropriate suggestions to the parents. Once again, they do not have to mention your involvement.

How about the child's pediatrician? Has he noticed the child's teeth. Perhaps he would take some special notice if he were alerted to the possible need for dental care.

You are to be commended for taking such an interest in the child's health. The child in later years will appreciate your efforts if you can get the parents to take him/her to a dentist before its too late.

Good luck. For the child's sake I hope you succeed.

Q. I went to a periodontist who scales my teeth and then did some surgery. The nerves of some of my teeth are exposed to the air and hurt every day. I go to him every 4 months for scalings which are very painful even with anesthetic. I am worried that these constant scalings are bad for my teeth.

A. The removal of plaque and calculus (tartar) is essential to maintaining healthy teeth and gums. The scaling and polishing of teeth is very beneficial and will cause no problems.

There are several possible ways to decrease sensitivity around the gum line. One is to use one of the several types of special desensitizing toothpastes. Ask your periodontist or regular dentist to recommend a brand. Besides brushing with the paste, rub a small amount on the tooth at bedtime and then not rinse. If one brand does not relieve some of the sensitivity after 2 or 3 weeks try another.

The dentist may be able to rub a calcium hydroxide and/or fluoride paste into the sensitive area which sometimes relieves sensitivity.

There is also a technique utilizing small electrical current in a brush and special solution that sometimes gives relief.

State, Local Income Tax Revenues Pass Billion Dollar Mark

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced late last week that State and local income tax revenues for the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978 crossed the billion dollar mark and now total $1,052,785,569.

"State and local income tax revenues are running 12 percent ahead of last year reflecting an improved economic situation and the return of normal working conditions after the harsh winter weather and coal strike," Mr. Goldstein said.

State and local income tax receipts passed the billion dollar benchmark earlier this year than ever before. "At this same time last year, income tax revenues total $940,043,378," Comptroller Goldstein noted.

Comptroller Goldstein also reported that his office has mailed three percent more refund checks than at this time last year. "We have mailed 1,094,694 checks totaling $185,730,172. The average refund check today is $169.66, compared with $154.26 at this same time last year."

The Almanac

Today is Wednesday, May 24, the 144th day of 1978 with 221 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning star is Mercury.

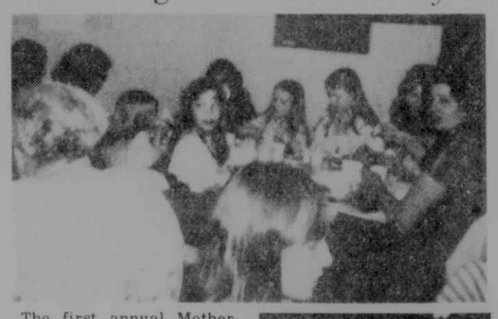
The evening stars are Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Gemini.

Queen Victoria of England was born May 24, 1819.

On this day in history:

In 1626, the Dutch West Indies Trading Co. bought the island of Manhattan from the Indians for the equivalent of $24.



In 1883, the Brooklyn Bridge, linking the boroughs of Brooklyn and Manhattan, was opened to the public for the first time.

In 1941, the HMS Hood of the British Royal Navy, world's largest battleship at the time, was sunk by the German battlewagon "Bismarck" between Greenland and Iceland.

In 1972, at a summit meeting in Moscow, President Nixon and Soviet Premier Kosygin signed an agreement on joint space exploration.

A thought for the day: Elmer Davis, American writer and radio commentator and head of the World War II Office of War Information, said, "This will remain the land of the free only so long as it is the home of the brave."
